Professor Sanders Convicted of Forgery at Fresno.

TESTING THE FEE LAW.

Action to Be Brought by Solano Justices and Constables.

TWO SHERIFFS UNDER ARREST.

Serious Complications Growing Out of the Kidnaping of a Prisoner.

FRESNO, CAL., April 23. — Professor Sanders is guilty. At 9:30 to-night the jury brought in a verdict to that effect after only a few minutes' deliberation. Only one ballot was taken.

The crime for which Sanders has been convicted was that of forging the name of William Wootten to a draft for $1400. To prove the defendant guilty, however, required the establishing of facts that also prove that Wootten was murdered by his friend, and it was the wish of Sanders' attorneys to avert this charge that caused such a stubborn fight to be made in his defense.

Wootten was an old rancher, living near Reedley, in this county. He was an Englishman and owned much valuable personal property in addition to his farm of about 3000 acres. He lived in a little cabin with one workman, a Dane, named Charles Rohloff. It was learned that he had relatives in England, but beyond this almost nothing was known of his history. He had no family and seldom spoke of himself.

Professor W. A. Sanders lived near by and had become very friendly with the old bachelor. Sanders was a man of considerable education, and for many years of his long residence in Fresno County he had taught schools. Altogether he was the last man who would be suspected of one of the most cold-blooded, deliberately planned murders ever committed in the county.

For many months previous to the commission of the crime, Professor Sanders had, so it appears, been laying his plans. He told Wootten that an old friend of his, John Knausch, wanted to look over the ranch, with the intention of buying. Wootten told his hired man, Rohloff, who was the closest friend the reticent old rancher had, that he was well contented with his quiet home and would live there to the end of his days. Within a few days papers had been filed in the County Recorder's office showing that the ranch had become Sanders'. Wootten was missing.

According to Sanders' story, for he was compelled to tell a story to avert suspicion from himself, Wootten had finally decided to sell the ranch to Knausch. On February 1, 1894, so the professor said, Knausch and a companion named R. L. Graves had gone to Wootten's cabin by a roundabout trail, carrying with them $20,000 in gold. Sanders had met them at Wootten's cabin, and although at first the old man refused to accept any offer he yielded when the gold coin was poured out on the table.

In addition to this amount, Knausch and Graves gave him a check on a Los Angeles bank for $25,000. After the sale was made all four men left for Fresno. Sanders and Wootten going one way with the gold and the other two men, who are now known to have been myths, going back over the trail.

Rohloff was plowing in a field near the road and he noticed that Wootten sat on the seat like a corpse. Sanders said that Wootten took the train from Fresno or some other station, and that several times afterward he had received letters from him.

These letters, as well as others, sent to different friends of Wooten's are now known to have been mailed by the murderer to direct suspicion away from him.

The crime for which Sanders was finally brought to trial was that of having forged the old man's name to a draft on the Kutner-Goldstein Company for $1400. It is now known that this is only one of many forgeries that were necessary to cover the murder.

Great excitement was caused all over the State by the news of the mysterious disappearance. At the close of the first trial, which was bitterly contested, the jury stood seven to five in favor of conviction. The second trial closed at 8:45 to-night, after having been in progress two and a half weeks.

Judge J. R. Webb instructed the jury and told them that he would wait until 10 o'clock for their report. It was generally believed that the jury would not agree and would have to be locked up for the night.

Many people were still waiting anxiously in the courtroom, however, when at 9:30 the jury sent word to Judge Webb that they were ready to report. They filed into their seats and Foreman L. R. Williams announced that they had found the defendant guilty.

Sanders looked blank for a moment, but gave no other sign of emotion at the result of the trying ordeal of the past few months. His attorney, Frank H. Short, informed the CALL correspondent after the trial that the case would be appealed. It is very likely that Sanders will have to answer to other charges of forgery, and also for perjury.

WILL TEST THE FEE LAW.

Solano County Officials Want Salaries for Services.

FAIRFIELD, CAL., April 23.—The forty-eight Justices of the Peace and constables of Solano County have decided to test the law passed at the last session of the Legislature, providing that fees, instead of salaries as formerly, shall be paid them for their services. Constables Powers, Ryan and Wilson have been appointed a committee to secure an attorney.

On May 1 Auditor G. F. Wooderson will be asked by the different Justices and constables to pay them the salaries allowed by the old law. The Auditor will refuse to audit the claims and this refusal will lay the foundation for mandamus proceedings, in which the constitutionality of the new law will be questioned.

Whatever decision is rendered by Judge Buckles of the Solano County Superior Court will be accepted as final and no appeal will be taken.

KIDNAPING A PRISONER.

Two Sheriffs Held for Trial on a Serious Charge.

BATTLE MOUNTAIN, NEV., April 23.—D. C. Kavanaugh, Sheriff of Platte County, Nebr., and H. Wright, Sheriff of Ogden, Utah, were arrested and held over in $8000 bonds here to-day for kidnaping a prisoner from Sheriff Easton of this county.

Michael Lamb, a fugitive from justice from Nebraska, was held in this county on commitment to Sheriff Easton to await requisition proceedings from Governor Jones of Nevada. While in custody Sheriff Kavanaugh arrived here in company with Sheriff Wright on train 2. Just before the train left they overpowered Deputy Sheriff Williamson and took Lamb on the train westward, not having procured the necessary warrant from Governor Jones.

Williamson immediately lodged a complaint for the arrest of the two Sheriffs. Kavanaugh was arrested with the prisoner in his possession at Winnemucca. The fugitive, Lamb, is held by Sheriff Hadley of Humboldt County, who refuses to surrender him to the Lander County authorities. Serious complications between three States and two counties are likely to follow.

FRESNO'S DEFUNCT BANK.

Stockholders Decide to Close the Doors of the Institution Permanently.

FRESNO, CAL., April 23.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Fresno Loan and Savings Bank the action of the board of directors in closing the bank's doors was indorsed. Five-sixths of the stock was represented.

E. O. Miller, T. J. Duncan and J. D. Musick, large stockholders in the bank, were appointed to examine into the securities and management of the institution and report as to the best means to be used in winding up the affairs and retiring permanently from business. A special meeting of the stockholders will be held when the report is ready for consideration. Jefferson G. James, the president, and Stockholders Breedon, Rector and Wallace were appointed to report to the Bank Commissioners as to what is being done toward liquidation.

A considerable number of the bank loans are to be taken up by other banks of the city. The process of litigation is going slowly on.

MISSING FROM ANDERSON.

Edward Frisbie Supposed to Have Been Drowned in the Sacramento.

ANDERSON, CAL., April 23.—Edward Frisbie, aged 26 years, a nephew of E. Frisbie of Redding and leader of the Salvation Army at this place, is supposed to have been drowned in the Sacramento River this morning.

Frisbie went to the river to shoot geese and failed to return. This afternoon his brother Stephen started to search for him. On reaching the river bank the young man's gun and a goose were found about ten feet from the edge of the water, with tracks leading to the water and none returning. The alarm was given and a large searching party was at once formed. Parties in boats are dragging the river while others are searching the banks. Up to a late hour no trace of the missing man had been found.

WEAVERVILLE MURDER TRIAL.

Moses Williams Charged With Hiring a Boy to Kill an Enemy.

WEAVERVILLE, CAL., April 22. — A jury was secured to-day in the case of Moses Williams, charged with being an accomplice in the murder of John Hart, near Hayfork, last November. Hart lived long enough to tell that Charles Williams, an 18-year-old boy, committed the deed. Young Williams was arrested and made a confession implicating Moses Williams.

In his statement the young man stated he was to receive some hogs, a colt and $100 from Williams for killing Hart. Young Williams was sentenced to life at Folsom, from which place he has been brought to testify. The boy enticed Hart to a secluded spot and then shot him dead.

SEBASTOPOL CANNERY LEASED.

A New Market Opened to Sonoma County Fruit-growers.

SEBASTOPOL, CAL., April 23.—The Sebastopol cannery has been leased to Hotchkiss & Miller, the Healdsburg fruit-packers, and will be operated extensively this season. The news will be hailed with delight by the fruit-growers of Analy Township, who have experienced difficulty and loss in the marketing of their fruit. Three years ago a joint stock company was organized here and the cannery operated at a heavy loss. Last season it did not run at all.

Indications are not so favorable for a heavy fruit crop in this section, although the young orchards which will bear for the first time this season will bring the output up to that of last season.

HEALDSBURG'S PAINT MINE.

A Large Force of Men Now at Work Taking Out the Ore.

HEALDSBURG, CAL., April 29.—Operations at the Healdsburg paint mine were commenced this morning, and a large number of men are at work taking out the ore. For some weeks carpenters have been at work in the erection of a four-story mill, and the most improved machinery has been put in.

This mine was discovered twenty years ago, but has never been operated. Experts who have sampled the paint pronounce it superior to the imported article, and this is the only mine of its kind in the United States.

The ore crops out of the west end of a mountain, and tunnels run in several different places yield the same quality, which proves that untold quantities are buried here. The opening of this mine is of great benefit to this city and Sonoma County.

Injuries Received in an Accident End the Life of L. C. Prunty.

SONOMA, CAL., April 23.—E. C. Prunty, a wealthy and prominent farmer of Sonoma Valley, died at his residence, two miles south of town, at 4 o'clock this morning, from the effects of fatal injuries received by falling from a cultivator last Saturday.

On the morning of the accident Mr. Prunty hitched his steam to a cultivator and started for a field, but had proceeded only a short distance when the seat gave way, throwing him violently onto the iron work of the implement. He sustained internal injuries. Doctors Davis and Walliser, who were immediately summoned to his bedside, soon observed that all hope of saving the old gentleman's life had vanished. He lingered on, however, until 4 o'clock this morning, when he expired.

Mr. Prunty has heavily interested in a number of Eastern banks, and also owned several large farms in Kansas. His body will be shipped East to-morrow for interment.

Among the important cases at Juneau to be called this term of court is the case of Adolph Meyers, late Deputy United States Marshal, who is accused of embezzling $2000 of Government money. He has been in jail for several months. Meyers has held several important Federal positions in the Territory.

Chris Thompson's Body Found Hanging in a Tannery Bathroom.

Killed by a Fall From a Hotel Veranda—Colonel Robb to Be Interred With Honors.

SANTA CRUZ, CAL., April 23.—Chris Thompson, a workman employed at Kron's tannery near this city, was found by a fellow employe this noon hanging by the neck to a rafter in the bathroom, which is at the end of the building occupied as the sleeping apartments of the workmen. He had been dead for some time, having committed the deed last night or this morning.

Thompson was a Scandinavian, 60 years of age and unmarried. He has been employed at the tannery some time, but during the last four weeks has been on a protracted spree. A Boulder Creek Man's Fearful Plunge to Instant Death.

McFarland had been working at Glenwood and returned to town yesterday. He had been drinking during the day, and it is supposed that some time this morning he walked from his room in the hotel out on to the veranda and accidentally fell to the street below, a height of fifteen feet. He struck head first, and his skull was struck by contact with a small pebble.

McFarland has been a resident of Boulder Creek for the past four years. He was 35 years old and by occupation a millman.

HE ROBBED LOS ANGELES.

Capture of an Absconding Tax Collector After a Weary Pursuit.

For Eight Years He Had Baffled the Officers Who Were on His Track.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., April 23.—Sheriff Burr left for Salt Lake or Denver a few days ago with requisition papers for Hammond, the County Tax Collector, who absconded about eight years ago, leaving a shortage of $11,000. Proceedings were brought against Hammond's bondsmen, but the defalcation was never settled, and suits are still pending in court.

Hammond was recaptured in Arizona soon after his flight, but escaped from the officers. It was rumored that the surrender of his plunder to the officers was the price of his liberty, but this was not generally believed, as it is probable the amount he embezzled was squandered before he fled. When next heard of Hammond was reported to be chopping wood for a living in a Canadian forest.

About a year ago the report came that he was dead. His bondsmen, however, recently learned that he was still alive and in the United States. His location becoming known the Sheriff quietly slipped away to bring him back.

Hammond lived at El Monte when elected Tax Collector, and was considered an honest vaquero. After taking up his official residence in Los Angeles he fell from grace, his downfall being due to a woman, on whom he spent considerable money. Finding himself short in his accounts at the expiration of his term he fled. He left his wife in almost destitute circumstances. She lived here and supported herself and aged mother by working in a box factory until about two weeks ago, when an aunt took her to Fresno and started her in business in a little store.

Sheriff Burr is expected to return with the fugitive in a few days.

STOCKTON IS READY.

The San Joaquin Metropolis Will Keep Its Pledge.

HAS OPENED THE WAY.

Deeds for Right-of-Way Land Secured for the Valley Road.

CONTINUING THE GOOD WORK.

By the Close of the Week the Entire Cash Fund Promised Will Be Raised.

STOCKTON, CAL., April 23. — Chief Engineer Storey of the valley road was expected in Stockton to-night, but did not arrive. He will be here to-morrow to consult with his surveying party.

The Stockton Commercial Association held a meeting to-night, at which it was reported that deeds have been secured for all the pieces of land required in this city, except the convent property and that of John Boggs. Deeds for the latter were sent to Colusa in the custody of young Boggs today for his father's signature. Father O'Connor and the committee have arranged to settle to-morrow about the sale of the convent property, which is wanted for the depot of the new road.

At to-night's meeting it was decided to raise, by Saturday night, enough money and stock subscriptions to carry out all the promises made to the directors of the valley road.

The excursion of the Half-million Club will reach Stockton on Thursday, and committees were appointed to-night from the Commercial Association and the Ladies' Annex to entertain visitors. They will be banqueted in the Agricultural Pavilion and driven to points of interest about the city.

SANGER WANTS THE LINE.

It Unites With Reedley and Dinuba in a Petition to the Directors.

FRESNO, CAL., April 23.—The citizens of Sanger have appointed A. Frankenau, Frank Lindsey, A. S. Armuth, A. J. Elmore and E. P. de Wey to confer with the citizens of Reedley and Dinuba as to the wisest course to pursue in trying to induce the projectors of the valley road to build through these towns. They lie in a very rich country, and every effort will be made to secure the competing line. The residents of Dinuba have prepared the following statement of the advantages of tapping their part of the San Joaquin Valley:

"Time has demonstrated that the Southern Pacific acted wisely in locating its line where it did, as it runs through the most fertile body of land between the main line and the foothills.

"At Sanger the great lumber trade is immensely important. More carloads of freight are shipped out of that town than out of all others between Fresno and Visalia. As that town is the distributing point for the sawmills, a corresponding amount of supplies is shipped into Sanger. The new road is certain of receiving the lion's share of all this business.

"South from Sanger to Monson lies a rich agricultural region, where endless supplies of grain, hay, fruit and livestock are raised. At Reedley and Dinuba more grain is shipped than at any other two small towns in the valley. Dinuba is also the natural shipping-point for the thriving Orosi country.

"The line of the new road should follow where the greatest amount of business lies. The Southern Pacific has shown keen business sagacity in this, and it is well to profit by its experience whenever possible. To pierce the wedge-shaped country between Fresno and Visalia would save a few miles in distance, but such a line would not traverse so desirable a territory and would fail to capture much of the business that would otherwise be absorbed by the two Southern Pacific liness."

TRIAL OF A MURDERESS.

Edith Elder to Answer for the Murder of Frank Quinn.

STOCKTON, CAL., April 23.—Edith Elder, who shot and killed Frank Quinn on the 15th of last November, was on trial before a jury in Judge Smith's court to-day.

The murder was a very cold-blooded one. At 12 o'clock on the morning of the 15th the woman shot Quinn and then turned the pistol upon herself, inflicting a wound in her breast.

Miss Elder is represented by the best local law talent obtainable, and the case gives evidence of being a hard-fought one. The brother of the murdered man is J. J. Quinn, the present Councilman from the First Ward.

From the questions asked the jurymen it was made apparent that the defense will be that Miss Elder was temporarily insane when she committed the homicide and then tried to end her own life.

IMPROVEMENTS AT TACOMA.

Immense Structures to Be Erected Along the Northern Pacific Water Front.

TACOMA, WASH., April 23.—The Northern Pacific Railroad began work to-day on improvements on the water front that will cost $300,000. Local companies will make improvements costing $200,000 more. The railroad will build a solid rock and stone seawall along its water-front property. It will build four freight warehouses, each 40x400 feet, and coal bunkers of 10,000 tons storage capacity, capable of handling 5000 tons per ten hours.

The Cascade Oatmeal Company is preparing to erect a 500-barrel flourmill for the oriental trade.

HILL IN CONTROL.

A Rumor That His Line Has Absorbed the Northern Pacific.

TACOMA, WASH., April 23.—A report here has it that President J. J. Hill of the Great Northern has secured control of the Northern Pacific Railroad. This report is given as the cause of the recent shaking up among officials of the latter road. None of the officials here can confirm the rumor, but they do not take much stock in it, although it is generally believed by the people.

There is a general feeling of uneasiness among Northern Pacific officials, as it is expected that several more of them will be asked for their resignations. Second Vice-President Prescott's office is said to be booked for abolishment altogether, with that of the second assistant land commissioner, occupied by George P. Eaton. The latter's headquarters are here and Prescott's are in Portland.

MENDOCINO OFFICERS REPULSED.

Vain Pursuit of a Desperado Who Is Terrorizing the Ranchers.

UKIAH, CAL., March 23.—Sheriff Johnson and Deputy Hatch have returned from an unsuccessful pursuit of Dan Burton, an ex-convict, for whose arrest a warrant has been issued, charging him with threats to kill.

Constable Hughes first attempted to apprehend Burton, but he refused to be taken and defied the entire constabulary of Mendocino County. Immediately after repulsing Hughes, Burton took to the brush and has been terrorizing the neighborhood since that time. Ranchers in the vicinity are said to be living in constant fear of their lives.

Burton is an old frontiersman, and added to his ability with a rifle he unites a character that knows no fear. He is thought to be slightly demented. Burton was recently released from San Quentin, after having served a term of four years for shooting a German named Axel Gutch.

PORTERVILLE'S WELCOME.

A Hearty Reception Given the Half-Million Club Excursionists.

Ladies Decorate the Train With Flowers While the Party Visits Points of Interest.

PORTERVILLE, CAL., April 23.—The Half-million Club excursionists arrived here from Los Angeles at 4:50 o'clock this afternoon and were met at the depot by the citizens of Porterville with carriages and a brass band, and escorted through the principal streets and through the orange and lemon groves. While this was being done a committee of ladies and gentlemen were decorating the interior of the cars with flowers.

The visitors were greatly pleased with what they have seen here and were loud in their praises of the rich country through which they were driven, the orange and lemon groves receiving their share of attention from those of the party who are residents of Southern California.

After being taken to the various points of interest adjacent to the town the excursionists returned to their cars. The people of Porterville were invited inside and thanked by Messrs. Bunker, Carman and Daniels and others of the party for the hospitality shown them, the ladies especially receiving much praise for their kindness in decorating the cars with flowers.

Mrs. W. M. Bunker of the excursionists writes of the visit here as follows:

"At Porterville the train ran into a great bouquet, as it were, the ladies of the town waiting to welcome it with garlands and roses. A delightful ride was enjoyed, the tourists returning to find the cars a bouquet of beauty. Every section was garlanded and laden with flowers. They were massed on all sides."

A vote of thanks was returned by the club to the people here. Nowhere has the club been treated more hospitably and heartily than at Porterville.

The excursionists left here at 9:10 P. M. for Tulare, via Poso.

BAKERSFIELD, CAL., April 23.—The Half-million Club arrived here at 9:30 this morning and were met at the depot by the agents of the Kern County Land Company, with its vehicles, and then driven over the company's domains. The citizens of Bakersfield provided a substantial lunch at the Southern Hotel at 1:30, after which the party left for Porterville at 3 o'clock. The party consisted of twenty-four, including ladies.

FATAL SEATTLE AFFRAY.

A Quarrel Over Dice Results in the Shooting of a Barkeeper.

His Assailant Claims to Have Been Drugged by the Man He Wounded.

SEATTLE, WASH., April 23.—Harry Fraser, proprietor of the Northern Hotel bar, was fatally shot this morning by P. D. Page of Mitchell, S. Dak., the owner of a large ranch and a member of one of the best families in Milwaukee.

Page was shaking dice with Fraser, and says that he had taken two drinks which were drugged, for he became stupid and just remembers a struggle in which he pulled his revolver and fired. Fraser says Page suddenly began talking about two sixes and trays turning up at dice, and in an instant drew his revolver and shot him.

Page came here on April 12 with A. W. Hager, an attorney of Chicago, to leave today on the steamer for Alaska, to go to the Yukon mines. Hager says Page is an abstemious man, whom he never saw take two drinks of liquor, and he is convinced that he had been drugged for the purpose of robbery.

Page, he says, had on Monday cashed a draft for $350 and had $25 besides, but when arrested he had only $310 on his person. He believes that Page had been robbed of the $65, and that Fraser and his friends were drugging him to get the rest.

Page's father was formerly Chief of Police and afterward Mayor of Milwaukee, and his uncle, Hiram Barber, is a master in chancery in Chicago, while Page's mother and sister are now at Pasadena, Cal.

Fraser is a small man and had borne a good reputation. He cannot recover. Page has been in a semi-stupor all day, and has not yet fully recovered his senses.

Arrested for Arson.

SEATTLE, WASH., April 23.—Thomas E. Shoemaker, a white barber, and John Mills, colored, were put in jail to-day on a charge of arson, each having made a separate confession confirming that of the other. Shoemaker lived at 126 Rollin street, and on March 5 the house was burned down. Shoemaker's furniture was insured for $600, and the insurance company offered to settle for $300. Shoemaker paid Mills $12 for the job.

HELD IN BAKERSFIELD.

Lord Sholto G. Douglas Arrested for Alleged Insanity.

RESCUED BY FRIENDS.

He Was About to Marry a Waitress in a Variety Theater.

QUEENSBERRY'S WAYWARD SON

Since Coming to Bakersfield He Has Figured in Many Sensational Escapades.

BAKERSFIELD, CAL., April 23.—On a warrant sworn out by a friend Lord Sholto G. Douglas was arrested by Officer Leroy this afternoon on a charge of insanity.

Lord Douglas, who is a third son of the Marquis of Queensberry and a brother of Oscar Wilde's friend, Lord Alfred Douglas, has been a resident of Bakersfield for several months, ostensibly for the purpose of caring for a tract of forty acres of land belonging to the Marchioness of Queensberry. His agricultural operations, however, appear to have been neglected and he devoted himself largely to a pretty little waitress named Loretta Addis, who has been employed in a variety theater here for some time.

Douglas became so infatuated with the girl that he proposed marriage to her, and his proposal was accepted. He called on the County Clerk this morning and obtained a license to marry the girl.

This fact soon leaked out, and some of his friends, after consulting as to what was the best course to pursue, went before Justice Fox and swore out a warrant for his arrest on a charge of insanity. The warrant was put in the hands of Officer Leroy, who found Douglas at his hotel, preparing to go to bed. When the officer entered and showed him the warrant, he took it, and, after looking it over, exclaimed:

"And what's this?"

"Read it," said the officer.

Douglas again looked at the warrant, and this time with more chagrin than astonishment, he exclaimed:

"Insane! Most extraordinary proceedings! Insane! One man come up and swear you are insane—most extraordinary country!"

Douglas dressed himself and the officer escorted him to jail, where he was locked up in the jailer's room. He immediately sent for his counsel and will fight for his liberty.

One of Lord Douglas' notable escapades since he has been here occurred last night. He went into a place where gambling of various kinds is carried on. Here he very soon managed to lose all the money he had, but kept on playing, liquidating his losses with checks on a local bank, which were freely accepted by the gamblers. Finally, when he had lost something like $600, he came to a realization of what he had done and threatened to kill himself. He was dissuaded by his friends, however, and they undertook to settle the check matter. It was given out that payment on the checks was stopped, but as a matter of fact, Douglas has no money in the bank on which they were drawn.

When interviewed this afternoon Miss Addis declared she did not love the lord, and did not consider a marriage into his family at all an honor to her. If she married him at all it would be to escape the life she is now living. Miss Addis' true name is supposed to be Mooney. She recently came here from a convent in San Francisco. She is a pretty Irish girl, apparently 15 years old, with light blue eyes, bark brown nair and an innocent face.

SACRAMENTO GUESTS

The Veterans Pass in Review Before the Governor.

FIVE HUNDRED IN LINE.

Militiamen, Civic Societies, Officials and Civilians Escort Them.

PRAISED BY THE EXECUTIVE.

Profuse in His Compliments for the Splendid Showing Made by the Warriors.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., April 23.—The California and Nevada department of the Grand Army of the Republic have taken Sacramento by storm, and their triumphant parade this morning was the largest they have ever had upon the coast. Fully 500 grizzled veterans marched in a solid phalanx through the city, with the same old swinging march step so familiar to them in years gone by, when marching forward to meet a Southern foe.

As the martial strains of the various bands reached the ears of the warriors, the present rolled away like a cloud before the south wind, the infirmities of age were forgotten and they were youths again, passing in review before their sweethearts, mothers and wives, before leaving for the front to combat the stern realities of war. Then followed visions of camp life, forays into the enemey's lines, the shrill scream of the minie bullet, the hoarse roar of the battery and the sound of bursting shells.

Again they stormed the walls of Fort Donaldson and faced death in all its horrors; and as they passed in review before the executive and his staff they seemed once more the victorious force that had carried some hard fought field and were returning with victory perched upon their shot-torn banners.

The parade started from the corner of Tenth and L streets at 10:30 o'clock, and was headed by a platoon of police on foot. They were followed by General Tozer, the grand marshal, and his staff, consisting of O. P. Dodge, J. H. Davis, L. A. Jacox, A. D. Hurd, J. S. Becker, R. Lannert, G. H. Clark, C. Campbell, M. J. Gastman, W. H. Ambrose, H. Kimbrough, J. Broins, H. E. Arne and S. Leake. Then came the Second Infantry Regiment of Sacramento and Auburn, a fine appearing body of young men, who bore themselves with the martial air of veterans. They were under the command of Colonel Guthrie, and did credit to his careful training and exacting discipline. Battery B followed, dismounted, and with drawn sabers following the Second came the Bersaglieri Guards, in all their martial plumage, accompanied by a vivandiere. This is probably the last appearance in parade of the independent Italian company, as it is rumored that Governor Budd has decided not to allow them future privileges of this nature.

The second division was headed by Stephen Hopkins. His aids were W. L. Mattlock, Luther Weber and W. Larkin. Governor Budd and his staff followed. His Excellency is a magnificent horseman and rides like a centaur. No amount of jumping and prancing on the part of his spirited animal seemed to disturb his saddle-seat. The equestrianism of his staff, however, was in marked contrast.

Next came the Sons of Veterans' posts and carriages containing department officers, members of the Women's Relief Corps and Ladies of the Grand Army, and followed by a joyous band of youthful representatives from the public schools.

The third division, commanded by Marshal Harvie, with F. Lafferty, C. Nemetz and J. Ing as aids, was composed of the societies of Foresters, Native Sons, Red Men and the German civic societies of Sacramento, who were under the command of F. Ruhstaller; F. C. Yoerk, A. Heilbron and F. Guenther, aids.

The fourth division was under the command of J. M. Henderson, assisted by I. Christy and George B. Stock, and was composed of State officials, County Supervisors and officials, the Mayor and City Trustees, all in carriages.

The review was over thirty minutes in passing a given point under rapid march. Governor Budd was profuse in his praise in speaking of the parade. He said that it was one of the largest, best arranged and best conducted affairs he had ever witnessed in the State, and that it did credit to the Grand Army of the Republic, the local National Guard and the citizens of Sacramento.

At to-day's encampment reports were made by the various committees appointed on credentials, officers' reports, council of administration and resolutions.

The delegates to the next national encampment recommended that hereafter no new posts be instituted except on recommendation of the council of administration. It was also recommended that no per capita tax be levied on the members of the different soldiers' homes. The department commander was authorized to appoint an aid, with the title of mortuary register, to complete the mortuary record of the department.

The time for settling the next meeting-place for the department encampment was made a special order for to-morrow. Two places are proposed, Santa Cruz and San Francisco, but it is doubtful if San Francisco will ask for it.

One hundred and twenty-three members, representing 37 corps, were present at to-day's session of the Woman's Relief Corps. The committee on officers' reports and other committees made their reports, and the session was consumed in discussions on various subjects of interest. The corps will proceed to the election of officers to-morrow.

The Sons of Veterans at their meeting appointed a committee on resolutions and one on constitution and revision of by-laws. They received a telegram of congratulation from Surgeon-General E. W. Young of Seattle and one from the G. A. R. To-morrow they will elect officers.

CRAZED BY HIS INJURIES.

A Man Run Over by a Wagon Becomes a Raving Maniac.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., April 23.—William Coy, a teamster, while watering his horses near the Buffalo brewery, in this city, to-day, was kicked and knocked down by one of the animals. His fall frightened the other horses and they ran away, one of the wheels of the heavy farm wagon passing directly over Coy's head, inflicting a severe scalp wound and other injuries that may result seriously. When Coy recovered consciousness he was a raving maniac, and, despite the utmost endeavors of two men to restrain him, ran headlong into a telegraph pole, again falling unconscious to the ground. It is thought he cannot recover his reason.

TERMED A BOGUS REPUBLIC.

Clarence W. Ashford's Denunciation of the Dole Government.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 23.—The News-Advertiser will publish a lenghthy letter from Clarence W. Ashford, who is now at San Francisco, regarding the deportation of Cranstoun, Muller and Johnstone from Hawaii.

After denouncing the irregular constitution of the court that tried the so-called rebels and the unfair trials accorded, Ashford dwells at some length on the manner adopted by the Government to obtain evidence to incriminate persons arrested.

He then refutes the story circulated by the Dole Government that the three exiles were barely existing in Honolulu, stating that Cranstoun was so deeply invading the field of old-established houses in the flour and feed business that one of the large dealers employed him (Ashford) to see if he could not catch Cranstoun in the network of license laws and so force him out of business. This was just before his (Ashford's) arrest.

Ashford commends the course adopted by the exiles in suing the steamship company, as they have no recourse against the Hawaiian Government, owing to the law passed that its courts shall not entertain suits for damages arising from any act of the Government itself, or any officer in suppression of the rebellion. As the steamship company was indemnified by the Government, Ashford predicts the "bogus republic" will eventually have to foot the bills.

In conclusion Ashford expresses the hope that British, American and other foreign governments will speedily inquire into the cases of those who were deported or are still languishing in that "black hole of Calcutta" on the reef of Honolulu.

END OF A FRESNO QUARREL.

The Terry Block Rejected as the Site for High-School Building.

FRESNO, CAL., April 23.—At a meeting of the recently elected Board of Education to-night all negotiations for the purchase of the Terry block as a site for the proposed $60,000 high-school buildng were ended.

The question as to the location of the building has been a warmly contested one among the citizens of this city for a year or more and it was the chief issue upon which the members of the board were elected. Those opposed to the purchase of the Terry block on the ground that it is too far from the center of town carried the election by a large majority. The first meeting of the new board was held to-night and it was voted to build on another site. The Terry block belongs to Mrs. Sarah Althea Terry and owing to the changes in her guardian the title could not be cleared as soon as wished.

KILLED NEAR KENNEWICK.

A San Francisco Man Meets Death Under the Cars.

TACOMA, WASH., April 23.—A Ledger special from North Yakima says:

Francis Lebahn, supposedly a representative of the San Francisco Examiner, was killed by a passenger train near Kennewick on Monday morning, and brought to this city this morning by the Coroner.

Lebahn hailed from San Francisco, but had lived in Seattle and Portland, in which city he leaves a widow, Sadie Lebahn, living on Morrison street. He was without money, 20 cents being all that was found on him. He had been writing up Ellensburg for San Francisco papers evidently, as his pockets were full of notes about Kittitas farms.

Lebahn was a man 30 years of age, smooth shaven and very well dressed. His father, August Lebahn of Newark, N. J., telegraphed instructions to give the body a decent burial.

The loss of the Knights of Pythias on regalia, etc., is $2000; insured for $1650. The loss of Magee & Wood, occupying the basement, is $1000. The loss on the building is $1500; insured for $1000. Mr. Boswell's house, adjoining, caught fire and was damaged $500. The fire was started by mice and matches.

Santa Rosa Footpads Bound Over.

SANTA ROSA, CAL., April 23.—The officers think they have a strong case against Frank Reed, Frank Cummings and Otto Vogel, the three men arrested here on Sunday for knocking down and robbing a man named Smith. They were examined before a Justice and held for trial at the Superior Court. It is also believed that they were interested in a number of burglaries committed in Sonoma County during the past few weeks.

The Royal Arthur Expected at Victoria.

VICTORIA, B. C., April 23.—The rumor that the Royal Arthur, flagship of the British Pacific squadron, is to bombard Corinto, Nicaragua, is not credited in naval circles here. Officers of the Nymphe say they heard the same thing at San Francisco and laughed at it. The Royal Arthur is expected here shortly, orders having been received to hold her mail here.

NATIONAL SOLDIERS' REUNION.

Defenders of the Nation to Decide How They Will Vote.

CALDWELL, OHIO, April 23.—A call has been issued for a national soldiers' reunion to be held here on June 14 and 15 next, and the political tone injected into the document by the National Committee, to the effect that the men who saved the Government should be a factor in its administration, and that the time had arrived when they should get together, formulate their principles and make their demands, has met with considerable opposition. The National Committee gives out the following:

"In response to letters from every quarter asking for the basis or plan of representation the following instructions are given: Every State is expected and requested to hold a State convention for itself on May 30 and choose its own delegates to the national reunion. Each State may send us as many as it deems proper, but no State shall have more or less than two votes in the convention, although all shall have a voice and be present at the proceedings, to the end that every State may have equal power to decide how the soldier vote of the Union shall be cast in 1896. This is the great and only object of the gathering — the crystallization and solidification of the soldier vote."

CARSON MINT CASE.

John T. Jones Arraigned for the Alleged Theft.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS.

Only Those Engaged in the Case Are Allowed to Be Present.

HOW THE GOLD WAS STOLEN.

Inspector Mason Describes the Methods of Those Who Looted the Mint.

CARSON, NEV., April 23.—Commissioner Edwards this morning began the preliminary examination of John T. Jones, charged with a shortage of $75,000 in the melter and refiner's department of the Carson mint.

The accused entered the courtroom with a smile on his face and took a seat with his attorneys. General Clark was added to the Government forces as an attorney of record to assist the United States District Attorney in the prosecution.

The proceedings were held behind closed doors, in accordance with the request of the defense. There were present Superintendent Adams, Melter and Refiner Harris, Warren Noteware and Detective Grant. Lawrence Elrod had been called as a witness for the defense. Harris, of the mint, had been called on as a witness for both sides. Detective Harris of the secret service was not present. He had been expected in the morning with Piper, who had been arrested for stealing bullion. A large crowd was at the depot in the morning to see him arrive with his prisoner, but he did not put in an appearance.

William Woodburn, who had a consultation with Coffin in Reno a few days ago, was placed on record as an attorney for Jones, the accused. He had been retained some days ago by Heney, one of the accused.

United States Marshal Humphrey, Detective Grant and Bailiff Sterns occupied the United States Marshal's rooms adjoining the courtroom. The doors were locked and the bailiff was instructed to allow no one in except those engaged in the case.

Inspector Mason, the first witness for the Government, took the stand and stated that he had been connected with the mint service over forty years, and had been sent to Carson by the Government to investigate the shortage. He gave a detailed description of the methods in vogue in the Government mints in refining and treating precious metals, the system of check in the mint and the inner workings of the coining branch of the service. The description of the workings of the metals occupied the entire forenoon.

The examination was resumed at 1 o'clock. The witness gave a detailed account of how he had investigated the shortage by assaying every bar of bullion in the mint, several hundred in all. He found several bars which did not hold up to their recorded value, and also a counterfeit melt. The bars were brought over from the mint by the sergeant in an express wagon and placed in evidence as exhibit A.

The testimony of Mr. Mason was supplemented by innumerable figures, assays and files of the mint records, all of which were dry testimony, but necessary to lay the foundation of the Government's case. General Clark, who conducted the examination, went into the details very exhaustively. The witness had everything at his fingers' ends, and was well fortified with figures and documents.

An especially interesting statement brought out was the history of deposit 77. It came into the mint as a gold deposit and was entered in the gold book as gold deposit 77, but when assayed was 483½ fine. This being below the 500 limit of fineness, the gold number, 77, was crossed with a chisel, and it was transferred on the books as a silver deposit, No. 134. This was one of the bars that was tampered with in the melter and refiner's room and melted over, but the parties who did it forgot to restamp it like the original. When the bar appeared in its new form it was numbereu 134 like the original, but the 77 crossed with a chisel did not appear on the new bar, they having overlooked the fact that it had been changed from one class of bullion to another by reason of it having fallen below the standard of fineness. The bar had been remelted, part of the gold extracted and silver used to make up the actual weight.

The bar came from the Standard mine at Bodie and was $20,000 short. This enabled Mason to definitely state that the tampering with that bar could only have been done with the knowledge of the melter and refiner or his assistants. The witness also swore that the stealing took place after the June clean-up of 1891 and before the June clean-up of 1894.

On cross-examination the witness said that it was possible for the bar to have been tampered with outside the melting-room, but not probable.

Court adjourned at 4:30, and the examination of the witness will be resumed to-morrow morning.

DIVORCE NOT NECESSARY.

In Wisconsin a Woman Is Freed When Her Husband Gets a Life Sentence.

MADISON, WIS., April 23.—By a decision of the Supreme Court handed down to-day the validity of the law which provides that life imprisonment works absolute divorce without further legal proceedings is established. The decision is in a celebrated case against James Duket for infidelity. Duket married the wife of William French of Ashland, sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Calvin Steel, without the wife having procured a divorce from French. A few days later French secured a new trial in the Supreme Court and had the judgment of conviction set aside. Thereupon Duket was arrested. The Supreme Court holds that French's conviction worked absolute divorce and that the marriage of Duket and Mrs. French is valid.

Owners and Clerks Compelled to Work by a Strike.

NEWCASTLE, PA., April 23.—Every furnace in Newcastle shut down this evening, but for how long no one knows. The men have asked the employers to make the wages of a year ago and they have given the owners twenty-four hours to determine the matter. The latter declined to take the time, but decided to close at once. The men refused to cool down the furnaces and the clerks and owners were obliged to do the work. The old wages gave the keepers $2 25 per day and they now receive $1 75. Other hands were paid proportionately. The owners claim when the old wages were paid iron was selling at $13 per ton. It now sells at $10.

MAY LOSE THE CHARTER.

Evidence of a Combination Between Bridge Companies.

ST. LOUIS, MO., April 23.—The Post-Dispatch announces that suits will soon be brought against the bridge company to secure the forfeiture of their charters and punish their officers for participating in an unlawful combination. The action in the courts will be based upon evidence of the existence of a pool, which has been brought out before the Illinois Senate Investigating Committee sitting in East St. Louis. Before the committee adjourned Monday evidence was secured establishing the existence of the combination between the two bridge companies and the Wiggins Ferry, and the advancement of rates in consequence thereof.

HARRISON IS HIS CHOICE.

Governor Matthews of Indiana Comes Out as a Prophet.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., April 23.—Governor Matthews said that in his opinion as an outsider the signs point to the nomination of Harrison next year as the Republican candidate for President.

"Reed," he said, "does not know where to jump on this question and McKinley is closely connected with another subject which will not cut much figure in the next compaign. Harrison has a better reputation as a bimetallist and say what you please about his administration it was a safe and clean one, and from a Republican standpoint I don't know how you could ask a better."

MUST AWAIT THFIR TURN.

Judges Will Not Immediately Try Indian Land Cases.

Meanwhile Winnebagoes Grow Very Restless, But an Outbreak Is Not Expected.

OMAHA, NEBR., April 23.—A special to the Bee from Lincoln says: It is considered rather indefinite now when the Flournoy Land Company's and other injunction suits relating to leasehold settlers on the Winnebago agency will come up in the Federal Court, or whether they will be heard in Lincoln or in Omaha. This afternoon District Attorney Sawyer appeared before Judges Dundy and Riner, sitting together, and asked that the cases be taken up and disposed of. He said that the situation on the reservation was serious, and that in his opinion something should be done at once in regard to it.

Judge Dundy said that the cases were on the calendar and would not be taken up until reached in the regular order. When it was suggested that they were now down below every other case, Judge Dundy, with some warmth, assured him that so far as he was concerned personally no one who had a case in court at this time should be discriminated against on account of the Government or threats of Indian troubles. When the cases were reached if any one was there to represent the two sides they would be tried, and not before.

If attorneys wished to go up among the Indians instead of attending to their cases, then they must take chances on delay. The Judge said he would take up the call of the calendar where Judge Riner left it, and so soon as injunction cases were reached they would be tried. The matter was left with that understanding. Attorneys representing some 225 tenants on the land were in court and were anxious for a hearing immediately. The case may not be tried for ten days. In the meantime the Indians are restless, but no outbreak is probable.

COLLIS IS PERSECUTED.

Huntington Says Enemies are Trying to Annoy Him.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 23.—C. P. Huntington, President of the Southern Pacific Railroad, received a number of letters from friends to-day containing expressions of sympathy for his arrest. "This latest action," Huntington said, "is only one of many attacks made against me in the West since I assumed the presidency of the Southern Pacific Railway.

"At that time and for some years before the road had been a political institution, but I stopped all the politics, and in doing so dropped a great many men from the payrolls who were simply hangers-on. Ever since they have lost no chance to annoy me in every possible way."

Huntington was asked if he intended going West in the near future. "I am waiting only to see a gentleman expected here on Wednesday's steamer," he replied. "After transacting some business I have with him I shall start for California. That will probably be by the end of this week."

Alonzo Whitman's Forgeries.

NEW YORK. N. SAN JOSE'S TRAGEDY.

Causes Which Led to Murderer Anderson's Crime

TOLD AT THE INQUEST.

Mrs. Blair Killed Because She Had Renounced the Ex-Waiter.

STABBED HIMSELF TEN TIMES.

The Suicide's Heart Pierced by Two Knife Thrusts—Wayward Career of His Victim.

SAN JOSE, CAL., April 23. — Large crowds of the curious thronged the morgue to-day to gaze upon the bodies of Alice Blair, alias Annie Davis, and Albert Anderson, who stabbed her to the heart and then killed himself in the Hensley House shortly after midnight last night. At the autopsy held this morning it was shown that Anderson had plunged the knife twice in the woman's breast and once in her neck, and had then stabbed himself ten times, two of the thrusts piercing his heart.

Young Anderson first met Alice Blair about a year and a half ago, while he was employed as a waiter in the Plaisance. They were very intimate until two months ago, when they quarreled. Since then Anderson had been trying to effect a reconciliation, but the woman would have nothing to do with him. Anderson went to her room last night determined to kill her and then end his own life.

From the testimony introduced at the inquest to-day it is supposed that Anderson went to the room and tried to get in. Being refused admittance, he broke a window opening into the hall, when the woman became frightened, and opened the door. Leaving the window, he went around to the door, drew his revolver and fired three shots at her. One of the bullets lodged in the wall and the other two went through the window. His revolver refused to work and he drew his dagger, and attacked the defenseless woman. Three times he plunged the blade into her body and then turned the weapon upon himself.

Mrs. Blair ran down to the landlady's room, screaming: "I am shot! I am shot! Anderson has killed me!" and then fell to the floor. A doctor was hastily summoned, but she expired before he arrived.

Alice T. Blair, the murdered woman, came to San Jose about two years ago, after she had deserted her husband in Woodland. She had a weakness for fine dresses and jewelry, and, although possessed of a good home, persisted in leading a wayward life. Several months ago her husband applied for a divorce and she allowed it to go by default. Mr. Blair, who is a prominent business man of Woodland, did all in his power to turn the woman from the downward path she had chosen, but without avail. As a last resort he sought the courts and obtained a separation.

But little testimony was introduced at the inquest, and the jury brought in a verdict in accordance with the evidence.

SHIPMENTS OF FRUIT AND WINE.

A Falling Off in the Output During the Past Week.

SAN JOSE, CAL., April 23.—The eastern shipments for the week ending April 20 were light, but 1,000,735 pounds were sent out, as against 1,670,030 for the same period last year, a decrease of 669,295 pounds.

The slow movement of dried fruit is the cause of the decrease and tends to show that, although prices are good, the fruit is being held in anticipation of a raise. During the week ending April 21, 1894, the shipments of dried fruit amounted to 856,720 pounds, while last week only 455,325 were shipped. It is estimated that the amount of dried fruit still in the valley is about 2,500,000 pounds, while at this time last year not more than 1,500,000 pounds remained, the whole of which went east during the latter part of April and the first of May.

Wine shipments fell off 238,275 pounds, the shipments last week being 392,665, against 630,940 during the corresponding week last year. The shipments of canned fruit last week amounted to 84,470 pounds. Of the 455,325 pounds of dried fruit shipped 287,485 were prunes, 106.575 peaches, 56,030 apricots, 3075 pears and 2160 plums. The total shipments for the first three weeks of April were 3,821,405 pounds.

The local shipments on the narrow gauge reached 855,710 pounds, being mostly merchandise, fruit, produce, flour and millstuffs. The same road handled 101,040 pounds of eastbound fruit, most of the shipments being from Campbell Station.

ROBBED BY AN EMPLOYE.

A San Jose Printer Decamps With Stolen Funds.

SAN JOSE, CAL., April 23.—Frank Kimmerly, a printer who has been employed by M. C. Harris in his job office, left town suddenly last week with about $50 belonging to his employer, which he had collected on outstanding bills.

Kimmerly came here a year ago, and Harris gave him employment. Several weeks ago Harris took a trip to British Columbia, leaving Kimmerly and another young man in charge of the office. While he was gone Kimmerly got hold of all the money he could and left a day or so before Harris' return. Besides defrauding Harris he left numerous other creditors, his landlady losing $28.

It is supposed Kimmerly has gone to Washington or Oregon. As soon as the amount of his defalcations is learned Harris will secure a warrant for felony embezzlement, and he will be brought back if found.

GOES TO FOLSOM.

Bank-Wrecker Leonard Will Begin His Term To-Day.

SAN JOSE, CAL., April 23.—H. M. Leonard, who was convicted and sentenced to three years in Folsom for wrecking the Santa Clara Bank, will be taken to prison to-morrow. The case was appealed to the Supreme Court, and that body affirmed the sentence of the lower court.

Leonard was before Judge Reynolds this morning, and his attorney asked that the commitment be issued. There are nine additional counts against Leonard, but it is understood they will not be pressed.

Killed by a Fall.

SAN JOSE, CAL., April 23.—Macco Anatto, an Italian employed in a vineyard on the Stevens Creek road, fell from a wagon while driving along the road last evening near the Fathers' Villa and fractured his skull. He died in a short time.

Coroner Secord held an inquest in Mountain View this morning, and it was developed that in the dark Anatto had run over a large rock, throwing him from the seat. The jury rendered a verdict of accidental death.

That Tired Feeling

Is a certain indication of impure and impoverished blood. If your blood could always be rich and pure, full of the red corpuscles upon which its vitality depends, you would never be weak, or Nervous! Boils, pimples, scrofula, salt rheum, would never trouble you. But our mode of living, shut in all winter in poorly ventilated homes and shops, depletes the blood and there is loss of appetite, and weakness. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the standard remedy for this condition. It purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, overcomes that tired feeling, builds up the nerves and gives perfect health. Read this:

"Our daughter, Blanche, when four years of age had a humor break out on her hands and face, which our physician pronounced eczema. If the cold air reached her face or hands they would swell up, look almost purple, and headed blisters would form and break, Discharging a watery fluid, and the burning and itching would drive her nearly wild. Unless we incased her little hands she would tear patches of skin from her face and hands. We tried many doctors and many remedies and at last gave the case up as hopeless. But our daughter Cora tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, to cure a scrofulous lump near the left breast which caused her much pain and after taking 4 bottles it disappeared. Blanche, who is now eleven, had spent seven years of suffering, so I concluded to give her Hood's Sarsaparilla. She took 5 bottles and her face is smooth and soft as a baby's, the color of a rose petal. Her hands are soft and white, where four months ago they were blue and red and calloused nearly like leather. I cannot express my gratitude by pen or mouth. It seems a miracle and our friends are surprised." MRS. ANNA L. CLARK, 401 E. 4th St., Duluth, Minn.

It Would Seem That the Victim Was Willing to Be Swindled a Second Time.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., April 23.—An investigation of the Indianapolis end of the story from San Francisco that Mrs. Julia C. Fisher of this city is in San Francisco searching for the man who promised to marry her and then robbed her of $1500 shows that C. Cecil King and Harry K. Cavelle are one. Cavelle came here last September, presumably after correspondence with Mrs. Fisher, who owned property at 446 North Delaware street, and two small pieces in Haughville. He represented to her that he was a wealthy Californian and wanted to trade fruit farms in the Golden State for city property here. She sent him to the Strouse & Fulenn agency. Mr. Strouse of that firm says that Cavelle, or H. C. King, as he then gave his name, said he had two farms, one near Los Angeles and one near Sacramento. He wanted to trade them for city property here and would pay any difference in price in cash. He said that Mrs. Fisher had referred him to the agency.

Some time after Mrs. Fisher asked Strouse to procure a loan of $1500 for her, as she wanted to send her two boys to school. The loan was made. After paying the agent's commission, a sewer assessment and some bills, Mrs. Fisher had $1300 left. It was this money, if any, that she gave to Cavelle or King to "keep for her." After Cavelle got the money he left town. Mrs. Fisher became sick when she discovered what had been done, and was sick for seven weeks. While she was ill she received a letter from Cavelle, who signed the name of King, saying that he had been called suddenly to Chicago and while there was sandbagged and robbed. He said the detectives had his jewels and that it would require $500 to "get them out."

Mrs. Fisher wanted to send the money, but Strouse advised her to have Cavelle arrested. Mrs. Fisher left for San Francisco two months ago and has been there ever since.

AFTER SEVERAL WEEKS' ILLNESS.

Death of Ex-United States Senator Wilson of Iowa.

FAIRFIELD, IOWA, April 23.—Ex-United States Senator James F. Wilson died at a late hour last night, after an illness of several weeks.

James F. Wilson was born in Newark, Ohio, in the year 1828. He received the usual academical education given wherever possible to all Western lads by their parents, studied law, and after admission to the bar began practice in Iowa, the State of his adoption. His growth in public estimation as a careful lawyer and forcible speaker was rapid. Like a large proportion of the members of the legal profession he gradually drifted into politics. In 1856 he was a member of the constitutional convention of Iowa. The following year he was elected a member of the State Legislature, serving in that capacity in 1857, 1859 and 1861. In the last-named year he was President of the Senate.

The same year began his career in national political life. He was elected as member of Congress from Iowa to fill out the unexpired term of Hon. S. R. Curtis, and re-elected by a large majority on the expiration of that term. Mr. Wilson was a member of the Thirty-eighth, Thirty-ninth and Fortieth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1861, to March 3, 1869. In 1883 he was elected to the United States Senate to succeed Hon. James Wilson McDell, Republican. Senator Wilson took his seat and oath on December 4, 1883. He was re-elected for the term which expired March 4 last.

Only Hit the Workingman.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., April 23.—Governor Altgeld, talking on what he intended doing in the way of prosecuting the alleged beef combine for violation of the anti-trust law, said he had observed that none of these anti-trust laws seem to have amounted to anything in this country, except to hit the workingman over the head with them; that the corporations go right on forming trusts. As to the beef combine he did not know yet what evidence can be produced to form a basis for prosecution. He will vigorously prosecute all violations of law wherever he can find it possible.

ST. LOUIS, MO., April 23.—A reception was tendered the venerable Archbishop Kenrick yesterday by the students at the Christian Brothers' College. Four hundred students received the aged prelate. He was accompanied by Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia and Coadjutor Archbishop Kain of St. Louis. An address of welcome was made by William Gilmore, class of '95, which was responded to by Coadjutor Archbishop Kain, owing to Archbishop Kenrick's feeble condition.

Archbishop Ryan then made a brief address. Following the reception came dinner to the three Archbishops, at which were present Brother Paulian, president of the Christian Brothers' College of St. Louis; Brother Justin, president of the Christian Brothers' College of New York, and Brother Maurelian, president of the Christian Brothers' College of Memphis.

MEANS A REHEARING.

Petitions Will Be Heard Before the Full Bench.

MERITS TO BE ARGUED.

The Supreme Court's Action on the Income Tax Decision.

MR. JACKSON AS AN UMPIRE.

Now There Is a Prospect of the Whole Law Being Declared Constitutional.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23.—The United States Supreme Court to-day, through Chief Justice Fuller, made the following order regarding the petitions for the rehearing of the income tax question: "The consideration of the two petitions for rehearing is reserved until Monday, May 6, when a full bench is expected, and in that event two counsel on a side will be heard at that time."

Though the order does not explicitly so state, it means an argument will be heard not on the merits of the income tax question itself, but on the question of whether or not there be a rehearing of the suits heretofore decided. Justice Jackson is expected to return by the date named. Gentlemen familiar with procedure of court for many years can recollect but one instance in which like action has been taken. That was in the '70's.

It is understood the decision of the court to permit an oral argument on the motion for a rehearing was not arrived at until to-day, and that this action was based on information received by the Chief Justice direct from Justice Jackson indicating the probability of his being able to attend a sitting of the court early in May. After adjournment of the court to-day Chief Justice Fuller said he had received such information from Justice Jackson as to lead the court to expect his presence in Washington and to count upon his attendance upon the court by the day set for the argument of the petition.

It is understood that the decision of the court to depart from its almost unbroken custom of deciding upon the advisability of rehearings without inviting further suggestion from counsel than is contained in brief written statements, is due to the appreciation which the members have of the vast importance of the income tax cases and to their desire to have it understood by the public that they are not disposed to place any obstacle in the way of the fullest possible presentation of the case. The usual practice with regard to petitions for rehearings is to grant them upon the motion of one of the members of the court who has concurred in the decision already made, but it would appear in the case taken in the present instance of submitting even this preliminary matter to the full bench, that none of the Justices feel disposed to make such a motion, and that the arrangement now announced was hit upon as a compromise. Justice Jackson, therefore, will virtually come into the case as an umpire.

In the meantime the original decision will be allowed to stand as the law, and it is understood the full text of the Chief Justice's opinion will soon be given to the public. Ordinarily the court would take a recess from May 6 for two weeks and then adjourn until next October, but it is within its discretion to continue the present term indefinitely, and it is not impossible it may extend the term in the event of a rehearing being decided upon, especially if it should appear upon Justice Jackson's arrival that his health is sufficiently robust to permit him to take on himself the responsibility of sitting through an argument on the merits of the case and the extra work of assisting in the preparations of a decision.

The news of the action of the court was received at the Treasury Department with much satisfaction, especially as it was announced Justice Jackson would be present and take part in the determination of the question.

Without any positive knowledge on the subject it seems the general belief that Justice Jackson is predisposed in favor of the constitutionality of the law, and hence would be likely to vote for a rehearing, thus making a clear majority in favor of granting the petition. A rehearing is earnestly desired by the income tax officials, as with a full bench there necessarily will be a full majority either for or against the law, which would certainly have the effect of doing away with the vast amount of litigation now promised. As to the chances of the court's deciding adversely to the law the officials feel little uneasiness. They argue that the direct tax question, which some members of the court regarded as deeply involved, was hardly touched upon in the argument of the case on behalf of the Government, its counsel assuming the court could hardly desire a decision of a subject which they thought by reason of a long line of decisions had ceased to be an open question.

Senator Lindsay of Kentucky, speaking on this matter, said: "If the Federal Government has not the power to raise revenues by taxing incomes arising from rents of real estate in time of peace, neither has it the power in time of war. If the power does not exist it should be supplied by constitutional amendment. The Civil War established the right of the Federal Government to operate upon individuals in the enforcement of Federal authority. The Government should have like power in the taxation of all incomes."

One Great Increase Is From the Income Tax.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23.—The monthly statement of collections of internal revenues issued to-day shows the total receipts from all sources for nine months of the present fiscal year, ended March 31, 1895, to have been $109,995,015, of which $19,802 was from income tax from persons and $8855 from corporations, companies and associations. The remaining items of receipts were: Spirits, $63,902,869, an increase for the nine months of $1,180,739; tobacco, $22,106,326, an increase of $951,385; fermented liquors, $22,301,665, a decrease of $309,215; oleomargarine, $1,185,222, a decrease of $262,193; miscellaneous, $470,273, an increase of $360,539.

The net increase for the nine months was $1,950,163. The principal single item of increase was $1,295,628 from whisky. The increase and decrease for the month of March, 1894, is as follows: Spirits, decrease $2,905,024; tobacco, decrease $145,364; fermented liquors, decrease $180,115; oleomargarine, decrease, $34,009; miscellaneous, increase $17,317; income tax, increase $16,339; aggregate decrease for the month, $3,230,355.

Cleaves, clerk of the Senate committee, and J. S. Coverts, clerk of the House committee. The number of new offices specifically created is 1783, at an annual cost of $1,323,394, and the number omitted is 400, at an annual saving of $497,948, making a net increase of 1363 in number and $815,376 in amount.

Included in this increase are the 1000 additional seamen authorized to be enlisted in the navy, and 315 additional deputy collectors and revenue agents in the internal revenue service to carry into effect the income-tax law.

CATTLEMEN NOT BANDED.

The Omaha Exchange Censures Secretary of Agriculture Morton.

By His Erroneous Ideas He Has Greatly Injured the Stock Interests.

OMAHA, NEBR., April 23.—The Omaha Livestock Exchange to-day censured Secretary of Agriculture Morton for his erroneous ideas at present working to the great detriment of the cattle interests of the country in creating a wrong impression as to the relative cost of cattle and beef. After reciting the manner of his investigation, this resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That we, the members of the South Omaha Livestock Exchange, call the attention of the honorable Secretary of Agriculture and the country at large to the fact that during the first three months of the present year cattle receipts at Chicago, with a full corn crop in Illinois, Indiana and adjacent territory, fell off 17 per cent as against 1894; Kansas City's receipts fell off 13 per cent, notwithstanding a big increase in Texas shipments, and Omaha, in the very heart of the drought-stricken country, fell off 32 per cent. On account of this shortage cattle prices advanced from $1 to $2 per hundred as compared with a year ago, and the higher prices for beef naturally followed. With the higher prices for beef and the press agitation on this subject consumption fell off and cattle values declined in consequence. We regard the present depression in cattle values, however, as only temporary, as the indications are that the next three months of this year will witness a further reduction in the available cattle supply of fully 50 per cent. We are satisfied that there can be no combine possible among the beef-packers on account of the increased number of buyers in all the leading markets and the diversified interests represented by them.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23.—Secretary Morton was shown the resolutions adopted by the St. Louis Livestock Exchange yesterday deprecating the agitation about the alleged packers' combine and attributing the reductions in the price of live cattle of 16 cents a hundred in the last two weeks to such agitation. He said the statement of the St. Louis Livestock Exchange would lead to the belief that the alleged combine of dressed beef concerns existed.

"If the agitation, as they term it," said he, "has caused a decline in the price of cattle on the hoof, why is it a similar calamity has not occurred in the price of dressed beef? It remains the same and in some cases is even higher. Their own statement coupled with the prices of dressed beef answers their complaint."

WARSHIPS AT CORINTO

England's Display to Back Up Her Demand.

WILL NICARAGUA YIELD?

May Offer Passive Resistance and Await This Country's Action.

CLEVELAND'S CABINET TO ACT.

This Is an Opportunity for Testing the Administration on the Monroe Doctrine.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23.—The Nicaraguan Minister has received a cablegram from his Government announcing the arrival at Corinto of two British warships with the expressed purpose of enforcing the demands contained in the British ultimatum. Just how this is to be done the Minister was not informed.

The indications now are that Nicaragua will offer passive resistance to the British demands for some time at least, and meanwhile the United States will do nothing but await the developments of events, unless the British take some action that affects our interests, such as interfering with our shipping or other interests of American citizens. This attitude is assumed in the full confidence that no attempt will be made by the British to secure any Nicaragua territory, no matter what course she may be obliged to pursue to accomplish her purpose of collecting the "smart money" demanded for the expulsion of Vice-Consul Hatch.

There is reason to believe not only the Nicaraguan affair but the whole subject of the extent of the protection to be extended by the United States to the sister republics of Central and South America has been very earnestly and deliberately discussed by the President with his full Cabinet, and that the attitude as assumed in the case of Nicaragua may be taken as an indication of the line of policy to be adopted for the treatment of all questions arising between the European powers and those republics having such a basis as the present Nicaraguan incident.

HAD A TEMPTING CARD.

Boxing Bouts at the Scottish-American Athletic Club.

But a Knockout Blow Was Delivered and the Police Took a Hand.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 23.—The Scottish-American Athletic Club provided a very tempting card to-night for the boxing show, putting up their three best men, Steve Bloom, Tom Gaffney and Eddy Connell, against Jim Holmes, George Siddons and Dave O'Connor respectively. The bouts were to be six rounds each. The first bout was declared a draw.

George Siddons of New Orleans and Tom Gaffney then climbed the ropes. Siddons was much the cleverer, doing good work in the third.

In round 5 Siddons led, the fighting being lively. A right-hand blow on the head staggered Gaffney and he almost fell.

They went at each other hard and kept it up until the keeper rang his bell. Referee Early declared it a draw.

The police interfered in the third bout, after O'Connor had delivered a knockout blow to his opponent, and no decision was rendered.

FOUND ON A SANDBAR.

The Mutilated Remains of a Man Who Was Murdered.

KANSAS CITY, April 23.—A special to the times from Richmond, Mo., says:

On a sandbar in the Missouri River, near Camden, within 200 yards of where Dr. William F. Fraker is supposed to have been drowned two years ago, William Ming and John Bell found in a barrel the mutilated remains of a man. The head and legs had been severed from the trunk and one foot had been cut off.

The ghastly find was brought to the Ray County shore and an inquest held on it by Coroner Dove. There were no marks or papers by which the body could be identified, and it was buried on the river bank.

Some speculation as to whether the body might not be that of the missing doctor was indulged in, many theories as to the preservation of the body during the two years the doctor has been missing being put forth. But little stock is taken in the theory, however.

It will be remembered the doctor carried $38,000 life insurance in different companies and that his relatives had to bring suit to receive payment of the policies, the companies claiming the doctor was not dead.

CANCELED THEIR PATENT.

Judge Taft Decides a Noted Case Against the Defendants.

The Cowles Company Perpetually Enjoined From Using a Separating Process.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, April 22.—An opinion has been handed down by United States Circuit Judge Taft which decides a famous patent case which has been in court for a number of years and which has excited a great deal of interest. The suit was brought by Francis Lowery, executor of the estate of Grosvenor P. Lowery, against the Cowles Electric Smelting and Aluminum Company and A. T. Osborne.

The defendants claimed that they had the right to two patents by assignment from Charles Bradley for a process of separating metals, particularly aluminum, from their ores by the use of an electric current, both to fuse and electroize the ores. They claimed that they came into possession of the patents by virtue of a sale to A. T. Osborne who was said to have assigned the right to the Cowles Electric Smelting and Aluminum Company.

The plaintiffs, on the other hand, claimed that Bradley sold and assigned the patent right to them, and that they held letters patent at the Department of Patents in Washington. The Cowles people also held letters patented, and the suit was to determine which party was guilty of infringement.

Judge Taft, in a voluminous opinion, covering over fifty pages of typewritten matter, held that the defendants had infringed and were not entitled to letters of patent. He granted the plaintiffs a perpetual injunction restraining the defendants from using the patent rights, and ordered the letters of patent held by the Cowles people canceled and declared void.

ALL AFTER A SHARE.

Grasping Nations May Profit by China's Defeat.

RUSSIA IN THE LEAD.

Protests Against Japan Annexing Any Part of the Mainland.

FRANCE AND GERMANY NEXT.

England Will Not Join Any Combination to Interfere With the Spoils of Victory.

LONDON, ENG., April 23.—The Standard's Berlin correspondent telegraphs: The action of France, Russia and Germany has not yet exceeded a friendly, but energetic protest against the Japanese annexing any part of the Chinese mainland. I hear that the Russian Minister at Peking has already been instructed to negotiate with the Chinese foreign officials regarding the cession of the Chinese territory which Russia demands in compensation for the Japanese acquirings. China, being unable to reject Russia's demands, hopes to confine them to the cession of a portion of Manchuria and an ice free port.

The Daily News says it understands that the Government will not join any combination of the powers to interfere with the results of the Japanese victory. The Ministers were willing and anxious to avert the war, but they do not consider that British interests are injuriously affected by the terms of peace.

ST. PETERSBURG, RUSSIA, April 23.—The Svet declares that Russia has concentrated in Japanese waters twenty-two warships, carrying 360 guns and a large body of men. This fleet, it is added, with the French squadron, makes a total of thirty-seven warships, carrying 610 guns. Moreover, according to the paper, a Russian army of 20,000 men could occupy Jesso and take Japan in the flank should trouble arise.

YOKOHAMA, JAPAN, April 23.—It is officially denied that the Chinese customs, by the terms of the treaty of peace with Japan, are placed under Japanese control.

The stipulation says that on the payment of the first two installments of indemnity to be paid by China, Wei-Hai-Wei might be evacuated, provided China pledges her customs revenue in order to secure the payment of the balance due. This, it is added, is optional, and might never take effect. At present there is no intention of touching the customs revenues of China, much less placing them under the control of Japan.

NOW HAS THE RIGHT.

Japan May Make Tariffs on United States Goods.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23.—Japan's right to frame her own tariff rates on United States goods has now accrued under the terms of the new Japanese treaty with the United States, thirty days having expired since the exchange of ratifications. Minister Kurino of Japan says, however, that while the subject of a general tariff law has been considered in the Japanese Diet, he has not yet been informed of the enactment of a law. Under these circumstances, the Japan rate on United States goods will remain at 5 per cent ad valorem until the act is passed.

From other official sources it is learned that a new tariff law is not likely to be passed until Japan has concluded all her new treaties with European powers. It is stated that the new tariff will not be on the line of a high protective policy, but will be a revenue tariff. While Japan has many infant industries, it is said they are making phenomenal advancement. When the new tariff is framed it is understood that its most important features referring to the United States are likely to be as follows:

Kerosene oil, which is now the largest item of United States export to Japan, will probably remain at 5 per cent ad valorem. Flour, breadstuffs, canned goods and other domestic necessities will either remain at 5 per cent or be scaled down, as the Japanese policy is to cheapen the necessaries of life. Raw cotton, which is the third item of export, being sent in great quantities from the Southern States to Japan, is likely to go on the free list. Japan is anxious to get raw material for her flourishing cotton factories, which are turning out a product which competes, it is claimed, with the best cottons of the world. It is said that the freight rates to Japan are another factor which protects her industries.

THEOSOPHISTS DO NOT AGREE.

Annie Besant and Her Charge Against Mr. Judge.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 23.—A London dispatch says that Annie Besant is to reopen her charge against W. Q. Judge, the vice-president of the Theosophical Society, alleging that Mr. Judge has manufactured and distributed forged messages of the Mahatmas. Mr. Judge was seen by a reporter last night at the Theosophical Society rooms. He said: "Annie Besant wants to be president of the society, but cannot as long as I remain vice-president, for I am in line of succession when the present president shall no longer hold office. These charges that she brings are absurd. In the first place I never had the audacity to claim to receive those messages and, in the second, suppose I had claimed to receive them, who but the Mahatmas themselves could deny my claim? Suppose that I exhibited their signatures, where is Annie Besant to get the originals to prove that I have forged the names?"

STOLE A STAMP COLLECTION.

Sensation Caused by the Arrest of Society Physicians.

MONTREAL, QUEBEC, April 23.—Edgar Nelton, an American variety performer, has caused the arrest of Dr. Cameron, one of Montreal's society physicians, charging him with the theft of a $4000 stamp collection. Some months ago Nelton complained to the police that an unknown man pretending to be his friend had called at his rooms and stolen the stamps. At about the same time Dr. Cameron claimed to have been robbed in a similar manner by a man who called in his absence. Nelton now claims to have proof that the doctor sold some of the stamps belonging to his stamp collection. The arrest has caused a great sensation.

Overflow of the Dnieper.

LONDON, ENG., April 23.—A dispatch to the Standard from Odessa says the river Dnieper has overflowed its banks and flooded portions of the Governments of Kieff and Tiechernigoff. Many persons have been drowned and immense damage has been done to crops and property.

MRS. MACK'S EXTRADITION.

A Clear Case Made Out Against One Stamp Swindler.

HAMILTON, ONT., April 23.—The case against Mrs. Mack, whose extradition is asked for in connection with the counterfeit stamp swindle, was resumed to-day. The United States Attorney from New York was presented, also the Chief of the Secret Service Bureau at Washington.

On the evidence of Arthur Fish of this city, who was taken to Chicago to identify Morrison, and by the testimony of Captain Porter and Charles Felton, of Chicago, and others, it was shown that Mrs. Mack, the woman under arrest, and Mrs. McMillan of 26 Carroll street, Chicago, are one and the same. Also that George Morrison is C. O. Jones of Chicago.

The testimony of these and other witnesses showed that an engraving outfit, such as would be used for counterfeiting stamps, gummed paper, a perforating machine, etc., were discovered in a small room in Mrs. McMillan's residence in Chicago; that Morrison, alias Jones, and three other men were there constantly at work for weeks, and that the prisoners disappeared from there a month ago.

The express office clerks from Buffalo positively identified the prisoner as the woman who sent the package of counterfeit stamps to firms in Chicago, and one of the parties in that city who were duped by them told of his communications with the Hamilton concern. Two of the witnesses described how Mrs. McMillan arrived here on April 3 under the name of Mack and met Morrison as if they were perfect strangers.

This closed the case for the crown and Mr. Nesbitt, Q. C., for the defense, asked for an adjournment until Thursday to decide if he will offer any evidence for the prisoner. Mr. Greer, for the crown, argued that a prima-facie was all that was necessary and the defense could not call evidence, except to let the prisoner go into the box. Decision was reserved.

MEXICAN BANDITS SHOT.

Two of the Most Noted Cutthroats Put to Death in a Legal Manner.

At the First Volley They Fall Riddled With the Bullets of the Police.

GUADALAJARA, JALISCO, MEX., April 23.—The execution by shooting of the famous Jaliscan bandits, Feliciano Mariavos and Mauricio Rivera, early yesterday morning, attracted wide attention. Hope of reprieve by President Diaz was held by the lawyers and friends of the condemned until the night before the execution, when, the time of limitation having expired, the prisoners were ordered to prepare for death at sunrise. They spent most of the night either in praying to the images in the prison chapel, to which they were allowed access, or in pacing back and forth in their quarters. At 4:30 o'clock several priests arrived and took their confessions, remaining with them until the end.

At 5 o'clock Sub-Lieutenant Jose Nancarte arrived at the carcel with an escort of twenty gendarmes from the Jalisco State forces, and two minutes later filed out with the prisoners, who affectionately embraced their spiritual comforters. On taking leave of the priests the two bandits were placed in a kneeling position on the north side of the prison, and at the word of command were pierced with bullets from the double file of police, who fired in unison and with telling effect. The two men dropped dead, falling toward each other, after which "Tiros de gracia" were given in the chest and brain of the already dead men. The police, priests and others who had witnessed the spectacle then left and the relatives were admitted. After giving vent to their grief, the families of the executed outlaws replaced their regular clothing and bore away the bodies for burial.

Mariavos and Rivera were among the most desperate outlaws and bandits who ever operated in the coast country.

FRENCH STRIKERS VIOLENT.

Mobs Attack Cars and Omnibuses on the Streets of Paris.

PARIS, FRANCE, April 23.—The omnibus and tramway strikers are becoming violent. Several cars were overturned to-day and the windows of others were smashed. An excited mob of the strikers ended this afternoon in the men rushing out of the hall shouting, "Death to the blacklegs; overturn the cars."

The strikers then attacked the cars and omnibuses on the main boulevards and ill treated the drivers. The Republican Guards eventually dispersed the rioters, making several arrests.

Resigns His Portfolio.

OTTAWA, ONT., April 23.—Hon. J. C. Patterson, Minister of Militia in the present Government, has resigned his portfolio and will leave for California to-morrow. Friction between himself and Major-General Herbert is the cause of the resignation. Mr. Patterson has large interest in the Pacific State, and has announced that as long as Canada is "England's donkey engine" he will not live in the country.

Prince Adolph Sustained.

BERLIN, GERMANY, April 23.—A dispatch from Detmold, Lippe, states that the Diet of that principality has confirmed the regency of Prince Adolph of Schaumburg-Lippe pending a judicial settlement of the dispute regarding the succession.

Harrassing Non-Union Miners.

POMEROY, OHIO, April 23.—A messenger in a buggy dashed into town from Minersville at 1 A. M. and stated that the village was about to be burned by riotous strikers. Sheriff Titus went to the place single-handed to reconnoiter. Spies evidently notified the strikers of his approach, as they disappeared from the streets before his arrival. Last night's outbreak was caused by a report that eighteen non-union miners would go into the mine this morning. The strikers had a meeting and resolved to harrass the non-union men until they were forced to retreat.

WAR AGAINST HOVAS.

Several Minor Victories Won by Invading Troops.

FRANCE AND THE FRAY.

Natives Gallantly Defend the Tombs of Their Chiefs.

WALLER'S WORK AS A SPY.

By Means of Waving Colored Lanterns at Night the Movements of the French Made Known.

PARIS, FRANCE, April 23.—Official dispatches from Madagascar say the Hovas have gathered large forces along the main routes from Tamatave and Mojunga. Throughout the island posts with several hundred men stationed at each have been established.

A French gunboat has ascended the river Betsiboka and silenced a Hova battery at Mahabe. The enemy was driven out with a loss of eight killed.

Two cannon were captured. The population of the village gathered around the tombs of the chiefs in order to defend them, but on finding that the French respected the graves they yielded and asked protection from the Hovas, who had another camp of 3000 men at Maidane, on the other side of the river.

General Metzinger, with four companies of infantry and artillery, attacked Maidane on April 3 and routed the enemy, killing 100 and wounding many. The French loss was 35 wounded.

The Soir states that ex-American Consul John L. Waller, who was brought from Madagascar to Marseilles under arrest, acted as the medium between the Hovas and the English for the conveyance of orders for munitions and arms.

When France declared war against the Hovas, Waller, according to the Soir, acted as a spy at Mojunga, and by means of waving colored lanterns at night advised the Hovas of the movements of the French. This once nearly resulted in 600 French troops falling into the hands of the enemy.

Germany and the Tariff.

BERLIN, GERMANY, April 23.—The Reichstag reassembled to-day and discussed the customs tariff amendment bill. The motion of Baron von Stumm-Halberg (Conservative) to include a paragraph giving the Government full powers to impose additional duties as reprisals for hostile duties imposed by foreign States was adopted.

Count von Posadowski, Secretary of the Imperial Treasury, said the Federal Government approved this paragraph, while reserving the right to determine as occasion arose when to utilize the power.

Sir Charles to Gain Control.

LONDON, ENG., April 23.—In its financial article the Times says: The committee of the stockholders of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada has obtained 6000 proxies, representing £13,000,000 worth of stocks, favoring Sir Charles Rivers Wilson for the presidency of the company in succession of Sir Henry Tyler, whose re-election is opposed by the committee. With the securing of these proxies a majority for the committee's plans is assured.

Riot of Soldiers in Formosa.

OUT AT THE RACETRACK.

Another Day of Ruin and Disaster for Backers of Favorites.

TWO OUT OF SIX IN FRONT.

A Head-and-Head Finish in the First Race, Captured by Donna Carlotta.

Twelve bookmakers cut in yesterday.

Nate Hill, the jockey, leaves to-night for St. Louis.

Starter H. D. Brown went on to Memphis at the conclusion of the Los Angeles meeting.

The Lenoke filly, by Surinam-Lenoke, ran in the colors of Jack Follansbee of society fame.

I do not wonder that Frank Van Ness does not name the Experiment gelding. He is certainly a great horse to experiment with.

Colonel Dan Burns got whipsawed in the fifth race. He first backed Silver, and returning to the ring placed a few good-sized wagers on Mary S.

Mr. Boots says that Installator was laid up with the influenza this past winter and could hardly be expected to show up better at his first start.

Senator Mahoney was beaten by two votes in the first race. His owner, Zeke Abrahams, stood to win two or three Legislatures on the Fellowcharm gelding.

Al Stanford has turned his horse Haymarket out at pasturage, and leaves to-night for Chicago, where he will ride John Brenock's jumpers this summer.

Ed Purser was down wrong on Mamie Scott and Sympathetic's Last, but more than retrieved his losses on the day by plugging Malo Diablo all around the ring.

Bob Isom's ride on the Ledette filly was a fine exhibition of know-nothingism. It is about time he learned that a light two-year-old cannot stand the bat for a quarter of a mile and not be expected to swerve.

Ed Purser thought he was pulling Nick Hall's feathers when the lanky man from Illinois laid him 2 to 1 against Seraphin for a hundred. Nick may yet turn out to be as good a thing at the game as Barney Schrieber was once supposed to be.

Young Piggott gives promise of becoming a very clever jockey. His finish on Donna Carlotta would have done credit to a much more experienced rider. Piggott's first mount was on one of Mr. Macdonough's horses at Monmouth Park a couple of years ago, when he finished fourth.

Ben Benjamin, the popular turf writer of the Examiner, returned from Los Angeles yesterday, having completed his labors as secretary of the Fiesta race meeting. While not a great success financially, Ben says the racing was high class, which to a degree offset the light attendance. Morven in particular, he says, showed himself to be a star at the shorter distance.

The market at the Bay District yesterday opened strong, with a slight tendency to nervousness. At the call, precisely at 1:30 o'clock, there was considerable activity and bustle in the pit and some sharp exchanges took place. The opening quotations were but slightly different from the day preceding, but, as the day advanced, the Bay District Bottled-up Company's stock advanced to $168 and there was a flutter of excitement in the market. Later, when the suspension of Dope, Form & Co. was announced, the pit was in a very turbulent state that bordered on the panicky as business was suspended at the close of the day. As many are short on the market there will be some merry hustling among the bulls and bears at the call to-day.

The talent as usual set the pins up in the alley yesterday and the accommodating bookies bowled them over. Donna Carlotta in the opening event and honest little Arnette in the fourth race were the only two favorites that proved true to the trust imposed in them.

The bookmakers did a fairly good business, even if not troubled with any very weighty bets. Silver to a great extent has taken the place of gold, and most of the greenbacks were sent on to New York by Dave Gideon and Pittsburg Phil.

The two-year-olds opened up proceedings. W. O'B. Macdonough's Donna Carlotta was sent to the post a 11 to 5 favorite, but the play was by no means confined to the daughter of St. Carlo, as Spry Lark, Queen, Virgie A and Eventide were all well backed.

After running fairly well bunched into the stretch the race narrowed down to a duel between Donna Carlotta, Eventide and Senator Mahoney, in which the first named was successful by a wink, with Eventide second, a head in front of Senator Mahoney.

Centurion disposed of the very ordinary lot pitted against him in the second race, over six furlongs, in a very polished manner, going to the post 3 to 1, and leading from start to finish. Tobey, a 10 to 1 shot, was second, a head away, three parts of a length in front of Favory.

A short six-furlong run, light welter-weights, was next in order. From twos Seraphin was quickly backed to 7 to 5. The balance of the play was divided up between the Experiment gelding and Ledette filly.

Seraphin, followed by Experiment gelding, headed the field all the way and fought it out to the wire. Seraphin, who had been leading, was passed the last eighth by Experiment gelding and beaten out a long neck. Ledette filly, poorly ridden, was third.

The fourth race, full six furlongs, was stepped off in a light and fantastic manner by Billy Donathan's Arnette. The dainty little Midlothian Miss, starting a 7 to 5 favorite, led all the way and won, pulled up to a walk, in 1:15¼. In a drive Duchess of Milpitas beat Venus, backed from 10 to 5 to 1, a nose for the place.

The next favorite, however, was not such a decided success. The race, a six-furlong run also, was considered about right for Lady Jane, and she went to the post 11 to 5. Later a strong play on Mary S sent her to the post at about the same figure. Sympathetic's Last was also the medium of some tall playing. The owner of Ricardo, a poor man, endeavored with ill success to get some of the moneyed men to back his horse, and he went to the post 8 to 1.

The Judge and Lady Jane headed the field until nearing the stretch, when Ricardo's colors began looming up. Straightened for home the latter took the lead, and won galloping by two lengths from Nellie G. Lady Jane finished third.

After a long let-up Installator was made a 1 to 2 favorite for the last race on the card at seven furlongs, but receded in the betting, and even money was later obtainable. He closed a 7 to 10 chance. After leading to the turn down the backstretch Malo Diablo headed him and cantered in front the entire way, winning by two lengths from Mr. Jingle, the second choice. Inkerman was an ordinary third. The favorite was beaten before turning into the stretch, but as he is one of the best horses in Mr. Boot's string, the race can be taken as no criterion of what he is capable of accomplishing, and he will undoubtedly be heard from later on.

At a meeting called for the purpose on April 18 there was organized a cycling annex to the California Camera Club, to be known as the Camera Club Cyclists. Membership will be confined to the active, associate and subscribing members of the California Camera Club.

The first meeting of the new organization will be held at the clubrooms, Thursday evening, May 2. The initial "run" of the club is called for next Sunday, the 28th inst., to Haywards from Fruitvale. Among those who have caught the prevailing cycling craze are many lady photographers. For the benefit of these it is considerately announced that "a slow pace will be set and maintained throughout the entire run." Lunch will be partaken of at Haywards. The suggestion is made that only hand cameras be used on this, the first outing of the club cyclists. The arrangements for the excursion are in the hands of J. J. B. Argenti, captain; W. E. Goodrum, first lieutenant, and Harry B. Hosmer, second lieutenant.

There is yet another jolly time in store for the Camera Club boys, in which their friends of either sex who may be nonmembers will be allowed to participate. Captain Leale of the tug Caroline, an old friend of theirs, has extended an invitation to them for next Saturday to cruise round the bay. The steamer will leave Jackson-street wharf at 10:15 A. M. and will return about 5 P. M. A dark room will be fitted up on the boat for the purposes of plate and film changing. Lunch will be eaten on board, and as there is a large fleet of ships on the bay at present some good pictures will undoubtedly be secured. Marine scenery possesses great attractions for the amateur. The light is quick—almost too quick, in fact—and not easily controlled. Slow plates, combined with rapid shutters and small stops, are necessities.

A new process paper has made its appearance in the city, and is being largely used by amateurs. It has a matt surface with a platinum tone, but can also be worked for the warm colors admired by some. Pure whites are mentioned as a good feature of the new paper.

Miss Green is mainly devoting her attention to interiors and flashlights, both difficult branches of the art to pursue successfully. Those who have seen her work, however, say it is well worthy of exhibition.

Harry B. Hosmer is experimenting with the Thornton-Picard focal-plane shutter, much to the surprise of his friends, who are acquainted with his prejudice for things English. He says, however, that for certain classes of work other shutters are "not in it." The arrangement is what is known as a "blind" one, and Edgar Pickard, the inventor of the apparatus, recently exhibited at a London photographic society negatives taken at a speed of 1-500 of a second, timed by electricity. As Mr. Hosmer is one of the crack photographers of the United States, good results should follow his use of the instrument, which he has attached to an 8x10 box.

William S. Hochstadter is continuing with portrait work, of which he is an ardent student. He proposes to experiment upon celerite paper, which gives brown, black and sepia tones. He will report results later.

H. T. Hemming is having a box made under the superintendence of H. B. Hosmer. The great feature of the production will be that the lens will be made to do double duty. It will be made to focus and to act as a finder. Up to the present this has been done by the somewhat clumsy principle of a double camera, with two lenses of identical focus. It is a fact well known in optics that these are very difficult to obtain, and the new camera will, therefore, be hailed with interest, as it utilizes the "reflector" idea.

AMONG THE WHEELMEN.

The Olympics Will Banquet the Eastern Racers To-Night.

The Imperial Cycling Club's Election—Is Osen Again Suspended?

The Olympic Club Wheelmen will banquet the departing Eastern racers to-night at a local hostelry. The Falcon team, consisting of Ziegler, Coulter and Harbottle, with trainers Tellam and Foster, leave for the East Thursday. The Columbia team, Bald and Macdonald, with Trainer Asa Windle, will ride at Oakland on May 1, and possibly at Santa Rosa on May 8, 9 and 10. They will then go to Los Angeles; thence to Denver and the East, arriving at Waltham about May 30.

The Imperial Cycling Club held a meeting last night and elected the following eleven directors: J. S. Egan, E. C. Douglas, C. H. Dannals, A. D. Stealey, J. J. McDonald, H. W. Eisert, J. F. Burns, W. W. Earle, W. Wilson, W. H. Tooker and J. H. Millert. They will meet shortly and elect officers and arrange for the incorporation of the club. William T. Johnson was elected captain.

W. A. Burke and C. M. Castleman, the Los Angeles racers, will try for records at San Jose next Saturday, the former for short distances and the latter for the twenty-five mile record.

A rumor was current yesterday to the effect that Oscar Osen was again suspended by the league. No reason was assigned and the local racing board has not been notified.

Roma E. Dow, a fast class A rider of San Jose, has been notified that he will be put into class B unless he can satisfactorily explain how he happens to be on the Ariel team.

A big cycling parade will be held in Oakland next Tuesday night, and races the following day for the benefit of Fabiola Hospital. All the principal riders who rode at San Jose last week will compete.

W. J. Edwards has announced his permanent retirement from the track, as he wishes to pursue his studies. The Rambler team has been disbanded, with the exception of Foster and Jones. Wells will not go east, as has been reported.

At a meeting called for the purpose, held Thursday evening, April 18, 1895, there was perfected the organization of a cycling annex to the California Camera Club, to be known as the Camera Club Cyclists.

The membership will be confined to the active, associate and subscribing members of the California Camera Club.

There is no initation fee and the dues are 25 cents a month, payable quarterly, in advance.

Every member of the California Camera Club, whether owning a wheel or not, is cordially invited to join the annex.

The officers of the Camera Club Cyclists are Charles A. Adams, president; Mrs. A. G. McFarland, vice-president; C. Cormack, secretary; H. C. Cantwell, treasurer; J. J. B. Argenti, captain; W. E. Goodrum and H. B. Hosmer, lieutenants.

A POINT DECIDED.

Judge Seawell Overrules a Demurrer in the Spreckels Case.

Judge Seawell yesterday overruled a demurrer interposed by the Oceanic Steamship Company to the action brought by C. A. Spreckels to compel the directors of the company to hold an annual meeting. The issue was raised that the writ should not have been issued against the directors of the company, but the shareholders. Judge Seawell held that as amended the complaint showed a ground of action, and overruling the demurrer gave the defendants five days in which to answer.

DEATH MASKS IN ADVANCE.

Advice of a Sculptor Given on the Subject.

"The famous man, if he expects to have his memory perpetuated in a monument after his death," said a well-known sculptor, "should either leave orders with his family or his executor for a death mask or else should have such photographs made of himself as will enable the sculptor to reproduce his head with something akin to realism. Photographs are most deceptive, anyway, but if he will have an exact profile and an exact full face made the sculptor will be able to make a fairly faithful likeness. Not one prominent man out of ten ever has two such pictures. Usually the celebrity has all of his pictures made from one pose, partly because a certain pose is favorable to him and partly because a number of poses are not so likely as one to place his face firmly on the minds of the public. In consequence the sculptor is placed at the greatest disadvantage. Although he may make his bust look like the subject from one point of view—the photographer's point of view—when the friends of the subject see it all around—now a form and not a picture—they declare that it does not reesmble the original at all," says the New York Press.

"A death mask costs anywhere from $10 to $25, and certainly anybody who expects that statues will be erected in his honor by future generations can afford that. It is much more common to have a death mask taken now than formerly. But it is generally his friends and not the great man himself who orders one. The death masks of Lincoln and Napoleon have preserved exactly for us the features of these two immortals. Without them we should always have been in the dark as to the real shape of their heads."

How to Dodge the Microbe.

A philosopher has been saying that the main discovery of modern times is that man was made for the microbe. The two elementary principles in connection with it appear to be, first, those things that are wholesome communicate disease; secondly, those things that are unwholesome cause disease. So air, water, milk, butter, oysters, mussels, watercress, foreign fruit and even the harmless, pleasing kiss are all capable of conveying infection.

Moreover, cabs, dogs, cushions in railway carriages, shaving at barber-shops, clothes from the tailors, washing from the laundry, bank notes, books, glasses at restaurants, mud on one's clothes or other mediums for the distribution of disease. Civilized man, then, may only expect to live an average term of life by continuous immersion in boiling water, accompanied by absolute isolation. Beyond that, whatever he eats, drinks, wears or touches should be boiled before he comes in close contact with them. It is remarkable that our predecessors thrived, despite the eternal, though, at the time unascertained laws of science. Is civilization a failure? Perhaps not; but the good die young and the tough citizen lives to commit crimes and bring civilization to disgrace.—New Orleans Picayune.

IT WAS NOT ST. HUBERT.

He Had No Connection With the Affair at Mountain View.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY AGAIN.

The San Jose Deputy Sheriffs Wrong in Saying He Was Saunders.

Captain Chamon de St. Hubert of 1206 O'Farrell street returned Monday from Los Angeles. He is greatly annoyed that his name should have been connected with a mysterious and not very creditable affair that took place near Mountain View on the 11th inst.

The story, which was published extensively by the city and coast papers, was in brief to this effect: A man registered at a hotel at Mountain View under the name of W. Saunders, 1206 O'Farrell street, San Francisco. He went into the country to Mr. Heney's place, where he was met by two men who claimed to be officers with a warrant for his arrest.

Saunders was handcuffed and taken into Wagner's barn by his captors. When Wagner went into the barn a little later Saunders and the other men had gone. The statement was published on the strength of assertions by the San Jose Deputy Sheriffs, who made an investigation, that Saunders and Captain Hubert were one and the same person, and that their mysterious actions were to perpetrate a fraud upon somebody.

Captain Hubert last evening explained all of his movements before and after the affair of Saunders and the two men. He said:

On Tuesday morning, April 9, I sailed by the steamer Santa Rosa for Los Angeles, where I arrived on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. On Sunday, the 7th, I was at Mountain View at about 10 o'clock. I hired a buggy from the stable. I went to the Heney vineyard, when, after testing the wine, I returned to Mountain View, put up the team and paid the owner $1 50.

I was then conducted to the Delmas vineyard by Mr. Delmas' coachman in his carriage. After transacting some business I was driven back to town by the same coachman and took the 4 P. M. train for San Francisco, arriving at 6 P. M.

I know nothing whatever of the alleged outrage committed on Saunders.

At the time Saunders was said to have been assaulted by two men I was on the ocean on my way to Los Angeles. I don't know this man Saunders nor any one in the affair as was published in the newspapers. My daughter accompanied me on my trip to Los Angeles and back.

When I returned on last Monday morning I found my family greatly distressed on account of the false statements that had been published concerning me.

My wife telegraphed for me to return to my home and refute the unjust and unfounded charges.

Captain Hubert has lived for the past fifteen years in San Jose and San Francisco. During the past six years he has considered this city as his home. Nearly all of his life he has followed the wine business, and is considered by the business community as one of its most reputable merchants.

He is at a loss to understand how his name became mixed up in any such affair as that which occurred in Santa Clara County. "In one report it is stated that Saunders registered at the hotel in Mountain View, giving his address as 1206 O'Farrell street, San Francisco. I did not register when I went to the hotel," said Captain Hubert.

"I do not know of any enemies I may have in Santa Clara County who would furnish the press with such information. The newspapers were sadly imposed upon by some one and I will not rest until I have reached the bottom facts."

A HERO OF FRENCH CULTURE.

M. Bertrand of the Paris Academy of Science Honored.

It is a singular fact that the Paris Academy of Science, which was established in 1666 on the pattern of the London Royal Institution, founded in 1660 by Charles II, is governed under quite different principles. In London the chairman is nominated for his lifetime, and the secretaries are appointed every year. In Paris a new member is passed every year through the chair and the secretaries are styled perpetual, says the London Graphic.

One of the secretaries now in office is M. Joseph Bertrand, a celebrated writer and scientist, who was nominated a member of the Academy in 1856 and a perpetual secretary in 1874. His scientific life seems destined to cover an extraordinary space of time. He exhibited such a precocity of intellect that at the age of 11 he passed successfully his examination for admittance as a pupil of the Polytechnic School; his real admission was postponed up to 16 only in compliance with the regulations.

Now, at the age of 72, he is giving daily proofs of the youth of his mind and the excellence of his health. As showing the variety of his faculties and occupations it is sufficient to state that in 1884 he was nominated, almost unopposed, a member of the Academie Francaise.

M. Bertrand, who is one of the greatest leaders of French culture, has just been the hero of an interesting ceremony. After the common routine of the weekly meetings of the Academy had been proceeded with, M. Darboux, a clever analyst and a Sarbonne professor, rose. He explained that the pupils and admirers of M. Bertrand had raised a public fund for presenting him with a gold medal in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the first lecture delivered by him to the pupils of the Polytechnic School.

The speaker then moved from his place, and, proceeding toward the chair, handed to M. Bertrand—whose seat is on the left of the chairman—a valuable medal bearing his portrait. The likeness is wonderfully good, a fact which is due to the skill of M. Chaplain, a member of the Academy of Beaux Arts, a medalist to whom France is indebted for an almost incredible number of sculptural commemorations of scientific or political events. M. Bertrand returned thanks in a few sentences, in which he tried ineffectually to conceal his profound emotion, and the whole assemblage broke into a burst of applause.

AMERICAN BARDLETS.

What an English Critic Says of American Poetry-Makers.

With "Transatlantic Bardlets" as his headline a writer prefaces some rather savage criticism of several books of verse recently published in America with following lively remarks, says the London Review:

They are uncommonly like the English poetlings, these transatlantic bardlets, but there are more of them. This is not because the States are less poetical than the mother country, but because they have more people. Moreover, "culture" is generally held in high esteem there, and to appear in print is an undoubted mark of having obtained it—just as a university degree is a proof among the English middle classes of its proud possessor's right to be regarded as a scholar and a gentleman.

"But if the authorship of a book is a certificate of taste and reading, it becomes a diploma in honors when that book consists of metrical matter. Now about 75 per cent of moderately educated persons can write lines which sometimes scan, often rhyme, and occasionally make sense, and a painfully large proportion of these are impelled to establish their characters in the eyes of their neighbors by the publication of these so-called verses. A little money or the power of deluding a publisher's reader, a simple tribe, is all that is needed. It must be added that at times the "poems" are a genuine trade success, as are in England, for instance, the innocent maunderings of Sir Edwin Arnold and Mr. Lewis Morris—a fact which encourages scores, nay, hundreds of other ambitious and avaricious rhymesters to emulate the lucky men.

"In the States, too, they have their dear little cliques of mutual admirers, like our fair brotherhood of the Rhymers' Club and the Bodley Head, who generously praise one another's songs—which they read (or neglect to read) in presentation copies—and they thus maintain one another's spirit or a little butter. And then, of course, there are always one's aunts, and sisters, and wives, and that sort of thing. There are more of these in the United States than here; hence there is more minor poetry."

Small Loss of Life.

The close of the war between China and Japan, now apparently at hand, makes an estimate of the loss of life quite interesting. Mr. Matsu, secretary of the Japanese Legation in Washington, has made a calculation which shows that the Japanese have had 912 killed and 2061 wounded. The Chinese loss is about 8000, not including the wounded, but the fact is that the reports in the dispatches regarding the casualties to the Chinese are not reliable, and they probably really lost twice as many as Mr. Matsu has figured out, says the Washington Post. The loss on both sides, however, is small, considering that the war extended over eight months. The Chinese were running most of the time, otherwise the results, so far as their armies are concerned, would have been far more disastrous.

She Reasoned It Out.

There is a very clever small girl in England who reasons out a great many things for herself, and who cannot be deceived, as many other small girls are, by things that are told them "for fun." Having been told by one of her aunts that the moon was made of green cheese, she immediately sought out her grandfather, to whom she said: "Aunt J. says the moon is made out of green cheese, but I don't believe it."

"And why not?" asked her grandfather.

"Because I've been reading in the Bible, and it proves the moon ain't made of green cheese, because the moon was made before the cows was."—Harper's Young People.

THEO. DURRANT IS AGAIN BEFORE THE BAR.

Trying to Show That the Police Have Been Overzealous.

BERKELEY'S BLOODY COAT

The Woman With Whom It Was Left Still Thinks It Was the Prisoner's.

MEETING OF THE STUDENTS.

Many of Them Think Durrant Attended His Class—The Lights in the Church.

The center of interest in the double murder has shifted from the church on Bartlett street to the Police Court, where Durrant passed the second day of his preliminary examination yesterday. The desecrated shrine is practically left to its gruesome self, and only strangers in the city go to the Mission to gaze at the tall belfry in which Blanche Lamont's body was found on that Easter morning that will be remembered with a chill of horror by dwellers in this city. Men, women and children pass the structure while the sun is shining, but after nightfall they seem to prefer the other side of the street

The evidence against Durrant, given piecemeal in the papers, is being told in the court, and among those in whom it apparently produces the least mental perturbation is the prisoner himself. He is an enigma, a monster of crime and depravity or the most cruelly wronged man in the United States to-day.

The police say that the chain of evidence that binds the prisoner is complete. The public is not so confident, but the police doubtless know more about the case than they have told, and it is said have evidence which they will withhold until the trial in the Superior Court.

The bloody coat found in Berkeley is still a cause of excitement in the University town, but there is after all little or nothing to show that the garment was Durrant's.

NEW EVIDENCE.

Second Day's Proceedings in Durrant's Preliminary Examination.

There was no apparent abatement of the interest taken in the Durrant case when the doors of Judge Conlan's court were thrown open yesterday morning for the second day's proceedings on the preliminary hearing.

The same curious, eager crowd surged and jostled in the corridors, waiting to catch a glimpse of the prisoner, and the same morbid throng besieged the officers at the doors of the courtroom to gain admission to the interior.

As on the first day, the spectators within the judicial, and to many sacred, precincts of Judge Conlan's court were largely composed of women, and hundreds of their less fortunate sisters loitered round the entrances to the hall and mingled with the jostling throng in the corridors.

All were anxious to get sight of the prisoner as he was being escorted from his cell in the City Prison to the rack of his mental torture and to hear the oft-repeated testimony bearing on his presumptuous guilt. Mrs. Williamson, the young religious fanatic, whose presence in the court the day before created such a commotion, was seen in the vicinity of the hall, but the police took good care that she did not again gain access to the interior and seek to execute any more of her alleged divine commissions.

The prisoner made his entrance quietly at a few minutes before 11 o'clock and took a seat between his attorneys, General Dickinson and Eugene Deuprey. The pallor which has shown itself in his face ever since his incarceration had almost disappeared and a slight suggestion of color was noticeable in his countenance as it lighted up with something akin to animation as he was engaged by those about him in frequent conversation. His eyes, too, had lost much of their cold indifference of the previous day and at times threw flitting shadows of animation over his strange face. Otherwise he was the same cool, collected individual with which the public has become so well acquainted.

A change was also noticeable yesterday in his attitude toward his attorneys. He seems to be getting better acquainted with the debonair Dickinson and the astute and learned Deuprey. When to the casual observer his interest in the proceedings might appear to be feigned or lukewarm, he was in fact following the testimony closely, and several times during the examination it was noticed that he consulted with his attorneys and was apparently coaching them as to facts within his own knowledge bearing on the testimony elicited from certain witnesses.

For the first time during the examination the defense yesterday gave a hint as to the policy to be carried out in building up its case.

As will be seen by a perusal of the testimony, the defense, in its cross-examination of witnesses for the people, sought to elicit information which should have a direct bearing on the theory that the police have been overzealous in discovering evidence for the prosecution and in the strengthening of doubting and uncertain witnesses. This was demonstrated on several occasions during the proceedings yesterday by the stubborn objection of the attorneys for the defense to any patchwork evidence stitched into coherent wholeness by the prosecution and the police.

At 10:45 o'clock the leading figures in the trial were all in court and the examination was reopened.

The first witness to take the stand was Harry Partridge, a medical student, residing at 727 Shotwell street.

"Do you know Theodore Durrant?" asked Mr. Barnes.

"Yes, sir."

"Do you sit at lectures with him?"

"I did; yes, sir."

"On the 8th of April what did you do for Durrant?"

"At Dr. Hirschfelder's lecture on that day I answered for Durrant."

"What is the object of the rollcall?"

"To see whether the students are all there?"

"Why did you answer his name for him?"

"Because he requested me to."

"What did he say to you when he asked you to answer his name for him?"

"We object," said Mr. Dickinson.

"Objection overruled," replied the court.

"I do not remember his exact words. He simply asked me to answer 'present' for him."

"What time was the clinic held?"

"At 9:30 o'clock on the morning of the 8th."

"When was the second clinic held?"

"Between the hours of 10:30 and 11:30."

"Was Durrant present at either of those clinics?"

"He was not."

After some further questions the witness was turned over to the defense, but Durrant's counsel declined to put any questions and moved that all his testimony be stricken out.

The motion was denied.

Charles A. Dukes, another medical student, was next called.

"Did you meet Durrant on the afternoon of April 12?"

"Yes sir."

"Where was that?"

"I saw him as I was passing the ferry depot while with a friend named Dodge."

"Did you hold any conversation with him?"

"I did; yes, sir."

"What did he say?"

"I don't know that. I can't remember his exact words, but he spoke something about waiting for his companions in the N. G. C. Signal Corps and their proposed trip to Mount Diablo."

"Did he say anything about the clinic lectures that day—Friday, the 12th?"

"Yes, sir; he asked if we had been there. He did not say anything about not being there himself. He asked us, however, if we would answer for him at the lectures the next day, as he would be away on the work of the signal corps."

On cross-examination, Mr. Dickinson asked only one question as to the train witness had taken to Oakland.

Witness replied that Dodge and himself had taken the 3:30 boat.

Clarence Dodge, another medical student, was called.

"You were with Student Dukes at the Oakland ferry on Friday afternoon, April 12?"

"I was; yes, sir."

"Did you see Durrant at that time?"

"I did, sir."

"What did he say to you?"

"He spoke about school work and asked us if we had attended the lectures that day, and wanted us to answer for him at Dr. Plumber's lecture the following day."

Witness' evidence in all respects corroborated that of the preceding witness.

Miss Emma Struven was the next witness to take the stand. She said she resided at 212 Twenty-sixth street.

"On the evening of Friday, April 12, were you in the neighborhoood of Mission and Twenty-second streets?"

"Yes, sir; between 9 and 9:30 o'clock."

"How far is your home from the corner of Twenty-second and Mission streets?"

"About five blocks."

"What happened there?"

"I was with my sister and the Misses Fitzpatrick, when a man came up the street and spoke to my sister and Maggie Fitzpatrick."

"Did you hear what he said?"

"No, sir; the other girls came up and told us he had—"

"Wait one minute," interposed the defense.

"Did you hear him speak to them yourself?" asked the court.

"No, sir."

"Let that be stricken out, then," responded the court.

"You saw the man, though, did you not?" continued Prosecuting Attorney Wakeman.

"Yes, sir; I saw his back. I could not get a look at his face."

"Could you recognize how he was dressed?"

"I think so."

Witness was shown Durrant's overcoat and hat and she said it looked like the coat and hat worn by the man who addressed her companions.

On cross-examination witness was subjected to a close interrogatory by Attorney Dickinson.

"You say you did not hear what the man said to your companions?"

"No, sir."

"You did not see his face?"

"No, sir."

"Have you talked to any one about this case?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you conversed with any one of the officers or detectives?"

"Yes, sir; with Detective Cody."

"When was that?"

"Last Sunday evening."

"Where was that?"

"In a room in this building."

"What was done there?"

"I was taken into another room and Mr. Durrant was brought in to see if I could identify him."

"Did Durrant have this coat and hat on when the detective brought him into the room where you were?"

"Yes, sir. That is the same coat and the same hat he had on when they brought him in."

"Did you say anything to Mr. Cody before you met him in the Chief's office last Sunday night?"

"No, sir."

"Was there any statement made to you as to why you were wanted to come down to the City Hall?"

"Yes, sir. Detective Cody was at the house in the afternoon and left word that I should come down here in the evening."

"Had you gone into the other room next to the Chief's office when the other girls arrived?"

"Yes, sir. I was in the second room when the other girls arrived."

"Who suggested to you that you see if you could recognize Durrant from the descriptions of his appearance you had read in the papers?"

"Detective Cody."

"Were the other young ladies present when Durrant was brought in with his coat and hat on?"

"Yes, sir. One of the girls suggested after we had looked at his face that his back be turned to us and that his collar be turned up, to see if we could not recognize him better."

On the redirect, Mr. Barnes asked if any one had visited her last night.

"Yes, sir," she replied. "Detective Cody came there."

"Did any one else call there?"

"Yes, sir; some lawyer, but I was not at home."

"Did he leave a card or did you learn who he was?"

This was objected to on the ground that the witness was not there and could answer only from hearsay.

The objection was sustained.

Edna Lucille Turner of 2602 Howard street was the next witness on the stand.

"Do you know the defendant, Theodore Durrant?" asked Mr. Barnes.

"Yes, sir; I have known him for nearly a year."

"Are you a member of the Emmanuel Baptist Church?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are you a member of the Young People's Society?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you ever walk home with Durrant or did he ever walk home with you from church?"

The defense objected on the ground that the question did not have any relation to the matter under investigation.

The objection was overruled.

"Did he ever walk home with you from church at any time prior to the 12th of April?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you ever walk home with him when anything out of the usual occurred?"

Another objection was made and overruled.

"You may answer," said the court.

"I do not know that anything unusual occurred," responded the witness, speaking slowly and thoughtfully, "except that he spoke to me in a manner that I did not approve."

"What did he say to you?" continued Mr. Barnes.

Again an objection, and Mr. Dickinson explained his reasons therefor, the same ruling was made.

"He spoke to me about an examination," said the witness. "He asked me if I had ever had an examination made and asked if I would let him examine me. I told him I had not and did not care to have anything of the kind."

"Did he say anything to you about a place where such an examination could be made by him?"

"Yes, sir. He suggested the church—Emmanuel Baptist Church."

"That was an examination of a private and personal nature, was it not?"

"Yes, sir; and I told him that my people could attend to all such matters."

"Can you remember at about what time the conversation took place?"

"No, sir, I cannot. It was several months ago."

On conclusion of the direct examination the defense moved to strike out all the witness' testimony.

The motion was denied.

Attorney Dickinson then took the witness.

"Where were you when the conversation with Durrant took place?"

"When we were returning from church."

"Were you in the habit of associating with Durrant after that conversation occurred?"

"Yes, sir. I spoke to him in a manner that I thought would not attract attention and make people believe that anything had taken place between Durrant and myself."

"Were you as intimate with him as before?"

"I do not think I felt as free with him after that."

"Did you ever speak to any one about the talk Durrant had with you?"

"Yes, sir; I spoke to my aunt, Mrs. Dr. Vogel, the day that Miss Williams' body was found."

"Did you ever speak to any one else about your talk with Durrant?"

"To my cousin, Mr. Vogel, and to two or three ladies who were in the room with my aunt and myself when we happened to be conversing on the subject."

"Did you ever talk to Mr. Durrant about the examination incident?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ever converse with Durrant prior to the time you say he wanted to make an examination relative to your condition; did you ever answer any questions he asked you concerning your physicial condition?"

"On paper, yes, sir."

"How long before was that?"

"I cannot say exactly."

"What do you mean by saying you answered questions on paper?"

"I mean that he gave me a sheet of paper on which he had written a number of questions and that I wrote the answers under them and handed the sheet back to him."

"Is this your writing, Miss Turner?" said General Dickinson, handing the witness a sheet of common notepaper closely written on both sides.

"Hold on, there; let's see that before the witness answers," shouted Attorney Barnes.

"We have a right to get the witness' identification of her writing without your seeing it," responded General Dickinson. "If we introduce it in evidence then you can see it and not before."

"Yes, that is my writing," said Miss Turner, after a close and slow scrutiny of the paper.

It was handed back to the defendant's leading counsel and the prosecution's curiosity had to go unsatisfied for the nonce.

With the dismissal of the last witness from the stand the court adjourned until 2 P. M.

The soldierly form of the white-haired captain of police detectives, Lees, was a conspicuous figure at the afternoon session. Primed with suggestions for Barnes and Wakeman, he occupied a seat with the prosecution, and throughout the hearing illuminated legal lore with practical hints drawn from a fund of experience such as few police officials possess.

Considerable new evidence was offered during the afternoon.

The proceedings were opened by the calling of J. E. Hodgdon, freight claim adjuster of the Southern Pacific company, of 109 Bartlett street, to the stand.

"Where were you on the evening of April 12, between 8 and 9 o'clock?

"I was about my place. Soon after 8 o'clock I came out of my gate and started for the cigar-store on Valencia street. I saw a young couple standing near my gate. I thought the young man was taking liberties with the girl, and my first inclination was to go up and strike him. But as I got closer to them I saw that he had hold of her arm and was apparently coaxing the girl to go somewhere."

"Could you recognize the man you saw there?"

"No, sir."

"Could you recognize the way the man was dressed?"

"I think I could. He had on a roundish hat; I could not say whether it was a stiff or a soft hat. If it was a soft hat it was not indented in the top. The overcoat he wore was long."

"Was it like this?" showing him Durrant's coat.

"It looked much like it, but I could not be certain. I saw Durrant with the coat on in the Chief's office last night."

"Did you think you recognized Durrant when he had the coat on last night as being the one you saw with the girl near your gate?"

"Well, the young man I saw last night (Durrant) displayed too much shirtfront—that is, the young man I saw near my gate did not show as much shirtfront. He also seemed to me to be three inches shorter than the man near my gate."

"Do you think you ever saw the man before?"

"Yes, I think I have seen him, but I could not swear to it."

In order to illustrate the condition of his mind with regard to Durrant's identity witness went on to say, with permission of the defense, of course:

"If the paymaster should come to me and say a man named Durrant had a warrant for $25 to cash and that it was the man whom I had seen near my gate, and I was asked if I could pay the same on the strength of such a recognition, I should be compelled to say no."

George W. Burges, a medical student of Cooper College, residing at 725½ Grove street, was next called.

"Do you know whether or not," asked the prosecution, "Theodore Durrant was at the medical clinic on Friday, April 12?"

"That was Dr. Hirschfelder's clinic?"

"Yes, sir."

"Was he at Dr. Ellinwood's clinic the same day?"

"He was not."

Frank Sademan, the janitor of Emmanuel Baptist Church, was called. He was examined by Prosecuting Attorney Wakeman.

"Do you know the defendant, Theodore Durrant?" was asked.

"I have known him a little over two years."

"On Friday, April 12, were you anywhere in the vicinity of the ferries?"

"I was."

"Did you see Durrant there?"

"I did."

"What did you or he say?"

"I casually remarked about his being there. He said he had heard they had found a clew as to the whereabouts of Blanche Lamont and that he was interested in finding out all he could. He did did not think there was much in it, but he was anxious to see all there was in it. He said also he did not think the detective was doing anything. He (the detective) wanted $50 before doing anything. Before parting Durrant remarked that he was waiting for some one else."

"Did he say who that other person was?"

"No, he did not."

"What else did he say?"

"In speaking about the detective Durrant said the detective did not seem to take much interest in the case of Miss Lamont, as he had not even called to see him (Durrant) and find out what he knew about the case. Durrant also said he had called on the detective to see if he could be of any assistance."

"Have you seen Mr. Durrant about the church very often?"

"Yes, sir. I have seen him in the library with George King fixing up the books, and I also saw him there fixing the electric lights."

"Did Durrant carry a key to the church?"

"I do not know for certain of my own knowledge."

"Do you have a key to the church?"

"I do; yes, sir."

"Do you carry a key to the library?"

"I did until a new lock was put on the library door."

"Do you know who put that new lock on the library door?"

"I would not be certain, but I think I saw Mr. Durrant and Mr. King putting on the lock."

"You did not have a key to the library after the new lock was put on?"

"I did not."

"Do you know who had keys to the new lock?"

"I could not say, but I think those who put the lock on had the keys."

"Do you remember the last time you saw Mr. Durrant in the church?"

Before replying the witness drew a card from his pocket and was in the act of consulting the memoranda contained therein. General Dickinson asked to see the card. When the defense got hold of the card the witness was asked when and why he had jotted down the dates.

He said he had put down the dates in the room next the Police Court the day before.

"Is your memory not as good to-day as it was then," was asked by General Dickinson.

"Yes, but I had to figure back and get the exact dates from the calendar."

The defense kept the card and the prosecution proceeded with the examination.

"Do you knew whether on any of the occasions when you were in the church alone with Durrant that his entrance preceded yours, or was subsequently?"

"I could not say, sir."

On the cross-examination General Dickinson again reverted to the circumstances attending the entries on the memorandum card.

The witness said he had had no assistance in making out the card except the calendar.

James Sademan, the son of the former witness, was next called.

"Were you in the Emmanuel Baptist Church on Saturday, April 13?"

"Yes, sir; between the hours of 9 and 9:30 o'clock in the morning.

"Did you notice anything peculiar in the library when you got there?"

"Yes, sir; the door to the library had been broken open.

"Was the door open?"

"About an inch."

"Who was in the church when you got there?"

"Dr. Gibson; he was in his study."

"How did you enter the church that morning?"

"Through the side door."

"Was the door open?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you know who carries keys to that side door?"

"I think Durrant carried a key to the church."

"Did you ever see Durrant in the church alone?"

"I do not know that I ever saw him there alone; I have seen him there with George King engaged in fixing up the books."

"Did you ever see anybody else alone in the church besides Dr. Gibson, George King and Theodore Durrant?"

"No, sir."

"Did you discover the body of Minnie Williams in the church Saturday morning?"

"No, sir; some young ladies who were decorating the church found the body. It was in the closet off the library."

The only question asked by the defense on the cross-examination was as to whether the witness had made any purchases downtown on the Friday preceding the Saturday on which the body of Minnie Williams was discovered.

The witness replied in the affirmative.

Miss Annie Moisant of 2708 Central avenue, Alameda, was the next witness on the stand.

"Did you know Miss Williams?"

"I knew her by sight."

"Did you see her recently?"

"Two weeks ago Saturday I saw her in company with a young man?"

"Where did you see them?"

"The young lady was standing in the doorway of Mrs. Morgan's house on Versailles avenue, and the young man stood on the porch."

"Could you identify the young man?"

"Not positively."

"Do you know Mr. Durrant?"

"I do not."

"Were you shown Mr. Durrant yesterday?"

"Yes, sir; it was downstairs in some office."

"How does he resemble the young man you saw talking with Miss Williams?"

"He looks much like him."

Cross-examination—"Were you in the courtroom yesterday?" asked General Dickinson.

"I was, sir."

"Whom were you with?"

"With my friend, Mr. McKean. He pointed out Mr. Durrant to me."

"Who had you go downstairs?"

"I think it was Detective Gibson."

"Who sent for you in Alameda?"

"Some officer in Alameda. I did not know his name."

"Whom did you meet when you came here in answer to that summons?"

"Detective Gibson."

"Whom were you with when you saw Miss Williams and the young man standing in the doorway?"

"Miss McKay."

"Was there anything special that attracted your attention?"

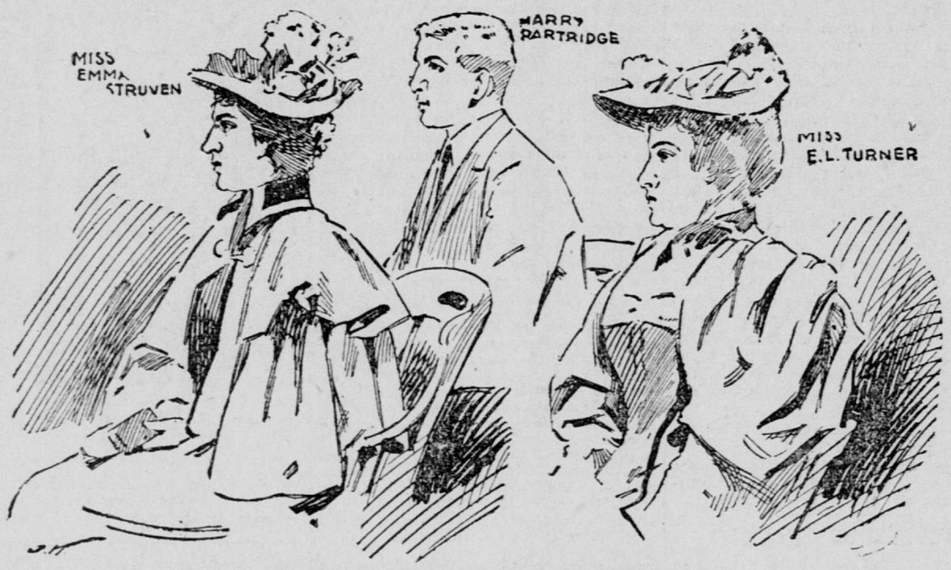
"I would not swear positively, but I think he is the same man."

On the cross-examination witness said she had seen the face of the young man who was on the porch with Miss Williams and that she thought Durrant looked very much like him.

She was asked the same questions as those propounded to the preceding witness concerning her intercourse with the detectives and the way in which she came to be a witness in the case. Her answers were similar and sometimes identical with those given by her companion, who was on the stand before her.

The court adjourned till 10 o'clock this morning.

The prosecution has about twenty more witnesses to put on, and this, it is understood, will conclude the preliminary hearing, the defense reserving its testimony for the Superior Court, where a stubborn legal battle will be fought.



SCENE AT THE TRIAL OF DURRANT.

[Sketched by a "Call" artist.]

LIGHTS EXPLAINED.

Workmen Busy in the Church While Miss Lamont's Body Was There.

There has been considerable gossip among the congregation of Emmanuel Baptist Church about some mysterious workmen who were seen in the building between the dates of the disappearance of Blanche Lamont and the murder of Marian Williams.

People dwelling in the neighborhood, as well as church members, have positively affirmed that they saw lights in Emmanuel Church at night, as though the men were working late. They also saw ladders being carried into the church and men coming and going during the daytime. Some even declared that they remembered having seen the workmen's lights through the slats of the belfry after dark.

Lately people have been wondering whether these men were repairing the gas or the electric wires. The fact that they were doing either would give some apparent color to Durrant's statement that gas and wires were out of order on the Wednesday that Blanche Lamont disappeared.

No one in the neighborhood of the chapel seems to know anything more of the workmen than that they saw them about the 8th or 9th inst.

P. D. Code, when asked yesterday for information on the matter, said he was certain no extensive repairing had been done, but he remembered having heard something about more gas-burners for the church, and J. Kraker, superintendent of the Faultless Gas-saver Company, on Powell street, admitted somewhat reluctantly that it was his men who had been seen in Emmanuel Church.

"I have had instructions to say very little about the matter till the trial," he said. "We are not keeping back evidence, but merely reserving it, at the request both of the police and Durrant's friends, till called upon to speak at the trial. I may say, however, that our men did work in the church for several days between the dates of the two murders. It was their lights that were seen in the building, but they never went into the belfry.

"Our employes were engaged in putting in gas-savers, and in order to do that it was necessary to cut the electric wires. Just to show how little the electrician who said the wires had not been touched for months knew about the matter I may say that not only were they severed, but that the night Marian Williams was murdered the wires were down here at our office and were not replaced in the church till Saturday night."

J. Kraker added that he was unable to say whether the gas was out of order. "We had nothing to do with repairs," he said. "Our business was only to put on the savers."

THAT BLOODY COAT.

Miss Boillot Thinks She Can Identify Durrant as the Man Who Left It.

The blood-stained coat which was brought to light in Berkeley Monday afternoon and which was at first thought to be the property of Theodore Durrant has caused a great sensation in the little town across the bay. There is, however, considerable difficulty in determining the day upon which the package containing it was found. Three different dates have been mentioned in connection with the incident, and it seems almost impossible to connect the garment with either of the Emmanuel Church tragedies.

Monday afternoon last Mrs. Jane Boillot, who lives at the corner of College avenue and Parker street in Berkeley, took to Deputy Constable Murray a paper package which had been left in her possession by a stranger. The man had approached her house on a run. When near by he stopped, removed his coat and wrapped it in paper. He then stepped to the door and asked permission to leave the package for a few hours. This being granted he placed it in a coalbin in the cellar and started on a run for the foothills. As the stranger did not return, Mrs. Boillot opened the bundle to find, if possible, a clew to its ownership. Perceiving the bloodstains, she became alarmed and handed the garment to the officers.

Miss Agnes Boillot, of whom the unknown asked permission to leave his bundle, says that he resembled very much the published likeness of Mr. Durrant, except that his hair was shorter. She believes she could identify him.

The coat is a double-breasted frock of black corkscrew or diagonal. It is made up as a "Prince Albert" and is in good condition. There have been two small patches inserted in the lining of the back and the sleeves have been relined. The garment was made by O. W. Nordwell of this city, and originally had the owner's name on a strip of cloth sewed inside the inner pocket. This the stitching shows to have been recently removed.

The blood stains extend across the shoulders and down both sides of the front of the garment. An attempt had been made to remove them with some cleansing solution, but without success. There is also blood on the left sleeve, and the under portions of the cuffs are shiny, as though the wearer was accustomed to work at a desk. The chest measurement of the garment is thirty-eight inches.

Any value which might attach to Miss Boillot's identification of Durrant as the owner of the bloody coat is largely lost because of her inability to determine the date of his visit to her home. When Miss Boillot first told the story to the officers she stated that the coat was left at her house on the morning of last Saturday week. Later she stated that the occurrence happened about two weeks ago, and to-day when interviewed at her home she fixed upon the Friday before March 23 as the proper d te.

Mrs. King, sister to Deputy Town Marshal Ben Calhoun, says that Mrs. Boillot told her about the coat and its blood stains on February 26. She locates the date by a charge on her books for groceries against Mrs. Boillot, who, she says, usually paid cash. Mr. Leon Boillot, the husband and father, who is an artist on the staff of the Chronicle, thinks that the date must be still more remote.

The coat is now in the possession of the Berkeley officers, who are awaiting orders from Chief Crowley. Dr. Hubert Rowell has examined the stains and pronounces them human blood.

Mr. Nordwell says he never made a coat for Theodore Durrant or for any one bearing that surname.

ANSWERED THE ROLL

Durant's Classmates Confident He Was Present April 3 Last.

Durrant will unquestionably find not a little consolation in the fact that a majority of his classmates—seniors of the Cooper Medical College—stoutly affirm that he was present at the lecture delivered by Dr. W. F. Cheney on the afternoon of the day on which the murdered girl Blanche Lamont mysteriously disappeared. This was Wednesday, April 3, between the hours of 3:30 and 4:30 P. M.

It will be remembered that Miss Minnie Edwards, Miss Alice Pleasant and Miss M. Lanigan swore positively to having seen Durrant with Miss Lamont at 3 o'clock on that afternoon, and further that they saw the couple leave the car together. The rollbook of Dr. Cheney shows that Durrant was present when the lecture began at 3:30, though it is quite possible that some member of the class might, at the request of Durrant, have answered to his name.

To settle the much vexed question of Durrant's presence in the lecture-room on that—to Miss Lamont—fatal day, the senior class of the Cooper Medical College held a meeting yesterday morning. Dr. Cheney presided over the meeting, recounting to the young medical students the awful predicament of their companion, calling upon them all to make any statement that tended to throw the least light on Durrant's movements on that particular day. If any of them had answered to Durrant's name when the roll was called the doctor asked that he come forward and say so, and he would agree to keep secret the name of the person who had done this apparently prodigious service for the accused young man.

There are seventy-six young men in the class, and the majority of them expressed the opinion that Durrant was present at the lecture delivered by Dr. Cheney on April 3, and consequently he must have answered to his own name when the roll was called. A very significant fact, to say the least of it, is that not one of the young men would say that he had answered for Durrant when the roll was called.

"It is practically impossible for me to tell whether Durrant was present on the 3d of April or not," said Dr. Cheney yesterday. "The roll-book shows that he was, though this is not positive proof, because it is quite a common thing for the young gentlemen to answer for each other. I asked the class if any of their number had answered to Durrant's name, and they denied having done so. Personally, I think Durrant was present at the lecture, though this is merely an opinion based upon my past knowledge of the young man.

"The best way to settle this disputed question is to find Durrant's notebook, and if it contains notes of the lecture I should say that would clearly establish his presence on that particular afternoon. To-day after the meeting a student came to me and said that Durrant had asked him on the 10th of April for a few notes on the lecture of April 3; but I do not consider this important, as it is a common thing for the students to ask each other questions on the preceding lecture during the half hour that intervenes between the 2 o'clock lecture and my own. Durrant thought he would be called upon that day to give some explanation of the preceding lecture and simply wanted to refresh his memory. At least that is the way I view the circumstance."

EMMANUEL CHURCH.

Ex-Supervisor Taber Writes Its History and Makes an Appeal.

To the Editor of the Call: As many untrue things have been circulated, in the papers and out of them, about Emmanuel Baptist Church, I feel that it is the duty of some one who is interested in its welfare and knows something of its history to speak for it and in a measure refute some of the slanderous stories.

A little of its history first:

It was started on Twenty-second street, between Mission and Howard, about twenty-five years ago, by a small band of earnest workers. I had just moved to the Mission, and by the invitation of a friend my wife and I attended, finding the people and pastor (Rev. Dr. Buckbee) so kind and agreeable that we continued, and have ever felt it a church home, where our little ones have all been brought up in its Sunday-school.

In 1886 it was thought best to sell the property on Twenty-second street, as we had a chance to do so to good advantage, and buy one in a more suitable place as we thought. We sold and bought the corner of Twenty-third and Guerrero streets. In a short time and before anything had been done toward building we had an offer for the new lot much in advance of the price paid, and as we needed considerably more money it was thought advisable to look around for another lot, when the present site was found, bargained for and the Twenty-third-street lot sold. Subscriptions were solicited and the present building erected, improvements and grounds costing over $30,000.

Although small in numbers, and with no wealthy members, starting in 1888 with an empty treasury, the little society completed its fine building, and had a comparatively small debt. A better and more earnest band of workers could not be found, and now, just when the skies were brightening, the congregation growing under the leadership of the Rev. Mr. Gibson, this terrible blow has come. It staggers the stoutest hearts among us, and it does seem to me that the papers and every intelligent person, who believes in the elevation of the human race and all those agencies which help to raise mankind on to a higher plane should lend their aid in every possible way to sustain this church now in its great hour of trial, and not condemn it as a whole for the act of a fiend, whether that fiend is one who has been numbered as one of the flock, or an outsider.

Now, why should men say, "Burn the church down," or "Tear it down?" Would that bring back our girls? Would it better things in any way? I think not. Better let our passions cool and act wisely.

It has been said that there is or was a bedroom and bed in the church. This is untrue. Mr. Cressey, a former pastor, was a widower, had a son, his salary was small, and in order to help him along the Ladies' Aid Society, I think, bought a bedlounge for the study in order that he and his son could sleep there and so save room rent. They were the only persons that ever slept within the walls of Emmanuel Baptist Church. Mr. Gibson has a room with friends on Valencia street.

It has also been said that there are a large number of keys to the church and that people have been seen going in and out of the building at all hours. Now, as to the number of keys, as near as I can ascertain, there are three to the front and four to the side door. This is not very strange when you take into consideration the way church work is divided up. For instance, we have a pastor, board of trustees, Ladies' Aid Society, Christian Endeavor (composed of the young people), choir and janitor, the latter not getting sufficient salary to attend all meetings, and therefore he cannot open and close the church at all times.

In regard to people going in and out at "all hours," it is not so. Many evenings through the month there are meetings of the different branches spoken of, socials and entertainments, such as dinners, lectures and fairs. For some of these decorations of the rooms and pulpit are required. This work has been done in the daytime usually, but all has been in seasonable hours. I will add that some persons not belonging to the church have broken into the yard adjoining. I know it has been impossible to keep the gate in repair.

In the foregoing I have endeavared, in my plain, humble way, to state facts as I know them, believing it to be for the interest not only of Emmanuel Baptist Church, but every one who loves to help make mankind nobler and better. A friend of the church,

C. W. TABER.

Did Not See Durrant.

Among those that have been mentioned as having seen Durrant at Emmanuel Church on the night of the Williams murder were the Misses Sturges, who live near the edifice. All reports connecting these ladies with the case in any way are without foundation.

ASSUMED ANOTHER NAME.

The Mystery Surrounding Miss Nettie Dowd Cleared at Last.

The True Name of the Girl Is Bertha Passion—A Queer Story.

Among the inmates of the Rescue Home at 26 Hill street is a girl 17 years of age who succeeded in mystifying the police for several days. She was arrested last week in a questionable resort on Sixth etreet, and when asked her name said that it was Nettie Dowd and that she had been abducted from her home in Monterey by a woman known as Annie Jackson.

The girl's story was published in the CALL on the following day, and on Monday two residents of Monterey appeared and declared that the girl was an impostor. The visitors, who know the real Nettie Dowd well, called at the Rescue Home to interview the girl and set at rest the suspicions they entertained. They saw the alleged Nettie Dowd and immediately declared that she was not the girl she claimed to be.

"Nettie Dowd," said one of these gentlemen yesterday, "is not over 13 years of age and this girl is 17 at least. Besides, Nettie is at home and has not been abducted. Her parents are well connected and wealthy, and the notoriety they have suffered by reason of the fraud practiced by this unknown girl has pained them exceedingly. I am at a loss to understand why this girl has assumed the name of Nettie Dowd. It is certain she has lived at Monterey, but I am unable to place her definitely."

The officers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, when informed of the facts in the case, began an investigation. The alleged Nettie Dowd was interriewed, and when asked to explain why she was masquerading under an assumed name declared that it was not true. She insisted that she was the genuine Dowd girl and reiterated the story of her abduction which has been published.

The fact that the girl is of Spanish nativity disproved her claim, and yesterday she was recognized as Bertha Passion, a girl from Monterey, for whom a search has been long in progress. She was well acquainted with the Dowd family, and when arrested the idea came to her of assuming the name of Mr. Dowd's daughter. In this manner the identity of the girl was concealed, but it did not prevent her being booked for an institution for girls.

The alleged Annie Jackson with whom Bertha Passion came to this city from Monterey was found in a lodging-house on Third street by Officer McMurray yesterday. She was recognized as Mary Egan, whose parents reside at 220 Fifteenth street. She denies that she had any relations with the alleged Dowd girl or that she came to this city with her.

Behold the gang!

These are the Solid Eight!

Can they really run the town?

What think you of the insects?

Br'er Colnon is doing Mr. A. Page Brown.

Pledge-breakers have no future in Republicanism.

The Solid Eight are spotted, but they did it themselves.

Perhaps Scully is with the combine and perhaps he isn't.

The small potato in office feels bigger than a whole metropolis.

A silurian stands up in a community like a sore thumb in church.

The way for honest men to oppose the Solid Eight is to consolidate.

When bad men are tolerated in office, good government is condemned.

Good motives are never hidden, but the Solid Eight keep theirs in the dark.

Men who throw shame to the wind will have to reap a whirlwind of disgrace.

The welfare of the City demands the constant attention of every good citizen.

The man who fights under the flag of Republicanism must fight for the flag.

The spoils system is now in the exact position most inviting to the public kick.

Public sentiment in favor of good government is expanding too rapidly to be bound up by a ring.

It appears the Solid Eight have hopes of organizing a spoils party that will enable them to run the town.

The Solid Eight are the cobblestones of the political highway, but they are pretty well covered with bitumen.

Turning good men out of office to make way for incompetent office-seekers is a sure sign of political corruption.

Oakland was palpitating visibly yesterday when the Native Sons and Native Daughters were parading together.

There is always good reason for suspecting the honesty of an official who carries his motive like a concealed weapon.

A club might prove as useful in eliminating some objectionable residents of the City as in increasing the population.

The Supervisor who exchanges his honor for a job-lot clerkship probably thinks he was very smart to get something for nothing.

San Francisco is going forward in the path of right progress, and those who attempt to check her career will be trampled under foot.

The key to Oakland which Mayor Davie presented to the Native Sons was just large enough to fit the big lock of Oakland's hospitality.

Republican Supervisors King, Hughes, Dunker, Benjamin and Morgenstern may have forgotten their campaign pledges, but the people have not.

The Native Sons have captured Oakland, and if they next proceed to put salt on the tail of California's prosperity they will have captured a larger prize.

In these balmy times of sinecures and official insouciance it is delicious to observe that the Police Court clerks of San Francisco have voluntarily decided to discharge their duties.

Henry Clay was once accused of an unholy alliance in politics, but the combination of five Republicans and three Democrats on the Board of Supervisors is more like mud than Clay.

When the Native Sons shall have acquired native sons of their own they will want the youngsters to find a magnificent State which the intelligence, energy and patriotism of their fathers had produced.

Ferry Architect A. Page Brown has had a novel experience. He has encountered an editor on the Harbor Commission who has acquired the uncomfortable habit of finding out things and then publishing them.

In making heavy advance drafts on the Harbor Commissioners for his commission as architect of the ferry building, A. Page Brown displayed an industry that might have been better employed in seeing that the foundation was properly conducted.

By deciding to remain in existence the Traffic Association gives assurance that California's transportation will be guarded in every way, and we hope that it will prove to be the central body for the aid and promotion of railroads all over the State.

In its devotion to great National principles, the Republican party does not overlook municipal affairs, but demands of local officials as much fidelity to good government and to the interests of the people, as it expects of any man who represents it at Washington.

In another column we publish the emphatic contradiction of Captain Chamon de St. Hubert of all the stories connecting him with the recent robbery at Mountain View. Captain Hubert claims to have witnesses to prove he was on board a steamer going from San Francisco to Los Angeles at the time the robbery occurred, and is justly indignant at the charges made against him. His statement has all the evidences of accuracy and should be given full notice by all papers that published the reports against him.

INVESTIGATION NEEDED.

Recent transactions in the Board of Supervisors, beginning with an attempt to pass an ordinance involving the worst kind of a street-paving job and culminating on Monday in a vote to discharge without cause seven of the best officials in the City in order to make patronage for a combination of Supervisors, constitute such offenses against good government and political morality as to justly arouse the indignation of all right-thinking men.

These transactions call for investigation and scrutiny. They are a serious menace to the welfare of the City. They give evidence of the existence of a corrupt and corrupting force in the body politic that threatens to seriously interfere with the healthy growth and progress of the municipality. There are important issues now confronting San Francisco which must be dealt with in the near future. There are large debts due to merchants which must be paid. There are streets and sewers to be improved. There are complex problems of finance to be solved, and, finally, there is the increasing popular demand for a more rapid and well-ordered municipal development along all lines of civic life, to be met and satisfied by the City Government.

These things cannot be achieved without the assurance of honesty and intelligence on the part of a majority of the Board of Supervisors. If, therefore, such transactions as those which have so recently taken place are to be tolerated it is doubtful if we can expect any of these improvements to be accomplished, even if they are undertaken. This is a consideration that gives to the whole City, and to all classes of its people, a vital interest in the origin, the motives and the intentions of the "combine." It is this that renders an investigation into their conduct so important that it may well engage the attention of all organizations designed to promote good government, and might well employ the energies of the Grand Jury itself.

The CALL in its earnest desire to promote the welfare of San Francisco cannot overlook the obstacle which this unholy alliance of Republicans and Democrats in the Board of Supervisors has placed in the way of progress. In order to show the full infamy of the proceedings we publish in another column this morning a statement of the platform pledges made by the Republicans and the record of some of the men who on that platform succeeded in obtaining office. These pledges have been grossly violated by the members of the combine, and it is certain they did not violate them for nothing. It is an easy question to ask why these men have broken their solemn promises to the people, but the answer is not easily given. For that reason we call for an investigation. There must be some way to assure an honest government in San Francisco and the best time to begin the work is right now.

THE "COMBINE."

King, Hughes, Dunker, Benjamin and Morganstern are Republican Supervisors, who, in combination with Democratic Supervisors Hirsch, Wagner and Scully, have undertaken to manage the affairs of the City and County of San Francisco.

Seven of these men voted on Monday to discharge seven of the most competent officials of the City in order to make places for their relatives or for henchmen of the bosses. Scully did not vote on the question. He was present in body, but preferred to be absent-minded when the vote was taken. Perhaps this was because he was in the dark on the deal; perhaps it was because he is naturally shadowy, or perhaps he intends to repent.

These 'perhapses' are not used unadvisedly. Mr. Scully, we are assured, really intends to forsake the combine and be true hereafter to the welfare of the City and to the people. We give him the benefit of the doubt, despite his vote on the bitumen ordinance and other questions, and will be glad to see him act in such a way on the right side that his motive will no longer be a perhaps.

Consider the characters and abilities of the eight men, including Scully, or the seven men without him, who have proposed to themselves the task of running the City. We call it a task, though they doubtless call it a job, for being aware they are not equal to the performance of tasks, while having great confidence in their ability to manipulate jobs, they may have a preference for that term. It is a task, nevertheless, and they will find its burdens heavy and its difficulties numerous before they get through with it.

In comparison with the magnitude of the undertaking, the abilities of the men who have proposed it to themselves are ridiculous. Even if Scully stays with them and a combination of bosses assist from the outside, the undertaking is none the less beyond their power, notwithstanding the lever of official patronage which has been placed in their hands. A pigmy on a pyramid is still a pigmy, and a little-brained man is never more easily sized up by the public than when he stands in some official position and puffing himself to the full with vanity proposes in Bombastes style to challenge all the human race.

It behooves the Republican members of the combination to remember how they came to be elected to the office. It was not because of any individual greatness they possessed that the office came to them. They were elected because the Republican convention nominated them, the Republican organization worked for them, and the Republican press indorsed them and commended them to the people. They owe everything, therefore, to the Republican party. They were nominated because they were believed by the convention to be honest men who could be relied upon to keep the pledges of the platform, and they were supported and elected solely on that ground. If, therefore, they kick the platform from beneath them, they will leave themselves swinging in the wind with nothing to stand on and nothing to suspend them before the gaze of the public save the rope of the boss which their own folly has put around their necks.

THE NATIVE SONS.

The annual convention of the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West, now in session at Oakland, recalls to mind the fact that this is the most powerful and virile social organization in California. In general terms, while being a social body with minor benevolent features, the deeper inspiration of it is pride in California and a patriotic regard for its welfare. It thus has a very serious aspect that is likely to be overlooked in the imposing ceremonies with which it celebrates the 9th of September as the day on which California was admitted to the Union. The annual convention now being held is for the purpose of transacting the ordinary business of the order, such as the election of grand officers, inquiry into the state and progress of the order, and the like.

The organization, necessarily, is composed of young men, few being past 40 years of age. Its members number many thousands, and there is a remarkably strong bond of fellowship uniting them. Being young men, for the most part sons of the hardy, strong and adventurous pioneers of California, and reared under conditions most favorable for the production of a vigorous, aggressive and enthusiastic manhood, they are a unique body, capable of accomplishing more, perhaps, than any other body of men in the State. No form of religion being a bar to membership, politics being tabooed, and the only qualifications for joining being upright conduct and a patriotic love for California, it is evident that nothing stands in the way of its enormous power for accomplishing good.

In what way is this power being exerted? Although politics is eschewed, there seems to be nothing to prevent these young men for upholding the dignity and guarding the fair name of their State by punishing political miscreants who have betrayed a public trust. If, however, it should be argued that their energies might be best employed along lines the pursuit of which would arouse no dissension, then clearly the material development of the State presents an enticing opportunity.

It is not claimed that this can be done under the scheme of general organization as it exists at present, or that it would be wise or beneficial for the order to introduce any feature which might tend to overshadow the purely social one that now makes it so pleasant, wholesome and useful a society. But while the present features might be strictly adhered to by the central body, it would seem that an offshoot from it might be constituted that would produce wonderful results for the good of the State.

From one end of California to the other there is a spontaneous awakening to the duty of developing the State, and in this task all sectional jealousies have been buried and the people stand together. To what extent the influence of the Native Sons has been exerted to accomplish this result, if to any, we are not informed; and yet unmistakably they are the men above all others to take the lead in making California what it ought to be. No doubt their influence as individuals is being earnestly exerted in the great movement which is now going forward, but as a body they have assumed a responsibility that seems to make the exercise of this patriotic energy in a collective capacity a positive duty. And such organized effort, under the sanction of the central body, would accomplish vastly more than the scattered and unorganized efforts of the individual members.

The suggestions are submitted for the earnest consideration of this admirable body of young men, and there is no better time for such consideration than the annual convention of the order.

THE FUTURE REALIZED.

The visiting stranger who is curious to see what the whole of rural California will be when it shall have been brought nearly to its highest development should visit that part of Alameda County known as Eden Township, the principal towns of which are Haywards and San Leandro. It is only an hour's run from San Francisco by ferry and steam-train, or a half hour's run from Oakland by the electric cars. A visit to this section will show most of those strange conditions which make rural life in California so different from that in any other part of the United States. It is instructive to enumerate these peculiarities, particularly as Haywards is not on the itinerary of tourists and unfortunately is not regarded as one of the "sights" of California.

The first observable fact is that it is a fruit-growing region, and next that the fruit is mostly of those choice kinds that are grown only in California. Then it will be discovered that the orchards are very small in comparison with Eastern farms. Next it will be seen that the houses are immeasurably handsomer and better kept than in any other rural district in the world; that every house has its handsome lawn, carefully tended flowers and superior outbuildings and fences. In short, all the external evidences indicate not only prosperity, but a degree of refinement and pride unknown anywhere else under the sun in rural communities.

It is true that Haywards is a large town of several thousand residents, but as they all live and thrive directly or indirectly upon the products of the soil of that immediate vicinity, it is a town representing rural life in California in its finest form. Hence the object lesson is all the more valuable, as it demonstrates the fact that when all the fertile sections of the State are as well settled and developed as this, such beautiful towns as Haywards, each supported by the soil resources of a section very restricted as to size, will exist almost within sight of each other on every hand.

The stranger will find in this section about Haywards roads finer than the streets of most cities, and will observe that they are kept in perfect order and free from dust and mud. The orchards will show a care in their treatment that can be found nowhere else.

If he looks closer into the lives of the people, he will find them in every moral and intellectual respect vastly superior to other rural people that he has ever seen or heard of. The men and women dress in the best styles, the schools are taught by the ablest educators, the numerous churches have handsome structures and accomplished clergymen, and reading clubs, literary societies, frequent parties and picnics, public halls and libraries, all show that we have something surprisingly different from anything to which the stranger is familiar.

The visitor, if he is intelligent, will discover that two main causes have contributed to the making of this alluring picture. They are the small size of the orchards and the generous profits of the industry. These conditions are peculiar to California. By living close together people are benefited in an infinite variety of ways, and from the profits of their efforts they are enabled to provide themselves with those wholesome comforts and luxuries which expand the mind and elevate the soul. This is why the rural population of Eden Township is so immeasurably superior to that of the Eastern parts of the United States. It is in this effect upon men and women that the noblest achievements of a residence in rural California are seen, and as it is most vital that this should be understood in the task of making the world acquainted with the inducements which California offers to homeseekers, there is no better way of teaching the lesson than by informing strangers of the eloquent state of affairs existing in Eden Township.

CO-OPERATING WORKMEN.

The scheme proposed by E. J. Jeffries for organizing laborers into a corporation deserves serious attention. He proposes that laborers shall incorporate under the laws of the State; that each laborer shall have but one share, and that the par value of the share shall be 1 cent; that central quarters, where they may be found when wanted and where they may eat and sleep, shall be established; that perhaps each member should be required to pay 10 cents a month into a general fund, to be used in the purchase of land on which the unemployed may find work. This is the general outline of the scheme.

There seems to be much merit in it. In the first place organization means strength, and organization under the corporation laws of the State secures protection and prevents a dangerous exercise of organized power. Further, membership in a corporation lends to a man a certain wholesome sense of responsibility and gives him a stronger interest in the welfare of his fellow-members than the ordinary benevolent society can inspire. Still further, the method of government is much stricter and the organization correspondingly stronger.

The first great difficulty that will be encountered in such corporations is the demagogues who so well understand the art of imposing on the credulity of workingmen. Most likely these will be the organizers and will secure the lion's share of the benefits. Besides these, and even more dangerous, are the bright and showy cranks and incapables who have impossible schemes to benefit the poor.

It would seem that this is a great opportunity for the strong, wealthy, clear-headed business men and capitalists of the community to take the lead in promoting these corporations, in guarding them from wreck through rascality or incompetency, and in promoting the interests of the workingmen in the wisest and most profitable ways. They would bring to such management the sagacity upon which their own success was founded and their understanding of business could be employed as an example for the poor men who so greatly need such instruction.

A far greater benefit still would be the immediate bringing together, in the pursuit of common interests, of the two great social classes who are constantly drifting further and further apart and in the widening separation of whom lies the most formidable menace to the safety of our country. Even from the point of view of mere selfishness wealthy and successful men can find a strong reason for undertaking so noble a work. The direct effect on the workingmen would be to improve them in all excellent ways; to make them more efficient, law-abiding and thrifty and a bulwark instead of a menace to the accumulation of wealth.

UP TO DATE IDEAS.

To the Editor of the San Francisco Call: Now that the yachting season is about to open a little advice to our amateur yachtsmen may not be out of place. During the season the cry of "Man overboard" is often heard when the boys are out on the bay, and oftentimes the man that is overboard remains there whether he be a good swimmer or not, and all for the want of an experienced man at the wheel—one that would know the right thing to do and do that thing at the right time.

Here is some advice that I trust may be of service in case the cry "Man overboard" should be raised this season during some of these cruises.

We will suppose the craft to be on the port tack with sheets close aboard, or otherwise. A man has fallen overboard and is instantly seen astern. The man at the wheel should put his helm hard up, wear his vessel around, being careful to take in the slack of the main sheet as the vessel throws her stern up in the wind, so as to avoid the strain on the main boom as well as the main sheet when she jibes over, still keeping his helm hard up all the time, and his vessel will fetch up in the same place and will describe a perfect circle and by so doing the man overboard will be rescued in the shortest time possible.

By performing this evolution his vessel does not lose the wind during the whole time, therefore the boat is more readily handled, because she retains her speed, and in fact her speed is increased, because the wind is abaft most of the time.

Now, in the other case, where the vessel is put in stays, which is in most cases done when a man is overboard; or, I may say, when the helm is put hard down, the vessel, of course, comes up in the eye of the wind, the sails flap for awhile, and if she should be slow in stays it will take her some time to fill away again and get her headway sufficiently to handle her quickly, and the first thing you know the man that is overboard is there to stay—he has disappeared for ever, and all because the man at the wheel did not understand his business.

You will observe that this evolution is much more difficult to perform and takes much more time than the former. In this instance you have to come in stays, and by so doing you lose your wind, and the sheets have to be boarded on the other tack; secondly, your vessel has to fill away again, and, thirdly, you have to jibe over on the port tack again, and all before the man that is overboard can be rescued, if he is not drowned before this; and, again, the distance the vessel has traveled is a great deal more, and time in this case is valuable to the man overboard.

AROUND THE CORRIDORS.

"By George," exclaimed General J. H. Mathewson in the Palace Hotel yesterday, "it does beat the Dutch how people are beginning to steal. All over the country we hear of some one walking off to Canada with a bank surplus or else the pillagers are looting the mints. Now, how do you account for that steal in the Carson mint? I can't understand it. They have made several arrests I hear, but do you know I think they have got the wrong men?"

"Whom do suspect, general?" inquired a gentleman who stood near.

"Don't suspect anybody. I have quit suspecting people. I find that people you don't suspect are generally the worst. It is the most ridiculous thing in the world to go into the theory business. The town—in fact the whole country—seems to have gone wild over some theory or other.

"Now, there must be some cause for the stealing which seems to be in vogue. Is it on account of the poverty, or is it the natural outcome of civilization? I can remember when, in the early days, you could leave a hatful of gold nuggets on the front porch and nobody would ever dream of making way with them. Yes, that's true. During the gold excitement in this State none of the miners ever knew what it was to put their gold in a bank or a safe deposit. There was no need of such precaution. People realized that honor was above price and took good care to possess it."

"But, general," said the argumentative man, "was that not on account of the punishment prescribed?"

"Well, yes," answered the general, pulling his beard, "they did take them out and start a hanging bee once in a while. However it is true of the miner that he was and still is honest. If he had not been, the country we are now living in would never had such a solid foundation upon which we stand. They were the master spirits of their time; the founders of a great State. They were the master spirits of their time—the founders of a great State. They were the men who braved—"

"Come, come, general. Let's get back to the origin of stealing. It is a topic worth discussing, and its appalling popularity deserves attention."

"It seems to be getting all the attention it deserves, and some of our best citizens have rehearsed until they are letter perfect. You need not bother your head about the lack of attention it is receiving. The populace will see to it that the industry does not die out altogether. Really I cannot understand it. It is the worst I ever saw. It is beyond me. What is the world coming to, anyhow?"

C. J. Craycroft, the newly elected Mayor of Fresno, has a queer story to tell of his political elevation: "I never saw such a complex tangle in my life as our last election was," he explained. "The Democrats and Populists fused and put up a combination ticket. As a result some of the disgruntled Democrats who had no use for Populists voted for Republicans, who were opposed to bosses, and the fight was everybody's up to the last minute, when it was found that men from all parties had been elected.

"There were two Republicans, myself and another, and two Democrats elected to be City Trustees. Joseph Spinney was a holdover. He had been elected as a Republican, but had worked with the Populist-Democrats during the election. Thinking they had him, the Democrats thought to make assurance doubly sure by electing him Mayor. This they did with their two votes and his. Mr. Spinney then resigned and nominated a Democrat.

"On the first ballot there were two votes for the Democrat and two for me. Spinney's vote was blank. The next ballot was the same. On the third ballot Spinney's vote read, 'C. J. Craycroft,' and I was made Mayor.

"The Democrats were wrathy. They charged on Spinney after it was all over and denounced him as a traitor.

"'Gentlemen,' he said, 'I 'sure you, I did inten' to vote for Mister Chitenden; but I had two or three papers in my pocket and really, gentlemen, I got the wrong one, with Mr. Craycroft's name on it.'

"As Mr. Spinney can neither read nor write, the whole matter was explained. The Democrats were sore, but they had to admit that they were beaten."

"You Californians are not the only people who have become filled with the progressive spirit," remarked Fred Rice Rowell, a Seattle attorney, who is stopping at the Lick House for a few days. Then Mr. Rowell waxed enthusiastic as he proceeded: "Up in Seattle we are getting up a subsidy of $500,000 by public subscription for a ship canal which is to connect the fresh water of Lake Washington with the brine of Elliott Bay and Puget Sound. Why, everybody there is subscribing, even the newsboys! The Newsboys' Union gave its note for $25, and had the money in the bank to back it up, too.

"This canal is to run south of Seattle and will reclaim two square miles of tide flats. St. Louis capitalists say they will put $6,000,000 in to it as soon as the subsidy is raised, and when I left the people had raised over $380,000. Eugene Semple, the last Territorial Governor of Washington, was the projector of this enterprise and a company to carry it through has been formed called the Seattle Waterway Company.

"Under the State law of 1893 the cost of filling in the tide flats, etc., will operate as a first mortgage lien upon the lands reclaimed, at 8 per cent, and the projectors are allowed 15 per cent additional as commissions for salaries and the like.

"It is a great enterprise, and means the making of Seattle."

Assemblyman H. W. Laugenour of Woodland, who returned with his wife from a trip through Southern California on Monday, is enthusiastic over the CALL'S enterprise in telegraphing pictures of the fiesta from Los Angeles to this city. "At first people hardly believed it," he said. "They thought the account of the undertaking was a hoax. Then they found that it could not be so, as the pictures could not have been sent by mail. The matter was the talk of the town," he added. "Still it caused more pleased comment than surprise, as people are beginning to look for the CALL at the head of all progressive movements."

Mr. Laugenour praised the pageants of Los Angeles, but he had no words to convey his admiration of the floral festival at Santa Barbara. "There was one thing queer about it, though," he added. "The belles of Santa Barbara seemed to pride themselves on being sunburned."

"Tulare has not done anything yet for the valley road," said Senator R. Linder of that town. "The secret is that we are too poor. All Tulareans are eager to see the success of the road, but it must pass either east of us or west of us, and so we are letting the other towns like Visalia and Porterville, which are off the main line, do the active work. For three years," Mr. Linder said, "we haven't had a crop; this year promises good returns. If the promises are fulfilled we can do more than give the valley road our good wishes."

The number of men withdrawn from industry to take part in the Civil War on the Union side was 2,772,408; the Confederates enlisted over 800,000. In whatever way looked at, the gospel of peace must be the ultimate one if the world is to be happy.—Santa Cruz Sentinel.

The Supreme Court is taking its time in deciding on the constitutionality of the Wright irrigation law. It has postponed the hearing of the case until the second Monday in October in order to give those who desire to knock out the districts time in which to present more arguments. In the meantime the irrigation districts must possess themselves in patience, even if the strain on them is great and disastrous as well.—Hanford Journal.

In times past there have been some unfortunate sectional differences in California. The time for such short-sightedness is past. A new era of good-fellowship is at hand, and no effort should be omitted to develop and promote this feeling of fraternity and co-operation. The interests of one section are the interests of all sections. Let us all work together for the advancement of California as a whole, rather than for the advancement of sections.—Los Angeles Times.

Los Angeles people are smooth. One wanted to bore for oil in the prospected district, but there is an ordinance against it except by permission, and sometimes, in the face of protests, this permission is hard to get. So what does the citizen do, when he is tired of bothering the Council, but change his application to a permit to bore for water. There can be no objection, of course, to boring for water, and if he should happen to strike oil in the meantime—why, that's not his fault, of course.—Pasadena Star.

It was not the intention to tax only the Zante currants grown on the island of that name, but Zante currants wherever grown and from whatever port they might be shipped to this country. If the decision of the New York Appraisers is permitted to stand the raisin industry of this State will receive a blow from which it will hardly be able to recover. It is to be hoped that Senators Perkins and White, who have been appealed to, will give the Appraisers some needed instruction in the English language and botany, and that they will be able to secure a reversal of the decision.—Stockton Mail.

RAW WORK OF THE EIGHT.

The Ruling Combine of the Board of Supervisors Denounced.

CITIZENS ARE VERY INDIGNANT.

Civil Service Suggested for Local Affairs—A Contest Probable.

The action of the "solid eight" of the Board of Supervisors in removing from office seven faithful servants of the city was the theme of general discussion at the City Hall yesterday. On the streets and about the hotel corridors the matter was seriously considered by citizens who stand for decent politics, and the application of civil service rules to the municipal government was suggested.

Everywhere the unclean conspiracy of the men in the majority was denounced. Prominent citizens declared the proceedings to be an outrage on the people.

Those who have been dismissed from office look upon the conduct of the board as an attempt to cast reflection upon their characters and loyalty to the interests of the city they were employed to serve. They are all honorable men. There is some talk of their uniting to contest the action of the board. It is claimed by some that those officers cannot be removed without cause, while others accept the decision in silence. All feel keenly the wrong that has been done them.

The bitumen rock paving contract, in which there was a "job," and the Church-street franchise of the Market-street Railroad Company, in which there was a "bug," are striking examples of the disloyalty of the "solid eight" to the interests of the city and county.

"It is a long lane that has no turn," said Supervisor Taylor yesterday, "and the day of reckoning will come."

Captain Taylor, with Supervisors Dimond, Hobbs and Spreckels, has made the fight of the people as against the combine. He is very indignant at the action of the majority and has no hope that the ranks will be broken, though Supervisor Scully, who has heretofore borne a good reputation, did weaken when a ballot was taken and was excused from voting.

Supervisor Hobbs, as chairman of the Building Committee, was grossly insulted in having Head Janitor Dugan, who is really his clerk, removed, notwithstanding his protests. He speaks highly of the competency and faithfulness of Mr. Dugan. The Supervisor is so annoyed with the actions of the members in the majority that it irritates him to discuss them.

The "solid eight" is manipulated by Supervisor King, whose record is a matter of history. He holds the lash over Scully, Benjamin, Hirsch, Hughes, Dunker, Morgenstern and Wagner, and every time it cracks they jump. Dan Burns, Sam Rainey and Chris Buckley are the powers behind the throne. So the hope of the people for an honest municipal government with such men in control may be retired for the next two years.

M. M. Dugan, the head janitor, has been a resident of San Francisco since 1852 and has always borne the highest reputation as a citizen and a man. He was for many years in the shoe business and his integrity as a merchant has never been questioned.

"The action of the Board of Supervisors in discharging me without cause," said Mr. Dugan yesterday, "was, to say the least, very small. If there had been any complaint against my management of the janitor's office, as to the condition in which the hall was kept, it would not matter so much, but people who know say the hall has not for fifteen years been kept so clean as it is now. This, of course, is a compliment to me and I appreciate it as such. I have simply attended to my work and have seen to it that those under me did likewise.

"I had no political 'pull,' though I have always voted with the Republican party of this city and county. Mr. Hobbs, who is chairman of the Building Committee, secured the place for me because he has known me personally for years and knew I would perform the duties of the office faithfully.

"But the combination did not want me. They knew they could not 'use' me. The janitor purchases the supplies for the City Hall and he audits all bills for the same. Now, if he is so inclined or can be influenced, there is nothing to prevent him from putting his 'O K' to bills that are exhorbitant or wilfully wrong."

George L. Murdock, who succeeds Mr. Dugan as head janitor of the new City Hall, is a brother-in-law of Supervisor King.

Joseph Fitzpatrick, who takes A. J. Sadler's place as janitor of the Treasurer's and Auditor's offices, is a close political and personal friend of Supervisor Morgenstern, and owes his appointment to him. He lives on Brannan street, close to Mr. Benjamin's place of business.

J. M. Dolan, whose displacement makes a berth for P. Stevens as driver of the police patrol-wagon, has performed his duties to the satisfaction of the Police Department.

"I have not looked up the law as to the power of the Board of Supervisors to remove municipal employes without cause," said John S. Enos, Prosecuting Attorney in Judge Campbell's department of the Police Court, "but I shall accept the inevitable with good grace. It is a most contemptible piece of business for the members of a city government to enter into a conspiracy to destroy the reputation and standing of its employes in the eyes of the community.

"Since I have been Prosecuting Attorney in this court there has not been the slightest reflection cast upon me and I cannot understand the conduct of the so-called 'solid eight' of the Board of Supervisors, unless it is a political conspiracy. It is a nice thing to go on the minutes of the board, a splendid sample of the honesty and wisdom of our municipal legislatros to confront succeeding boards, isn't it?" and a shadow of disgust stole over the speaker's face.

"My record is clean and I can afford to ignore this attempt to blacken and belittle me in the eyes of the people whom I have served. I have not been the slave of that gang of Supervisors who are now running things, if I have been the servant of the people."

Mr. Enos was for six years District Attorney of Fulton County, N. Y. He has been a State Senator in this State, and has filled the office he now holds very creditably.

Charles A. Forbes, who succeeds him, was a partner with James W. Harding before the latter went into the insurance business. He is a small lawyer with a small practice. He has figured in two criminal cases, and as a result one client is doing time at San Quentin and the other escaped with a fine. Forbes will not officiate in Judge Campbell's court if the latter can prevent it. Judge Campbell said:

"I shall refuse to recognize the new appointee of the Board of Supervisors until some higher court than my own shall have decided who is entitled to the office of Prosecuting Attorney. I know nothing whatever concerning Mr. Forbes, but I am perfectly certain that there is no justification for discharging an experienced officer like Mr. Enos to make a place for a man who has had comparatively little experience in criminal cases. Besides, I doubt the pretended right of the Supervisors to remove Mr. Enos. I believe the fair intendment of the statute regulating the police courts of this city is that the original appointee of the Board of Supervisors shall hold office till the end of the term of the board. This being my opinion I shall not allow any person to dictate to me who the Prosecuting Attorney shall be after the Board of Supervisors has once appointed a man to fill the place."

E. A. Wakeman, who is conceded to be a capable and successful attorney, and is now counsel for Holbrook, Merrill & Stetson and Madison & Burke, as well as several other firms, is thrown out for Edmund Patrick Mogan, who is 26 years old and is not known to have distinguished himself in either civil or criminal business. His cousin, Richard Mogan, boarded for a time at Supervisor King's hotel, however. This is one of the strongest points in support of the young man's qualifications for the office of prosecuting attorney in Police Court 3. Mogan is a Democrat of the King stripe.

J. H. Roberts, who has had great experience, both as a campaign orator and lawyer, is asked to vacate his place for William Merritt Madden. Madden is twenty-eight years old and has lived at 1313 Jackson street since October last, when he moved from Oakland to this city so that he could be a candidate for office. Boss Burns gave him the nomination for Justice of the Peace, and Madden was snowed under with a great many more of the Colonel's pals. Madden has had very little experience in criminal cases, but is a clerk for an attorney and sometimes makes motions for continuances in uncontested cases.

"This solid eight conspiracy is but the second act in a play which began with the attempt, by the same eight, to cinch the people with the bitumen ordinance," said a prominent Republican. "Now that four of the board are found to be unsusceptible to corrupt influences, the solid eight have determined, if possible, to whip, by means of retaliation, one of these four into line and thus have an invincible hand in the shape of a three-quarter majority, which could pass anything desired over the Mayor's veto.

"If one of the four respectable Supervisors drops his oar in the slime with the solid eight, the ax will be buried in the same muddy depths, to be drawn up and wielded whenever there is one vote wanted to carry any measure which common honesty frowns upon. If the four respectables stand firm you may expect to see the ax fall steadily till no patronage, except what they themselves have redistributed, remains to be used as a club against justice and official honor."

A Republican attorney, who stands high in his profession, said, concerning the appointments in the Police Courts, yesterday:

"It looks to me as though some of the attorneys who practice criminal law considerably had used their influence to have men appointed that would be 'easy game' for them. Rumors to that effect are common around the courts, and the power of Colonel Mazuma is spoken of as a necessary accompaniment to the suspicion. What others possible influence could justify throwing good men out for men who are palpably unfit?"

WAS CRUSHED TO DEATH.

William P. Boyle Accidentally Killed in a Geary-Street Elevator.

His Attempt to Throw Open the Sidewalk Doors Was a Failure.

William P. Boyle, one of the trusted employes of S. & G. Gump, met with a horrible death yesterday morning. He was using one of the sidewalk elevators, which, like the electric cars, have no guards, and was caught between it and the sidewalk and was crushed to death.

A dead-letter law, passed by the Board of Supervisors, requires all sidewalk elevators to have an arched iron band running over the cage to raise the doors opening onto the street. If these doors are locked either the iron arches or the door fastenings have to give. In any event, while the arches would be pressing against the closed doors the operator would have a chance to escape.

William P. Boyle.
[From a photograph.]

In this instance Boyle started the elevator from the cellar. When he approached the sidewalk he put up his hands to throw the doors open, but found them closed. A few valuable seconds were lost in vainly trying to push them open, and then he made a rush for the check rope. He could not stop the momentum, and then attempted to drop into the cellar. He was too late. The floor of the elevator caught his right arm and head and pinned him to the sidewalk. His arm and head were almost cut off and death must have been instantaneous.

Joseph Freese saw the accident and says that Boyle started the elevator fully believing the iron doors on the sidewalk had been unlocked. "When he found they were not," said Mr. Freese, "he attempted to stop the machine, and failing in that tried to drop to the cellar floor. Before he could get clear of the elevator he was caught and crushed to death. He was evidently holding on by one hand and just ready to drop when the machine crushed up against the ceiling and held him fast."

The deceased was 41 years of age and leaves a widow and six children, the youngest of whom is only six weeks old. For years he was a trusted employe of Sanborn, Vail & Co., but in 1889 he went over to S. & G. Gump. To those people he was almost invaluable, as he had the stock list at his finger ends and knew exactly where every picture, molding, glass and everything else connected with the business was stored.

His brother, Thomas Boyle, is business manager of the CALL, and another brother, John J., is also employed in the same office. Mrs. McAvoy, a sister, is the only other near relative the deceased had in San Francisco. The inquest will be held to-day.

Died in the Patrol-Wagon.

John Eisler, an Arizona miner, died in the patrol-wagon yesterday. He was found lying at the corner of Clay and Montgomery streets in an unconscious condition, and died on his way to the Receiving Hospital. He was about 60 years old, and arrived from Charleston, Ariz., last Saturday. Death is supposed to be due to natural causes.

VALLEY ROAD BUSINESS.

The Directors Held a Session of Much Public Interest.

ROLLING STOCK AND TIES.

A Gift of Surveys and Other Property by the Salt Lake Company.

The directors of the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railway held a prolonged session yesterday afternoon, at which several matters of general interest were discussed and acted on. Every member of the board was present and entered into the discussions with considerable ardor. Chief Engineer Storey and Attorney E. F. Preston were in attendance all through the meeting. The chair was occupied by Claus Spreckels, president of the corporation.

Probably the most important matter to be acted on was the transfers of surveys, maps, engineering equipment and property of the San Francisco and Salt Lake Railway Company to the valley road as a gift. It will be remembered that several months ago about thirty wealthy and public-spirited men of San Francisco combined and subscribed $1000 each to survey a line of railway from this city via the Beckwith Pass to Salt Lake City. Their engineers made a survey from Fruitvale station, East Oakland, through the Alameda hills by a tunnel near Livermore, and thence to a point on the Straits of Carquinez between Antioch and Martinez. At this point "Sacramento Junction" was planned and a piece of land for depot facilities was secured by payment of a deposit. The main line continued on to Sacramento, Oroville and toward the Beckwith Pass, being surveyed as far as Marysville. The other line was run to Brentwood, Contra Costa County, where it turned and went direct to Stockton, to which city surveys were made. Engineer Kennedy sounded the tule marshes and reported that piling could be made a success through it. He accepted surveys of an old enterprise from Stockton to Bakersfield, with maps and engineering data on levels, bridges, trestles, etc. All the results of this valuable work were yesterday formally presented to the valley road directors in the following letter:

To the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railway Company: We, the undersigned contributors, by which the surveys, instruments and properties pertaining to the San Francisco and Salt Lake Railway were secured, recognizing the fact that the construction of the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railway is a project in accord with that we sought to promote in the San Francisco and Salt Lake road proposition, do hereby donate to said corporation, the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railroad Company, for the use and purposes of said railroad, all of the surveys, property and assets belonging to us now as contributors to the San Francisco and Salt Lake Railroad enterprise, February 12, 1895.

F. L. Castle, by Walter F. Castle, executor; Abbey M. Parrott, by C. H. de Guigne; Thomas Magee, George Whittell, M. A. de Laveaga, E. F. Preston, James B. Stetson, Antoine Borel, Albert Miller, Louis Sloss, Jacob C. Johnson, Robert Watt, L. H. Sweeney. Daniel Meyer, Joseph A. Donohoe, by J. A. Donohoe Jr.; B. F. Dunham, L. L. Baker, by Wakefield Baker, executor; Alvinza Hayward.

The offer was accepted with thanks, and the directors found themselves in possession of extensive preliminary surveys and many valuable maps and drawings which can be utilized by the chief engineer and can save the expenditure of considerable money.

Attorney Preston read an agreement between the people of Stockton and the Valley Railway Company providing that the directors shall not deed away the property about to be acquired for rights of way and terminals in Stockton. The directors thought that some amendments were necessary, and consequently referred the matter to a committee, composed of Robert Watt, Charles Holbrook and E. F. Preston, with instructions to report back at the next meeting. The spirit of the agreement was, however, quite acceptable to the railway company, and just as soon as some technical objections in the way of legal phraseology are removed it will be signed and given the Stockton committee.

"This is merely a matter of showing our good faith to Stockton," said Director J. B. Stetson. "That city has been deceived more than once by railroad projectors, and as a matter of self-protection her people, while assuring us of their full confidence, want a legal agreement so that everything may be done in regular fashion."

The committee on rolling-stock reported that it had studied the subject of locomotives and flat and box cars, and recommended that three engines, 100 flatcars and fifty boxcars be purchased. After some discussion the board decided to advertise for bids on three locomotives of sixty-five tons each, with airbrakes, air-drivers, 4000-gallon water-tanks, and built for standard gauge of 4 feet 8½ inches. The engines will have 56-inch drivers and cylinders 19x24 inches, and must be of standard make, with latest improvements.

Specifications of cars are to be sent to all the principal car-manufacturers in the country, with requests for estimates to be furnished without delay. It was also decided to advertise bids for tieplates.

Director Stetson reported for the committee on ties, and his report was accepted, the board adopting his recommendation to buy redwood ties 8x7 inches and 8 feet long. The board decided to advertise for bids on ties sufficient to construct 100 miles of railway. At the rate of 30,000 to a mile this amount will be fully 300,000. Bids for the full amount, or any portion thereof over 10,000 or 20,000, will be accepted. The ties must be delivered as required, within the next ten or twelve months, as fast as the rails arrive from the East.

The directors ordered a box at the Trust Company's safe deposit vaults in which to store the various valuable securities, trust-deeds and other documents which are rapidly accumulating.

Chief Engineer Storey went to Stockton on the evening train to go over the ground surveyed, and to consult with his assistant, Engineer Graham, and the Stockton citizens' committee.

TO ENTERTAIN TOURISTS.

Visitors From the South Will Be Received by the Half-Million Club.

A meeting of the entertainment committee of the Half-million Club was held yesterday, at which steps were taken in regard to the reception and entertainment to be given to northbound tourists who are on the way here.

It was stated that the excursion from the south is accompanied by a number of trade organizations of the southern portion of the State; and on their arrival on the 30th inst. they will be received at Fourth and Townsend streets by the following gentlemen: W. H. Dimond, president Chamber of Commerce; F. W. Dohrmann, president Merchants' Association; W. B. Harrington, president Merchants' Club; A. A. Watkins, president Board of Trade; W. B. Holcomb, president Produce Exchange; Frank Dalton, president San Francisco Fruit Exchange, and Messrs. Bouvier, Troy and Gutte of the Half-million Club.

It is proposed to receive the guests at a formal reception to be held at the Palace Hotel. A breakfast will be tendered them the following morning at the merchants' club. A reception to the trade organizations will probably follow the breakfast. A drive to the park, the Cliff House and Sutro Heights is also arranged for, as is a theater party in the evening.

The second day will be devoted to a trip on the San Francisco and North Pacific line to Ukiah, through the courtesy of the officials of the road.

THE LOST IS FOUND.

Captain Charles Funke of the Schooner Francis E. M. Bernard Turns Up.

The mysterious disappearance of Captain Charles Funke of the schooner Francis E. M. Bernard on August 11 last caused a great sensation along the water front. The schooner had arrived two days previous to that date with a cargo of hay and lay alongside the wharf at the foot of Third street. Otto Anderson, mate of the schooner Bangor, told a story of seeing three men walk down the wharf on Saturday night, August 11.

He saw the three men fall on the wharf, and two of them a minute later jumped up and ran away. He overheard one of them say, "He had only $10." As Anderson did not again see the third man it was thought he had been thrown into the bay.

The matter was reported to the police and Detectives Egan and Silvey were put on the case. Captain Tietjen, the agent of the vessel, had the bay in the vicinity of the wharf dragged for a whole day, as it was believed the third man was Captain Funke and he had been robbed and thrown into the bay.

Since then the German Consul has written several letters to Chief Crowley urging him to renewed efforts to solve the mystery, and Egan and Silvey made every inquiry possible without result.

Last night the two detectives met Captain Funke face to face on Kearny street, and they were delighted to see him. He was surprised to hear that his disappearance had caused a sensation. He said he had been drinking heavily, and, feeling disgusted with himself, he left the vessel on Saturday, August 11, without telling any one and took the train for San Jose. He remained there till the following Monday and went on to Watsonville, where he had been working on a ranch ever since. He returned to the city on Monday night.

A PLUMBER'S NOTES.

J. H. Lane Charged With Attempt to Defraud His Mother-in-Law.

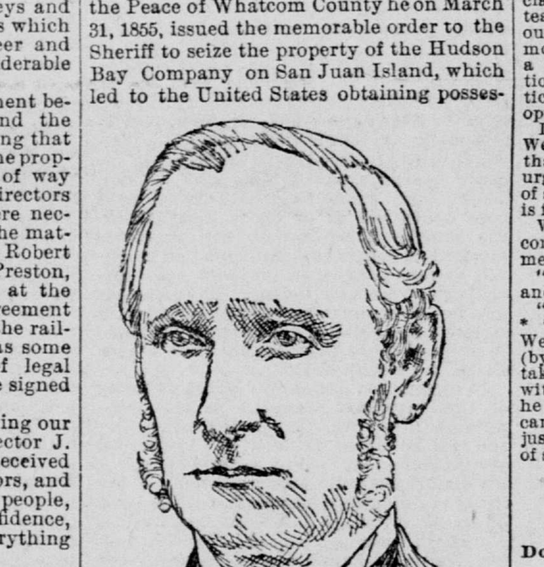
Mrs. McKeever of 1015¼ Larkin street complained yesterday against her son-in-law, J. H. Lane, a plumber, charging him with attempt to defraud her of $2750, which he borrowed from her some time ago.

It appears from Mrs. McKeever's story that there has been trouble of long standing in the Lane family, and that a separation ensued in consequence. Before this time, however, Lane succeeded in borrowing $2750, which Mrs. McKeever had on deposit, claiming he wanted to increase his plumbing business. He gave his mother-in-law several notes, all of which have matured, but when she asked for her money he repudiated the debt. He further told her that if she pressed the matter he would go into insolvency at once.

The Lanes have a child in an Oakland institution which, Mrs. McKeever says, it is Lane's intention to kidnap.

VETERAN POLICE SKETCHES.

Captain William Cullen, property clerk, was born on February 17, 1822, in Wicklow County, Ireland. He came to San Francisco in 1852, but went up north after remaining a few months. He was one of the first settlers in Washington Territory, and when County Commissioner and Justice of the Peace of Whatcom County he on March 31, 1855, issued the memorable order to the Sheriff to seize the property of the Hudson Bay Company on San Juan Island, which led to the United States obtaining possession of that island and other islands in the Straits of Georgia. He was engaged in mining and farming in California and was the pioneer produce merchant in this city. He was appointed on the police force on April 20, 1866, and property clerk on September 1, 1868, which he has held continuously since. He has the rank and pay of captain.



TWO LADIES AT OUTS.

Mrs. Jane Strauss Arrested for Disturbing the Peace.

Mrs. Emilie Bellvali, a dressmaker living at 420 Geary street, swore out a warrant in Judge Low's court yesterday morning for the arrest of Mrs. Jane Strauss, wife of a stockbroker living at the Sutherland House, corner of Jones and Sutter streets, on the charge of disturbing the peace. Mrs. Strauss was arrested, but her husband promptly secured her release on depositing $40 cash bail.

According to the statement made by Mrs. Bellvali she and Mrs. Strauss quarreled some months ago. Since then the landlady at 420 Geary street had received anonymous letters which referred in a detrimental way to Mrs. Bellvali's reputation. On Monday Mrs. Strauss called at 420 Geary street and raised a disturbance, threatening to drive Mrs. Bellvali out of the city. The landlady sent out for two policemen, but they declined to arrest Mrs. Strauss, as she was only guilty of a misdemeanor. They advised Mrs. Bellvali to swear to a complaint in the morning, which she did.

THE POLICE SIGNAL SYSTEM.

A Boston Company Threatens to Sue the City.

James F. Rollins, as president of the Municipal Signal Company of Boston, yesterday filed a long statement with the Supervisors, giving them notice that the said company was owner of certain patents upon a system of signals used in the police and other departments of many cities, and that infringements upon these or the use of any of them were subject to penalties, etc., and finally that the Police Department of this city was making use of these patents, and that suit would be brought against the city to recover.

Oppose the Bitumen Pavements.

Two separate petitions were filed with the Supervisors yesterday protesting against the proposed paving of Golden Gate avenue, between Baker and Broderick streets, the reasons being that the abutting property is unimproved and that the present grade may be changed.

AN APPEAL TO THE CLERGY.

Disciples of Marx Would Teach Them What Socialism Means.

THE TEACHINGS OF CHRIST.

Heroes of the Past Were in Their Day Known as Rebels and Agitators.

A meeting of the Fabian Club was held Monday evening at 518 Van Ness avenue for the discussion of socialistic doctrines. The club, of which the Rev. M. J. Fergusson is president and Miss Van Davis secretary, was organized for the purpose of considering socialism and endeavoring to bring about desired results in a lawful manner, and not by violence and the destruction of the foundation on which the Governments rest. The principal topic discussed was "How Values Would Be Determined Under a Co-operative Commonwealth." Among those present and who took part in the discussion was Laurence Gronlund, author of "Co-operative Commonwealth" and "Ca Ira."

Before adjournment a letter, of which the following is a copy, was read. The club will have it printed and sent to every clergyman in the city and State:

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22, 1895.

To the Clergy of San Francisco—DEAR SIRS: In view of the necessity for correcting a very common error, and in order to make the teachings of the true Christianity more universally observed, we very respectfully address you.

The error which we refer to is the general misunderstanding of the aims and purposes of socialism and socialists. Socialism means a system of government wherein the means of production are owned and operated by the people for the benefit of all. It means universal co-operation.

The aims of the socialists are to attain this result, which they think is good, by peaceable and lawful methods. They are opposed to war and violence, and they believe that the advent of socialism will banish both internal and external warfare, socially, financially and politically. Socialists are not revolutionists or anarchists in the sense that those words are used by those who oppose their doctrines. Above all things they advocate peace and brotherly love between men and nations.

Every hero of the past whom sincere Christians hold up to glorify and honor was an agitator or rebel against the conditions that existed in his day. They were all more or less denounced and maligned by the conservatives of their day, just as socialism and socialists are now traduced and vilified by those who know no better or whose hearts are vicious. Every writer and prominent leader of the socialists advocates peace, law and order.

Now on the other hand we note a tendency among the followers of Jesus (or rather those who profess to be followers of him) to preserve a condition (such as now exists) wherein every man is warring, financially if not violently, against his fellow-men. We note also that in many churches and schools the children are being taught the tactics of actual warfare and the use of arms.

Can it be possible that the church of Christ has so far departed from his kind and loving teachings that a rebuke must come from those who believe in his teachings but who are without the temples? We are teaching peace and good will, co-operation, equality and freedom. We are asking for the eradication of methods of business which encourage selfishness and dishonor. We aim to make this earth's affairs as God wills it should be. We hope our Christian brethren will in turn use their greatest influence and efforts toward the banishment of war and against all teachings which will make the children able to and ready to kill their fellow-men.

Socialism is not a religious doctrine, but claims to be a practical system of applying the teachings of the Old and New Testaments to our individual life. It was first outlined for modern use by a Hebrew, Karl Marx. It shows a way of replacing competition by co-operation; selfishness and inordinate greed by justice; wage-slavery and poverty by freedom and opportunity.

Does not the church want these reforms? We believe all true Jews and Christians do, that all true men do also, and we respectfully urge and implore all to help in the propagation of such doctrines as these upon which socialism is founded.

We believe that it was intended that such commands as these should be observed among men:

"Thou shalt not kill." We do not think men and children should be taught to kill.

"Thou shalt not covet thy neighbors house, * * * nor anything that is thy neighbors." We believe that no system should be sustained (by those who adhere to this command), which takes from the laborer what he has produced without giving him a full equivalent for what he has made to grow or produced. Business can be conducted so that each shall receive a just and full equivalent. And this is the aim of socialists.

SIXTH ANNIVERSARY.

Dolores Assembly No. 7, Y. M. C. U., Entertains Its Friends in Mission Parlor Hall.

The sixth anniversary entertainment of Dolores Assembly No 7 of the Young Men's Catholic Union, was given last evening in Mission Parlor Hall, on Seventeenth street. There was a short programme, a lecture by the Rev. Father D. O. Crowley, music and some hours of dancing before the members of Dolores Assembly and their friends finally sought their homes. It was a pleasant evening and the invitation to come again extended by F. J. Kane, the president of the order, will be accepted literally.

After an overture by the orchestra Mr. Kane made a few opening remarks, welcoming those who had attended and explaining the nature and methods of the organization. After him came Dr. W. H. Sieberst with some humorous songs, and then Rev. Father Crowley stepped forward to deliver his lecture on "The Church and Civilization." His address was a brief summary of the history of Roman Catholicism and its relation to the intellectual progress of the world. The speaker simply quoted history for the greater portion of his address, leaving deductions and inferences to his audience.

George Alden followed with a song, J. H. Greefkens gave a short exhibition of ventriloquism and Miss Maggie Donohue closed the programme with a vocal solo.

The floor was then cleared of the chairs and the audience took up its own entertainment in the dance.

TAMES WILD HORSES.

Professor O. C. Gleason's Exhibition at the Mechanics' Pavilion.

At the Mechanics' Pavilion Professor Gleason kept a large audience interested last night while he tamed wilk, kicking or obstreperous horses. His methods consisted in accustoming them to the sounds of a base drum and to gunpowder crackers fired off under their noses. This was supplemented by opening umbrellas suddenly in their faces. He took three horses noted for shying, harnessed them together and drove them over firecrackers, which had no more effect in disturbing their equanimity than so many cobblestones.

The performance will be repeated every evening till next Saturday, when it will give place to the bench show. At the close of that exhibition Professor Gleason will continue to occupy the Pavilion till June 1.

The Lawton Case.

No new developments occurred in the progress of the divorce case of M. A. Lawton against Mary Lawton in Judge Sanderson's court yesterday. The following witnesses were examined for the defense: Charles Nolan, Michael A. Lawton, Frank Bard, Minnie Pangallie, Annie McNamara, Catherine Hart, James Hagen, Hannah Walsh, Lizzie Foley, James Ambrose, M. H. Gaffrey. Then Margaret J Rogers and Mary Hood were called for the plaintiff, and the case went over until this morning.

Two Barber-Shops Open Sunday.

The Barbers' Union intend to see that all the shops in the city are closed on Sunday at 12 o'clock, according to law. At the meeting last night only two shops in the city were reported as open for business last Sunday after the noon hour. Messrs. Price and Wolfe were appointed a committee to investigate the matter and report at next meeting. An informal discussion was had on a picnic to be held during July or August. A temporary committee was appointed to prepare plans for the day's celebration.

Safecracker in the City.

The office of Attorney E. W. McGraw, 330 Pine street, was entered by burglars on Sunday night. The combination-lock on the safe had not been set, so it was easy for them to open the outer door. Then they forced open a steel chest in the safe which contained about $1500 worth of diamonds and jewelry and appropriated the contents. Captain Lees thinks it was the work of Eastern men, and he hopes to have them behind the bars in a few days.

The Trooper's Trouble.

The case of The People vs. Captain-elect Waller of the First Troop Cavalry, for assault and battery, came up in Judge Campbell's court yesterday morning. Several members of the company testified as to the actions of Waller on the occasion, and after hearing both sides of the case Judge Campbell took it under advisement till Saturday next.

BACK AT THE RAILROAD.

Answer to Be Filed To-Day in the Famous "Stop-Over" Cases.

CONSPIRACY CHARGE DENIED.

Nearly Three Thousand Claims Against the Road Under the Code.

There is a big surprise in store for the twenty-six attorneys employed by the Southern Pacific in the famous Dr. Robinson "stop-over" cases. The answer of over 300 pages will be filed by the attorneys for Dr. Robinson and his co-litigants by their attorneys, Thomas V. Cator and C. M. Jennings, in Judge Sanderson's department to-day.

The "bill of peace," filed in equity by the Southern Pacific a little while ago against Dr. W. H. Robinson, his son, L. S. Robinson, Thomas D. Poole, C. W. Bassett, ex-Assemblyman Aaron Bretz, Dr. C. W. Loomis and Dr. Frederick Hiller, all of Alameda, and Dr. W. N. Griswold of this city and twelve other persons who were designated by fictitious court nomenclature, asked the court, it will be remembered, to omnibus all the "stop-over" cases into one cause of action and to enjoin the defendants from going on with their cases separately. In that paper Dr. Robinson et al. were accused by the railroad of conspiracy, and the company, accordingly, prayed for a perpetual injunction from separate proceedings and also for $5000 damages, in toto.

The defendant's answer will show the court that the separate causes of action based upon section 490 of the State Code aggregate 2869 altogether, and that the claims in all these actions, at $200 apiece, foot up over $570,000. The Southern Pacific attorneys thought there were only 474 such cases, so when they see the actual figures it will be something like a shock to them.

The action of the Southern Pacific charging Dr. Robinson and the others with conspiracy was considered a very strange one at the time, and it afforded the public some amusement. It was the first "bill of peace" ever filed in this State. Lawyers saw that what the railroad was getting at was to have the whole question of its refusal to recognize stop-over rights considered in one general controversy, and thus save itself from being made a party defendant to a suit every time it violated section 490 of the code. It gained its point so far as getting the question before the courts, but has not obtained any advantage in a pecuniary sense, considering this big counter-claim of the defendants.

The defendants in their answer naturally deny the charge of conspiracy, and aver that all the separate proceedings are sustained by the law. Their attorneys will follow it up with a motion to dissolve the temporary injunction against them which the court issued pending a hearing, and in their argument upon the motion to dissolve, they will take the ground that the court cannot, under the law, consider all the cases in one action. If, however, the court should hold that it has such jurisdiction, then there is the counterclaim of $570,000 to be separately apportioned among the defendants. They will base their contention upon section 490, and Chief Justice Beatty's decision. The last part of section 490 reads:

Every ticket entitles the holder thereof to ride on the passenger cars to the station or depot or destination, or any intermediate station, and from any intermediate station to the depot of destination designated in the ticket at any time within six months thereafter. Any corporation failing to so provide and furnish tickets, or refusing the passage which the same calls for when sold, must pay to the person so refused the sum of $200.

Chief Justice Beatty's decision, in which all the other Supreme Court Justices concurred except Justice McFarland, was plain enough as to the stop-over rights of passengers destined to Alameda and leaving the train at Oakland, and naturally each passenger refused the passage from Oakland to Alameda to which he was entitled by the ticket and under the law feels that he has a perfect individual and separate right of action against the railroad for the $200. Judge Beatty then said:

"So far as the law fixes the terms of the contract it cannot be varied by rules of the company, known or unknown, unless assented to by the passenger. We have held that under the law of California the ticket issued by a railroad company, upon receipt of the regular fare from one depot to another, gives the holder the right to stop over at an intermediate station and to resume his journey at any time within six months."

Accordingly the answer of the defendants will embrace separate schedules for each defendant, each giving a detailed statement of the particular cause of action, the date of stop-over ticket, the station where the same was purchased, the depot of destination, the station of stop-over, the date of refusal to allow completion of ride to depot of destination, the date of filing complaint and the particular Justice's court in which action was brought.

From the grand total of 2869 separate causes of action it can be seen that each litigant has brought distinct and separate proceedings running well up into the hundreds.

Since Dr. Robinson brought his first suit, in September, 1891, the points involved have been heard successively by Justices Brittan, Cook and Barry and Superior Judges Hunt, Trout, Sewall and Murphy. In Judge Green's court in Alameda Editor Halstead was convicted of criminal libel for calling Dr. Robinson and other complainants blackmailers. Twice has the controversy been decided by the State Supreme Court, Justice McFarland being the only dissenter each time.

The railroad company attempted to knock the law out entirely during the last Legislature in a bill, No. 882, which Speaker Lynch introduced in the House "by request," and which was killed by Senator Biggy's expose.

University Rowing Club Regatta. Dangers from Poisoned Wheat.

The Rowing Club of the University of California will have a gala day on Saturday on Sessions Basin, where several races will be decided among the crews of the club. The races will commence at 2:30 P. M.

The Empire Gun Club is making considerable preparation for a clay bird shoot at Alameda Point on Sunday, and the Lincoln and Electric Gun Clubs will hold a team shoot on the Lincoln Club grounds on the same day.

George Crocker of the Country Club entered his kennel of English setters yesterday with the secretary of the Pacific Kennel Club. Mr. Crocker states that he will also have one or two of his French Griffons in the show.

Some of the farmers of Moraga Valley, Solano County, have been scattering wheat steeped in phosphate around squirrel holes, with the object of poisoning squirrels. A gentleman who returned from an outing in the valley last Sunday, states that he picked up several dead quail in the vicinity of the place where the poisoned wheat had been scattered.

Some men who shoot for the market are very liable to bag squirrels that have eaten the deadly grain, but as long as they can sell the little animals in the San Francisco and Oakland markets it does not give them much concern whether the squirrels had eaten poisoned food or not. Farmers who scatter poisoned wheat on the ground can be made to suffer, as the law is very clear on this point.

The Country Club is figuring upon a plan for the stocking of its preserve with woodcock. Many sportsmen are of the opinion that the woodcock would thrive in the club's demesne, and especially in that part of it through which meander the cool and sparkling waters of Bear Creek.

N. Rowe, editor and manager of the American Field, is visiting Los Angeles. Mr. Rowe has been in poor health for some time, and he hopes that a change of climate will materially assist in building up a failing constitution.

The Olympic Gun Club is in hopes of leasing the land through which Lagunitas Creek flows for a term of years. If it succeeds it will stock the stream and stop all fishing in it for two years.

FIRE DEPARTMENT AFFAIRS.

Damages Asked for a Wrecked Buggy. No Money for Hydrants.

At the meeting of the Fire Department Committee of the Board of Supervisors yesterday afternoon J. H. Mitchell presented a claim for $50 for damage done to his buggy by chemical engine No. 2 while on its way to a fire on the 18th inst. He claimed that his horse was properly hitched on McAllister street, that the buggy was close up to the sidewalk and that the engine ran into and smashed it to the extent of the sum asked for damages.

Acting Chief Engineer Dougherty said that he had been informed that Mr. Mitchell's horse was not properly tied and thought the matter ought to be investigated. The matter was referred to the acting Chief to hear witnesses and report.

The request of property-owners in the vicinity of Sixteenth and De Haro streets for a hydrant was laid over for action until July for want of funds.

C. M. Shortridge was granted permission to replace on the building in which the CALL office is located a portion of a firewall torn down by the firemen on the occasion of a fire in a building adjoining.

The committee approved of advertising for coal and forage for the Fire Department.

FORTUNE CAME TOO LATE.

The Strange Disappearance of Ansel White in the Sixties.

An Officer Tells an Interesting Story Bearing on the Mystery.

A dispatch from Santa Cruz, under date of April 19, to the effect that the search for Ansel White, who, while staying at the St. Louis House, San Francisco, some time in the sixties, suddenly disappeared and was never heard of afterward, was published in the daily press. White was a California pioneer.

He had sold his place, near Santa Cruz, for $2000 and came to the city, where all trace of him was lost. The supposition is that he was murdered for his money. His strange disappearance is recalled by reason of his having recently fallen heir to a $4,000,000 estate in New York.

John F. Teague, chief of the Teague Detective Agency in Oakland, made some interesting statements yesterday which may lead to the unraveling of this mysterious disappearance. Mr. Teague said:

In the sixties my father owned a ranch in Contra Costa County. I went to work on the ranch driving cattle and the like. One day it was necessary for me to go down near the beach in search of some stock which had strayed off, and about 100 yards from the beach I came upon the body of a man which was in an advanced stage of decomposition. I dragged the body down to the beach, and then returned for my father and the Coroner, William Baldwin.

When they arrived the body was searched, which disclosed a San Francisco paper, the date of which was three weeks prior to the time of the finding of the corpse, a small amount of money in one of the vest pockets and a plain silver watch and chain, the trousers pockets being turned out, which gives strength to the theory that he was robbed and then murdered; and an envelope, on which the address had been almost obliterated by the action of the salt water, but yet with close inspection the address proved to be Ansel White, St. Louis House, San Francisco. The postmark was Santa Cruz, which showed that he had friends living in that city.

The skull of the corpse had been crushed, presumably by a blow from some blunt instument, a club or sandbag, but it might have been caused from the body striking against a rock or log while it was in the water.

The Coroner summoned a jury from my father's men and held an inquest with the result that a verdict of "Died from unknown causes" was found and the body was buried as an unknown on the spot where it was found.

The body appeared to be that of a man between the age of 45 and 50 and as this was in the fall of either 1865 or 1866, I think that there can be no doubt in regard to the identity of the man as being the same Ansel White for whom a search is now being investigated. If it were necessary I could now go to the very spot where he is buried and exhume the remains if it would be of any advantage in his reidentification.

PETER BOONS' HORSE.

Its Description Causes an Argument Among the Harbor Police.

The harbor police yesterday received notice that a horse and wagon belonging to Peter Boons of 153 Tehama street, had been stolen. Mr. Boons sent the following description of his loss to the police, and from it very little difficulty is apprehended in finding the lost vehicle and animal:

Bay horse attached to an old express wagon. Stolen to-day. Horse had white face, No. 15,920, blue body, red running-gear.

"That is the most remarkable horse I ever heard of," said Captain Dunlevy. "The officers should have no trouble tracing him from his description. I have heard of blue-blooded stock, but never before heard of a horse with a blue body."

Sergeants Avon and Mahoney had quite a dispute as to what constituted the running gear of a horse.

"That means his legs," said Avon. "His legs is red."

"Not at all," said Mahoney; "it refers to his harness. He had red reins."

"You're both wrong," interjected Officer Eugene Harrigan. "The running gear alludes to his mane and tail. It should be his flaming gear. His hair is red."

"Get off the corner, Harrigan," said Sergeant Mahoney, "and let that white-haired girl pass. Red hair, indade."

And the look of superior intelligence which lighted up the features of "one of the finest" made the palms in Chadbourne's flower garden wilt.

DEMURRER SUSTAINED.

The Case Against J. B. Vining and J. L. Willcutt Dismissed.

When the case against Manager J. B. Vining and Secretary J. L. Willcutt of the Market-street Cable Company, charged on the complaint of Mayor Sutro with illegally tearing up O'Farrell street, between Scott and Devisadero, was called in Judge Low's court on Tuesday of last week, Attorney Kelly, on behalf of the defendants, interposed a demurrer to the complaint.

One of the main points was that the ordinance under which the charge was made could not be enforced against a corporation, because it provided imprisonment only as the penalty and a corporation could not be imprisoned.

A continuance was taken till yesterday, when the Judge sustained the demurrer and dismissed the case.

Three Men Injured.

An express wagon driven by J. Wilson was descending the grade on Pacific street, between Taylor and Mason, yesterday afternoon, when the team bolted. Fred Yehl of 8 Jansen street and Peter Hanoppel, two cement-layers who were in the wagon, and Wilson were pitched out. Yehl had his left arm broken and Hanoppel was badly cut on the scalp. Wilson escaped with a slight cut on his face. Yehl and Hanoppel had their injuries attended to at the Receiving Hospital.

THE FARMERS' COLUMN.

Injurious Effects of Frequent Irrigation on Trees and Vines.

THE TRAMP QUESTION SOLVED.

Hollanders Have a Labor Colony Where Those Who Are Out of Work Are Sent.

The value of land depends as much upon its location as upon its productiveness.

In the future we must farm more with our heads and less with our hands than we have in the past.

The Dutch have worked out the tramp question to what they consider a final conclusion. The state maintains a farm of five thousand acres, and every man applying for relief is sent there to earn his living. If the man will not work he is sent to a labor colony, where he has to work; but if he shows a disposition to get ahead and learns to cultivate the soil the state rents a small farm to him, where he is left to his own resources.

Here is a suggestion from the Bakersfield Californian which should be remembered by irrigation farmers: "Trees and vines which are irrigated frequently and with small quantities of water develop a tendency to keep their roots close to the surface, and in order to keep the plants in good condition frequent irrigation becomes essential. If the water be applied at wide intervals and in great abundance, so that the soil becomes saturated to a great depth, the roots are obliged to go downward in the search for moisture, and the result is a tree or vine of great drought-resisting power."

The Los Angeles Times advocates the organization of growers of deciduous fruits in Southern California on the exchange plan. The paper says:

The deciduous fruit industry has grown rapidly in Southern California during the past four or five years, and promises to grow still more rapidly in the near future. It has been found that such fruits as apricots, peaches, prunes and walnuts, when carefully cultivated and properly attended to, are capable of yielding almost as large profits as the average orange orchard, with the additional advantage that they can be grown on cheaper land and that it is not necessary to wait so long for returns; also that they need not be marketed at once if prices are unfavorable, but can be dried and kept for a good market. The growers of these fruits should not wait until the product is too large to be handled successfully, but should organize at once and meet regularly to discuss the question of markets. The fruit exchange in Santa Clara County has accomplished a vast amount of good for the growers of that section, and has undoubtedly saved them many thousands of dollars.

Farmers, orchardists and vineyardists should take care of refuse manure, straw, pomace, etc., and have them properly composted. In order to make the best compost heap, one should have a cement receptacle with sides about two feet high. In it should be put a layer of straw, manure, weeds, pomace, or anything and everything in the way of vegetable matter except woody fiber, to a depth of about twelve inches. After it has been thoroughly wetted, a layer of land plaster (sulphate of lime) finely ground, upon which may be placed another layer of organic matter, covered also with plaster. Then if the whole heap is covered with good heavy soil six or eight inches thick, the lime will decompose the vegetable matter and retain the ammonia and moisture. Grape pomace and alfalfa are especially good for composting. The elements in a ton of manure would cost about $3, if supplied artificially, while those contained in a ton of grape pomace could not be purchased for less than $10.

Theoretically, one should apply as much of the expensive elements as the crops raised will remove. If less is applied, the soil will finally be exhausted. As there is always some loss, due to natural causes, a little more than the amount consumed by the crops should be supplied. On the basis of giving to the soil as much plant food as a crop will remove, according to the best authorities, one should apply per acre the amounts which appear in the following table when the crop is not greater or less than the amount mentioned. Otherwise, proportionately.

In this table an average is assumed concerning soil, climate and plants. Circumstances are likely to alter individual cases to a very great extent, but the table will nevertheless be found approximately correct.

When the Grangers' movement was started in California a number of years ago it was thought that the meetings would afford an opportunity for mutual improvement through the reading of papers upon special subjects and the interchange of ideas regarding methods. For various reasons, however, the practical was lost sight of in the promotion of parliamentary rule and the detail of lodge work, and although some good was accomplished the result was far short of anticipated benefits.

Recently farmers in various portions of the State have held farmers' institutes, notably at Azusa, Perris and Tulare, and at each valuable papers were read, Farmers' institutes for the discussion of topics relating to practical husbandry are of very great value to those who choose to avail themselves of the benefits to be derived. The agricultural editor of the CALL wishes to be notified of contemplated meetings in California of this nature and will endeavor to be present.

The dairyman's magazine known as Up to Date Dairying, published at Chicago, says: "More than twenty years ago Michigan farmers had such institutes, they being held in each county and addressed by professors from the State agricultural colleges and others. At the meetings the range of subjects was very wide. In the wheat-growing counties the subjects bore upon plowing, fertilizing, reaping and kindred matters, while in the fruit belt everything from grafting an apple-tree to yellows in peaches was the subject of valuable addresses.

"A bill has been introduced into the Illinois Legislature appropriating $6000 to be expended in holding farmers' institutes under the direction of the trustees of the University of Illinois. The appropriation, while too small to enable the trustees to do all they might like to do, is very well for a beginning. New York devotes $15,000 to these institutes, Wisconsin $12,000, Minnesota $10,000, and other States, like Missouri and Indiana, smaller sums.

"One of the most beneficial features of these institutes is that they tend to promote diversified agriculture, and by enabling farmers to make experiments intelligently they encourage variety in farm products. With diversified agriculture the failure of one crop is not so serious a disaster to the State as it is when the farmer expends his whole labor and devotes his whole farm to a single product. Cotton has kept the South poor, tobacco has made Virginia far from prosperous, and it is probable that less corn and more of other farm produce would have benefited Illinois."

There is now comparatively little land in California suitable for pasturage that is not owned by private parties, and nearly all of it is more valuable than much of the land in Utah, Wyoming, Nevada, Arizona and Colorado. As a rule, cattle may be purchased in most any of the States named and shipped to this State more cheaply than they can be raised here. This is not the case this year, however, extra demands in the East making cattle higher than usual. The freight being less from points east of the Sierra Nevada, most of the stock called for has been shipped from the States named. Ordinarily, however, cattle can be shipped from Arizona to points in the San Joaquin Valley for $4 per head. Here they may be fattened upon alfalfa and sold at a profit. They should be brought during the winter months, however, immediately after the first frosts, and must be placed on dry feed (to give them green alfalfa at once is most disastrous), pumpkins, beets, or similar vegetables that will act as a gentle laxative, and fresh water. The last is particularly essential, as nothing will disease unacclimated cattle quicker than impure water. After about two months on dry feed they are in proper condition for any rich food that can be provided, and the process of fattening can begin without delay or fear of disease or death from any cause. Alfalfa will fatten them quickly.

A sheep law was recently passed in Nevada compelling parties who engage in the sheep industry to pay a license of the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh classes. A man who herds 5000 sheep must pay $500 license annually; for 4000 or less than 5000 he must pay $200 license; 3000 or less than 4000, $150; 2000 and less than 3000, $100; 1500 and less than 2000 shall pay $75; for 1000 and less than 1500, $25; provided, that any man owning one acre of land for every two sheep he has may not pay any license. The Yerington Nevada Rustler says the law will kill the sheep industry of that State.

William Moore of Lakeside, Kings County, writes to the Hanford Sentinel that if he could reach the broom manufacturers without the intervention of middlemen, and if the freight rates were lower, the raising of broom-corn would be profitable. In 1881 he sold broom-corn for $100 per ton. Finally commission men failed to keep agreements as to prices and he stored the broom-corn at considerable cost for storage and insurance, and eventually sold for from $40 to $60 per ton. He says there is a combination which prevents the dealer from securing fair prices.

The tendency in wheat is to develop smut. Farmers in California almost without exception bluestone their wheat prior to planting. Some claim that wheat almost invariably becomes smutty if the seed is not bluestoned. Others never use it. Those who farm most extensively as a rule use the bluestone, while some of them say they do not know whether or not it is effective. The editor of the agricultural department of the CALL will be glad to have readers give their views concerning the matter.

E. Bartholomew of Kansas writes to the American Agriculturist concerning the hot-water treatment:

The hot-water treatment of seed grain recommended in May 16 issue will certainly prevent smut in wheat and oats to a large extent. This is the result wherever it has been carefully tried by farmers or at experiment stations, and in my own case I get less than half of 1 per cent of smutted oats, against 10 to 15 per cent if the seed is not treated. When you have once thoroughly treated your seed the process need not be repeated for a number of years if care is taken to keep it from being impregnated again. Dipping seed oats held in a basket or gunny-sack, the usual method, is a tedious job, but I treat ten bushels of seed oats for hours in this way:

Bore a 1½-inch hole in the bottom of a kerosene barrel, cover with wire screen on inside, fit in a 4-inch water-tight bung so as not to push up screen; punch thirty or forty quarter-inch holes in a joint of 6-inch stovepipe from top to bottom (by slipping it over a round post or pole); put put into barrel oats to depth of six inches, set pipe in center of barrel and fill oats around it to top of pipe (which will require about five bushels) raise barrel about eighteen inches from ground—and you are ready to apply the hot water. Have on hand twelve or fourteen gallons of water heated to 130 degrees. Pour this into the pipe until it rises to the top and covers the oats. If there is any inclination to swim, press them down and spread a cloth over the barrel to keep in the heat. Let stand ten minutes, then draw water off by spigot at bottom. The temperature will be found to have fallen to about 100 degrees, and should be immediately raised to 133 degrees by adding boiling water. When that temperature has been secured, pour the water again into the pipe, cover as before, let stand ten or twelve minutes, draw the water off, and the seed is ready to be turned out to dry.

Experience of recent years has shown conclusively that the American wool-growers must pay more attention to the manner in which their wools are prepared for market. The increased importation of foreign wools, in spite of higher duties, was due in a measure to the superior manner in which these foreign wools are prepared for the inspection of the buyer. With the duties now entirely removed the domestic grower must inevitably improve his method of preparing wool for the market. Keep out of the fleeces all dung locks, loose tags, sticks and stuff from the floor of the shearing-pen.

All of these tags and refuse should be packed separately, as also the bucks' fleeces, and sold on their merits. If dung locks adhere to the wool in shearing, either clip them off and throw away or pack them separately. The grower will get an immediate advantage in price by trying this course as well as by keeping out of his fleeces the refuse of the shearing shed.

Growers are also cautioned against using tar or paint in marking or branding their sheep, as the paint and tar locks must be clipped off and thrown away before the wool can be used. Sulphur dips are also to be discouraged, as they make the wool hard to scour. In preparing your wools for market, roll up the fleece without the use of a box, keep out the tags, use a small quantity of light twine, and you will take a very important step toward improving the popularity of American wools.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

An Insolvent Saloon Man.

A default was ordered entered in the insolvency case of Frank E. Dietz, the Montgomery-street saloon man, yesterday in Judge Slack's court. The amount of his liabilities is $2731 34. Through his non-appearance, unless a stay is granted, the creditors will probably now proceed to levy on any property to be found.

FOR A DOUBLE STANDARD.

General A. J. Warner to Do Missionary Work on the Pacific Coast.

WANT THE NATIONAL OFFICES.

Pro-Silver Men Asked to Join In Electing One of Their Number President.

General A. J. Warner, who was the Democratic Representative in Congress from Marietta District, Ohio, during three sessions, arrived in San Francisco to-day. He is an earnest silver advocate and his mission is to inaugurate a movement to unite the silver forces of the country. In this way he hopes to see a President and Congress elected on a bimetallic platform in 1896.

General Warner was accompanied as far as Denver by ex-Congressman J. C. Sibley. There Mr. Sibley received telegrams calling him to his home in Pennsylvania. This interfered with their programme somewhat.

The intention had been for Mr. Sibley and General Warner to come to this city together. Here they were to have been joined by Senator Stewart. The three were then to have made a tour of the West, going up to Tacoma, from there into Idaho and Montana, and thence to Salt Lake City, and on through Southern and Western Colorado. On the way they would have preached their doctrine of silver. Their programme has been delayed, but will eventually be carried out.

The theory propagated by General Warner and his friends is that the country needs a bimetallic monetary standard. This they urge will be the great issue of the campaign of 1896.

"We don't want to form a new party; that is, not permanently," explained General Warner last night. "But we must have a President and Congress pledged to the free coinage of silver in order to bring back prosperity to the country.

"The gold men are now united and control the political machinery. The silver men are divided among the three parties and have been opposing each other as Republicans, Democrats and Populists.

"Why," he exclaimed, earnestly, "the allied forces might as well have hoped to beat Napoleon by fighting each other as the silver men expect to gain their desires under the present state of affairs. They have been fighting separately too long. They must now be brought together. Not, mind you, with the idea of forming a new party permanently, but with the intention of getting a President who does not owe his election to the monometallists.

"If the Republican party would declare outright for free coinage we'd want nothing more. Such a candidate would be elected. But such a state of affairs is beyond the bounds of possibility, as the machinery of the party is controlled by the gold men.

"The Democrats could not elect a pro-silver President if they nominated one, that is, if they nominated him as a partisan Democrat. Such action would cause a split in the party that would leave it helpless.

"This is not a Populistic movement either. It is greater and broader. Out of the 13,000,000 or 14,000,000 men who will vote in 1896 I am confident that 9,000,000 want the free coinage of silver. Our new party would be designed only to effect fit national representation of these men."

General Warner has been president of the American Silver League since 1889. There are now several thousand leagues in various parts of the country. On February 22 of this year a conference of representative silver men was held in Washington and the American Bimetallic party was formed.

J. C. Sibley, who as Congressman from Pennsylvania has distinguished himself on the floor by his advocacy of free coinage, was decided upon as a fitting man for President. No man was named for Vice-President, but General Warner thinks that candidate should be a Republican from the States west of the Mississippi.

General Warner goes to Sonoma County in a few days. There he will remain till the arrival of Mr. Sibley. Then meetings will be held in San Francisco, when silver leagues will be formed, the members of which will be pledged to disregard other party issues for the time being and vote for the nominees of the American Bimetallic party for offices which control national policy.

SILVER MEN MEET HIM.

General Warner Confers With Local Advocates of the White Metal.

During the day a conference was held with General Warner by P. O. Chilstrom, the San Francisco committeeman of the State Silver League, and other local silverites, among them Alex Majors, who started the "pony express" across the plains in pioneer days, his son Green Majors, a well-known writer on silver coinage, and Thomas V. Cator. General Warner explained his position to the conference.

He remarked that he feared the Democratic party would not again nominate President Cleveland. There was considerable irony in that observation, coming from the general, as if a fourth nomination of Grover Cleveland was a consummation devoutly wished for by free-coinage advocates.

General Warner has promised to assist Mr. Chilstrom in the selection of local committeemen for the State Silver League. He will meet in consultation with the men with whom he has been in correspondence just previous to the silver mass-meeting, which is to be held when General Sibley returns from Pennsylvania.

A NOBLE LIFE

SPENT FOR AND WITH SUFFERING WOMEN.

A Life's Work Perpetuated through a Faithful Daughter, and Records of Priceless Value.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

What a vast amount of misery and suffering has been prevented by the clear-headed foresight of one noble woman!

She had struggled, labored, and sacrificed for the welfare of her sex.

The eyes of the women of the world were upon her.

As she recalled the past, and tried to penetrate the future, a smile of supreme satisfaction passed over her honest face as she remembered that her life's work would be perpetuated.

The room in which she sat contained hundreds of volumes of records; and, turning to her daughter, she said, —

"My daughter, this room, as you well know, contains the records of my life's work, in which for many years you have so diligently assisted me.

"By earnest application you have compassed my methods; and it is a happiness to think that when I leave, the glorious work will, through you, go on.

"The mission is a noble one. Do as I have done: never permit a woman's appeal to go unheeded.

"These records tell of every case ever submitted to me; and it is my wish that the facts they contain shall in time prove a much-needed education to the women of the world."

Thus did Lydia E. Pinkham hand over to her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Pinkham, what may be termed the salvation of her sex; and that wonderful remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which all druggists consider as standard as flour, goes on redeeming hundreds of women from the fearful consequences of female diseases.

NATIVES IN PARADE.

Oakland's Streets Were Thronged With People.

THOUSANDS IN THE LINE.

Some of the Interesting Features of the Pageant Described.

BULLS' HEADS AND BEEVES.

They Are Fed to the Numerous Guests of the Athens of the Pacific.

All of Oakland and the greater portions of Berkeley and Alameda were apparently turned loose on the streets of the Athens of the Pacific yesterday to witness the grand parade in honor of the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West. Even from San Francisco the visitors came in such numbers as to break the record for weekday traffic on the ferry steamers.

Although the decorations on Monday were abundantly and generously displayed, yesterday saw them richer, more varied and more plentiful. There was scarcely a building along the line of parade that did not have some adornment in honor of the occasion.

In order to encourage a proper spirit of patriotism in the rising generation the schools were ordered closed by the Board of Education.

Long before even the Grand Parlor began its morning session the streets began to show unwonted signs of animation. The sidewalks gradually became more and crowded, windows began to fill with joyous faces, rooftops showed fringes of human beings and the streets near the curbs were lined with all kinds of vehicles.

Oakland is eminently the home of the cyclist, and the wheelman and wheelwoman were out in full force yesterday, both in and out of the parade. And there was scarcely a wheel the spokes of which were not intertwined with streamers of the national colors, or which did not bear some sort of decoration.

It is estimated that there were not less than 30,000 people who witnessed the parade. Its line of march extended for a distance of three and a half miles, it was three-quarters of an hour in passing a given point, was twenty-one and a half blocks long, it had about 2500 people in line and was one of the finest, taken altogether, that ever made glad the eyes of the sightseer.

Its line of march was as follows: From Eleventh and Clay streets up the latter to San Pablo avenue, to Sixteenth street, to Telegraph avenue, to Fourteenth street, to Franklin street, to Fourth street, to Broadway, to Seventh, to Washington, to Fourteenth, to Broadway, to Fourth, countermarch on Broadway to Tenth, where the entire parade was reviewed between Franklin and Broadway by the officers of the Grand Parlor and the city and county officials, and then dismissed.

With the sound of the bugle call, shortly after 11 A. M., the procession started, headed by Chief of Police Schaffer, mounted on a handsome bay, and closely followed by a platoon of sixteen of the picked men of the force. These served to clear the way. Immediately following came Grand Marshal Thomas P. Robinson, to whose energetic efforts and unusual executive abilities the magnificence of the parade was due. He was resplendent in a golden sash and bestrode an animal of noble mein. He was but a few feet in advance of his chief aids, E. B. Noblett and George J. Hans.

Then came aids representing the various organizations in line as follows:

H. N. Gard, Oakland Parlor; Frank Each, Elks; H. J. Wilson, Reliance Club; F. C. Hampel, Brooklyn Parlor; C. F. Rose, Alameda Parlor; Colonel William Moore, Knights of Pythias; J. F. Rooney, Piedmont Parlor; George T. Loher, Piedmont Parlor; G. F. Neece, Acme Club; Joseph Knowland, Halcyon; Colonel Morosco, K. of P.; Edward Martin, First Regiment bugler.

Heading the Fifth Infantry Battalion, commanded by Major John Hays, came the Fifth Infantry Regiment band, led by Drum Major A. D. Whitlock, who attracted general attention by his skillful use of the baton. The band was under the able leadership of William McBain.

The three companies, comprising the battalion, turned out in large numbers and made an exceedingly fine showing.

Company A had forty men in line under command of Captain C. T. Poulter, First Lieutenant I. L. Cavasso, Second Lieutenant George Hosmer.

Company F turned out with sixty men. They were in command of Captain George H. Wethern, First Lieutenant W. H. Cobbledick, Second Lieutenant L. E. Wenk.

From Alameda came Company G with thirty men in command of Lieutenant M. W. Simpson.

Behind one of the finest four-in-hands that could be obtained in Oakland came the distinguished guests of the day, Grand President J. D. Sproul and Rod W. Church, chairman of the committee of arrangements, accompanied by Mayor John L. Davie. In the carriages were the following:

Commissioners of Public Works J. K. Peirsol, Arthur R. Wilson, Councilmen F. K. Mott, Walter Manuel, J. M. Bassett, W. O. Buckland, County Supervisors Hiram Bailey, W. S. Pelouze, J. E. Johnston, J. R. Talcott and W. H. Church, Colonel Robert McKillican, Councilman W. D. Heitman, School Directors Webb N. Pearce, Dr. D. A. MacMullan, George J. W. Stark, President J. W. Evans, Superintendent of Schools McClymonds and Director D. R. Ford. James E. Fowler, a distinguished pioneer, who arrived in California on the ship Brooklyn, in August, 1849, was also in line with the guests in carriages.

It had been intended to provide carriages for all the grand officers, but the latter decided to foot it, at the head of the 300 delegates to the Grand Parlor who were out in full regalia of the order. Many of the delegates wore huge rosettes, at least eighteen inches in diameter, of white and gold ribbon. This closed the first division of the procession.

At the head of the second division was Marshal E. H. Benjamin, mounted on a handsome white charger. He was followed by Cassasa's band of sixteen pieces, who played inspiriting airs for the steps of the Oakland lodge of Elks, who turned out seventy strong. They were arrayed in strictly full dress, including silk hats, and presented a most natty appearance.

Thirty of them formed an advanced guard for a pretty float, composed of a bank of vari-colored roses and callas, from the top of which protruded the head and antlers of a noble elk. Inscribed on the different sides of the float were the mottoes of the order. The float was drawn by a pair of milk-white horses, tandem style. They were draped with nettings of white silk, interwoven with garlands of golden-hued roses.

About thirty members of Liberty Division, Knights of Pythias, followed in full uniform, bearing their handsome banner.

Next came large delegations of the wheelmen of the Acme and Reliance clubs. They were fantastically arranged, and their evolutions during the march of the parade were an additional cause for much amusement and a flow of jocular remarks.

One of the most picturesque features of the pageant was the fine showing made by the local Fire Department. It turned out four engines and hosecarts and two trucks. All were elaborately and handsomely decorated with flags, streamers and shields, scarcely any part of them being visible through their parade dress, except the glitter of the highly polished boilers, which shone through the fretwork of the decorations. All the men were attired in shirts of the brightest red, black trousers, handsome belts and regulation helmets. Engine 1 had an enormous Japanese umbrella erected over the driver's head. Seated astride of the ladders atop of truck 3 was little Harold Willebrandt, the company's mascot. He had a full uniform on, including a helmet, and looked like a picture, with his long curly locks framing his pretty face. Truck 1 carried a live eagle as its mascot. Following engine 6 was little Eddie Mitchell in a miniature cart drawn by a goat, and he was the envy of all the small boys along the route.

Trailing after the fire laddies came the members of the Newsboys' Union of Oakland, carrying a handsome banner and looking quite soldierly in their white straw hats and each with a flag on his right shoulder.

Almost in the van of this division was the superb float of "Eureka," the most elaborate and striking of those in the parade. It was an artistic representation of the seal of the State, the figure of California represented by pretty Mrs. Nellie Hadrien sitting aloft and thrown into bold relief by the huge and gorgeous painting of one of California's typical sunsets. She was attired in flowing robes of white and gold, and her head was surmounted with a golden helmet, with a high crest. She wore a corselet of gold, in her right hand she carried a spear and in her left a shield. On one side of her throne the national flag fell in graceful folds and nestled at her feet, where also lay what appeared to be a fine specimen of a bear.

It was in reality little Harry Smith concealed within the hide of bruin.

Eureka's way was pointed by the First Infantry, U. C. G., band, consisting of eighteen finely uniformed drummers and fifers. The appearance of Eureka was everywhere the signal for cheering and murmurs of admiration.

In the train of this float came another drawn by four finely matched bay horses richly caparisoned. It bore the legend "Alameda Parlor No. 18, Native Daughters of the Golden West." It was bedecked with a floral canopy and under the latter was the bevy of beauties representing the parlor named.

They were followed by the delegation from Oakland Parlor, which was 100 strong. In advance of them were their handsome banners and flags, borne by gentlemen of color. The bear flag and the flag of the Union were also thus borne. The dark suits, white straw hats and blue sashes of the members made a fine appearance.

Behind Oakland Parlor filed the members of Piedmont Parlor No. 120. Their banner was held aloft by four colored standard banners in Turkish costume, and they augmented the number in line by ninety-one. In a wooden box secured to the standard bearers they carried a cub of about two weeks labeled "California's Youngest Son."

Brooklyn Parlor, under the marshalship of H. A. Crandall, to the number of thirty-eight, marched next. What this parlor lacked in numbers it more than made up in the attractiveness of the contributions to the procession. Its banner had the name, number and year of organization worked upon it in flowers in an artistic and effective manner.

It also had a float that shared with Eureka the honors of the day, though of an entirely different character from its rival. It was a miner's cabin of the days of '49, and the representation was so true to nature that one might readily have believed that it had been resurrected from some old-time mining claim. Realism was further given to the tableau by the presence of roughly clad miners and their implements of labor and of defense, the array of guns and revolvers producing many a shudder among the spectators of the weaker sex.

From time to time the notes of a violin floated through the open windows, leaving the inference that the inmates were seeking change from their burdensome routine of life in tripping the light fantastic toe. Then came a coupe drawn by four horses and occupied by a delegation of native daughters. This was the finale.

All the places of business along the line of march closed their doors while the the pagent passed.

When the members of the different parlors passed each other in the countermarch cheers burst forth almost simultaneously that could be heard for many blocks.

At many points groups of schoolchildren had gathered with burdens of lovely flowers, which were thrown to the delegates as they passed.

Even before the parade had got fairly under way there was an unwonted volume of traffic on the electric-car line running to Trestle Glen, the scene of the bullshead feast and barbecue. But when the participants in the parade dispersed the facilities at hand proved altogether inadequate, though five double-deckers had been borrowed from another line. Men, women and children made a general scrabble for a seat or standing room, and many were well satisfied to secure a place to hang on by fingers and toes. That no accident occurred is simply marvelous. From noon until 4 o'clock this mad rush to the free feast was maintained, and before it had been provided 2000 pounds of beef, 1200 pounds of mutton, 33 bulls' heads, 2000 loaves of bread, several kegs of pickles and olives, 47 barrels of beer and about 100 dozen bottles of soda and sarsaparilla.

The meat was roasted in pits in the ground and judging from the avidity with which it was eaten and the rapidity with which it was all consumed must have been done, as one of the delegates remarked, "to the Queen's taste." The sight about the grounds was a peculiar one and one that was highly interesting and amusing.

Gentlemen in full dress—swallow-tails, lawn ties and silk hats—and ladies in swell outdoor gowns and adorned with their new Easter bonnets, were seen scattered about on the grass-covered slopes, a cut of beef or mutton in one hand and a large-sized piece of bread in the other, which they were munching with the enjoyment and abandon of a half-starved tramp.

For those who sought enjoyment in other ways there was an immense dancing pavilion, with a fine band in attendance, and here dancing was kept up till the shadows of night began to fall.

Everything on the grounds was free to all who came.

There was a short session of the Grand Parlor before the festivities of the day began. It opened at 9:30 A. M. The only business transacted was the presentation of resolutions amending the constitutions of local parlors, which were referred to the proper committees, and the adoption of a resolution that no further business shall be transacted after the election of grand officers. Adjournment was then taken until 7:30 in the evening.

On reassembling the following committees were appointed:

On returns—J. T. Harmes, T. J. Dunn, J. T. Robinson.

On literature—John Tatham, M. Miers, W. D. Wayne, L. W. Mooser, J. E. Morton.

H. G. W. Dinkelspiel introduced the following resolution:

WHEREAS, At the twelfth annual session of the Grand Parlor, held in San Rafael in 1889, resolutions were unanimously adopted by that body expressing itself opposed to any proposed division of the State of California; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the delegates constituting the eighteenth annual Grand Parlor, reiterate and reaffirm the sentiments expressed by that body and further declare ourselves unalterably opposed to the creation of two States out of the State of California.

On motion of Grand Trustee E. A. Messerve, the resolution was adopted by a rising vote.

The directors of the Native Sons' Hall Association introduced a resolution asking the Grand Parlor to invest $2500 to the stock of the association. The resolution was made a special order for 2 o'clock today.

On motion of Cassin of Watsonville, the matter of selecting the next Grand Parlor convention seat was made a special order to come up immediately after the selection of the place for holding the Admission day celebration.

Both the treasurer's and secretary's reports were adopted as read on motion of the finance committee.

Adjournment was taken until 9 A. M. today.

WHEAT TRUST SHAKEN.

Two Hundred Thousand Tons of Grain to Be Released.

Said to Be a Part of the Late James Graham Fair's Estate.

There was a flurry in wheat yesterday afternoon, and a still livelier flurry is expected to-day.

It is believed that by an order of court issued by Judge Coffey for the sale of the heavy storage of grain controlled by the estate of James G. Fair, there will be a fluctuation in the market, the like of which has not been seen for years.

There is stored in the warehouses at Port Costa at the present time about 250,000 tons of wheat. Of this amount there are not less than 200,000 tons that belong to what is known among grain speculators "on 'Change" as "the trust." This vast amount of grain is under the immediate control of L. W. McGlauflin.

It has been held in sight so long that all the shippers have come to look upon it as a bugbear in the grain market. The local dealers have fought shy of it because they could not secure the warehouse receipts that would insure its deliverance on board a vessel.

So long has this vast quantity of grain lain in store that it began to rust and it has often been spoken of as musty and weavel-eaten.

The order of the Superior Court will release this vast amount of grain from the bins that have contained it. It is expected that it will go on the market and will produce an effect that cannot be foretold.

Immediately after the death of Fair it was said that great quantities of wheat were tied up in his estate. Inquiries were made on all sides, but the exact condition of the speculation could not be made.

It is now known that L. W. McGlauflin is the nominal holder, that he held the grain trust by force of Fair's capital and that its volume was not increased in any appreciable degree after the death of the capitalist.

BOOM IN CONCERTS.

Armand A. Salomon's Farewell—Miss Pearl Noble's Beribboned Baton. Harmony Union.

It is an unwritten law in San Francisco that concerts shall never come singly, and last night was no exception to the rule. There were four.

The Harmony Choral Union gave its ninth subscription concert in Odd Fellows' Hall, under the direction of Robert Lloyd.

The union consists of a well-drilled chorus of mixed voices, large enough to render operatic or oratorio choruses, and the special forte of the organization is delicacy and finish, which makes it excel especially in the execution of glees and madrigals.

"The Violet Loves a Sunny Bank," by Robert Lloyd, was rendered in an especially graceful manner, the precision being excellent and the shading something that is not often attained in a large band of amateur vocalists.

The "Soldiers' Chorus" from Gounod's "Faust" lost a good deal of its character in being sung by mixed voices.

Among the other composers performed were Rheinberger's "Stars in Heaven," Batson's "To a Coquette," and Mendelssohn's "In the Woods."

The concert tendered to Armand A. Salomon in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium deserved a larger attendance. A number of prominent local musicians were conspicuous by their presence in the audience, however.

Miss Meta Asher, a very young girl, played a gavotte for pianoforte by the great John Sebastian, with remarkable clearness and that good legato touch which denotes the artist.

The First Congregational Church was prettily decorated for the Sunday-school orchestral concert last night.

Miss Pearl Noble, the conductor, wielded her baton very cleverly, and her innovation of having streamers tied to it, was feminine and pleasing to the eye.

The concert began with a pretty overture, "The Fairies' Glen," which the young amateurs played quite cleverly. In fact, throughout the concert they acquitted themselves most creditably.

Among the soloists of the evening were: Miss Maud Noble, Frank Coffin, Miss Charlotte Gruenhagen and Miss Gertrude Judd.

Mrs. Julia Melville Snyder's house on Van Ness avenue scarcely sufficed to hold all the people who attended her pupils' vocal and dramatic entertainment last night.

Mrs. L. J. Murdoch played two pianoforte selections, one by Liszt and the other by Chopin, and the rest of the musicale consisted of songs and recitations.

Several of the students showed themselves to be the possessors of fine voices, notably Miss Fannie E. Ryan, Eugene Pierson and John Hassett. George Walter Egan's recitatious were also applauded and encored. MEL.

THEY SEEK RELIEF.

New Suits Filed Yesterday in the Superior Courts.

A. D. Grimwood has filed an affidavit for a writ of mandate, asking the Supreme Court to compel Justice of the Peace Barry to reopen the trial of himself against Charles M. Plum, Charles M. Plum Jr., Emma D. Taylor, Maurice Higgins, E. A. Mudgett, E. Caswell, Ransome E. Beach and Albert T. Donnell. The case was decided against the defendant, Emma D. Taylor, and a judgment rendered, which judgment Justice of the Peace Barry decided operated as a dismissal against the other defendants.

Hannah Cohn has sued the executrix of the will of Leopold B. Gostorp for $824 for services in reading aloud to Gostorp for two hours a day from July 1, 1892, to October 15, 1894.

Robert A. Hardy has sued G. A. Meiggs for judgment on $4288 50 on a judgment.

E. L. Snell has commenced suit against Dean & Worden for $355 on a contract for materials.

C. B. Williams, Julius H. Belser and L. C. Williams of the firm of Williams, Belser & Co. have sued Frances A. Alberger and others to foreclose a lien for street work.

AFTER FAIR'S MONEY.

Helen Palacios, Alias Dalton, Again Before the Public.

Helen Palacios, alias Dalton, alias Mrs. McDermott, has a new scheme on hand to obtain money under false pretenses. This time she appears as a claimant for some of the late Senator Fair's money.

Some days ago she appeared before a local attorney representing herself as the mother of one of the late capitalist's children. According to her story, her relations with the Senator resulted in the birth of a boy, who, she said, had died shortly before Senator Fair.

In support of her claim she produced a document signed by him, in which she was promised $200,000 for the education and maintenance of her boy. This document purported to have been executed last August, but it bore date "August 4, 1895," eight months after J. G. Fair's death.

Mrs. Palacios is known to the police as a scheming women, having been in several cases against prominent men. In her endeavor to get herself mixed up in the Fair case she has overreached herself, but is clever enough to appreciate the fact as she has not renewed her visits to the attorneys.

The Naval Ball.

Company B, the oldest company of the Naval Battalion of California, will receive its friends in a grand ball, to be held at the Second Regiment Armory on Page and Gough streets next Saturday. Between the dances will be drills by the company, prominent among them being a gundrill by what is considered the best gun's crew in the battalion.

Yale's La Freckla.

Death to Freckles.

Mme. M. Yale was recently asked the question "which of her discoveries she considered the most wonderful." Her reply was as follows: La Freckla, because it unmasked my own face from a filthy mass of freckles and gave me the beautiful rose leaf complexion which you see and which has been admired by the people of every nation. Before I discovered La Freckla I was a freckled face individual, disgusted with my own appearance. To-day I am the envy of every woman who looks at my skin.

La Freckla will remove any case of freckles in existence and leave the skin as transparent as crystal. One or two applications remove tan and sunburn. It takes from three to nine days to destroy every trace of freckles. It is the only remedy known to the world that does this. Now is the time to use La Freckla, as it strengthens the skin, removes and prevents freckles and sunburn. $1.00 per bottle. Sold by all druggists or

WEATHER BUREAU REPORT.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE. WEATHER BUREAU, SAN FRANCISCO, April 23, 5 P. M.—Weather conditions and general forecast:

The pressure continues highest in Nevada and Utah, and lowest in California, but it is falling in all sections except along the immediate coast of California. The warm wave which has prevailed throughout the Pacific Coast States since Sunday has been succeeded by cooler weather this afternoon in the northern portion of California. It still remains warm in the San Joaquin Valley and thence southward, but conditions are favorable for cooler weather to-night. The most unusual weather is in Nevada and Eastern Oregon and Washington this evening, where the temperature is about twenty degrees above the normal and the air extremely dry. At Winnemucca the humidity is so slight that it cannot be measured. Cloudy weather prevails along the coast of California. A light shower occurred this morning at Los Angeles, and condtions are such as to cause scattered very light showers in various portions of the State.

The following are seasonal rainfalls to date as compared with the same date last season: Eureka 39.90, last year 50.42; Red Bluff 27.07, last year 19.15; Sacramento 22.98, last year 13.85; San Francisco 23.98, last year 16.11; Fresno 12.69, last year 6.17; Los Angeles 15.41, last year 6.46; San Diego 11.39, last year 4.03; Yuma 2.97, last year 2.16 inches.

San Francisco data: Maximum temperature 58, minimum 50, mean 54.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 23.—The upward movement of the Stock Exchange received fresh impetus to-day, and a higher range of values was established in the greater number of the shares dealt in. Speculation was active at the opening of business, and the first prices made were generally higher than last night's closing figures. In the early trading fractional gains were made, except in the Coal shares, against which bear demonstration was made, sending the quotations down 1 per cent for New Jersey Central and a fraction for the rest of the list.

The general market soon became irregular. Pullman broke 3 per cent, and Bay State Gas advanced 2, Manhattan 1⅛ and others fractionally. Shortly after 11 o'clock prices took an upward turn, N. J. Central rising 1½, Pullman, Long Island Traction and B. and O. Southwestern 1, D. S. and A. 2, do preferred 1⅞, and other shares ⅛@⅞ per cent. Chicago Gas fell back ⅝, N. J. Central ¾, and C. C. C. and St. L. preferred 1 per cent. Before noon the market had recovered its tone.

In the afternoon there was an easing off of prices, which did not exceed a fraction except in New Jersey Central, the loss in that stock being 1½ per cent. The cordage shares about this time developed strength, and the common moved up ⅞, the preferred 1¾ and the guaranteed ½. The latter stock reacted ½ before the close. Laclede Gas also arose 1 per cent. The changes between 1 and 2 o'clock were unimportant, except the recovery of 1 per cent in New Jersey Central and a decline of ⅞ in Manhattan.

As delivery hour approached speculation grew active and strong, especially for the Grangers. Northwest rose 2⅛, do preferred, Rock Island 1¼, St. Paul ¾ and Burlington ⅝. The coalers were also in good buying, Delaware and Hudson appreciating 1¾, Reading 1½, New Jersey Central and Lackawanna 1½ and Susquehanna 1 per cent. The general list sold up ⅛@1¾, the latter Pullman and Missouri Pacific. At the close the market was active and buoyant with the Grangers and other stocks at the best price of the year.

The trading in bonds was again heavy with a brisk inquiry for Reading issues at the close. The aggregate sales were $3,245,000, in which Atchison 2's figured for $377,000 and the Reading bonds $480,000.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, ILL., April 23.—Wheat turned sharply to-day and started down at a hot pace. Lack of demand and free selling weakened wheat and the other markets followed. Wheat started at 1⅛c decline. Shorts had apparently covered to contentment and there was much bearish news to encourage sellers. The public Liverpool cable, giving the opening of the market, described it as steady at ¼d decline. Another Liverpool cable said that millers were refusing to follow the advance: prices 1d lower since the opening.

The Russian shipments of wheat and flour for the week were reported to be 2,400,000 bushels, and an addition of the clearances from all the exporting countries reveals a total of 8,389,000 bushels, compared with the estimated weekly requirements by the importing countries of 6,700,000 bushels, or an excess of 1,689,000 bushels for the week. The receipts for the day at Minneapolis and Duluth were 286 cars, compared with 138 cars on the corresponding day of the year before. New York dispatches reported 30 boatloads of wheat taken for export there yesterday, and commission-houses here had plenty of inquiries from country millers for No. 2 Red.

The opening of May was at from 60¼c to 60c, and July at from 61½c to 61c, compared with the respective closing prices of 61⅜c and 62⅜c on the day before. A few sales of May were made as low as 59⅞c. The latter recovered to 60⅞c and July to 62c before the second break began, and at about the bottom at which the market closed. May declined to 59½c and July to 60⅝c; the latest trading was 59⅞c for May and 60⅞c for July. Primary market receipts amounted to 233,000 bushels against 181,000 on the corresponding day of last week and 221,000 bushels a year ago.

Export clearantes from the Atlantic ports were equal to 455,000 bushels in wheat and flour. Bradstreet's statement of the stocks of the world gave them at 2,388,000 bushels less than they were a week ago.

The corn market was weak at the start under the influence of the break in wheat. May, which closed yesterday at 48¼c, was for sale at the start at from 47¾c to 47½c, and sold as far as 47¼@48⅜c before it had any reaction. It reacted to 47¾@47⅞c, but broke from that point gradually at first, and then rapidly until it touched 46⅞c near the close, the latest trading being at 47⅛c.

Oats wree fairly active throughout. To a great extent reactions followed the course of the wheat market. Bradstreet's increase in the visible supply of oats of 325,000 bushels was credited to assist in the decline. The feature of the market was the widening of the differences between May and June. At the opening of the session May was selling at a premium of ¼c over July; at the close prices were half a cent apart, caused by an improved inquiry for May, while the late buyers of July to-day were disposing of some quite freely.

May sold from 28¼c to 28⅞c, declined to 28½c and closed at 28½@28⅝c; July ranged from 28½c to 28c, rested at 28@28⅛c, ½@⅞c lower than yesterday.

The provision market was rather quiet, with very little disposition to trade shown by the speculators. George Baldwin tried to wake up some feeling on the bull side, but received very slender support, and retired. The decline in wheat and dullness in the hog market were given as the reasons for the apathy in the products. Fluctuations were light, and at the close the reductions in prices were not heavy. Pork, compared with its value at the close yesterday, is from 2½@5c lower; lard from 5c@7c lower, and ribs show losses about equal to the decline in lard.

The leading futures ranged as follows:

Livestock.

Only about 3500 head of cattle were received to-day, and the small supply prevented any weakness, prices ruling particularly strong for good, fat beeves. There was a fair advance and native steers sold all the way from $4@6 10 for very common to strictly choice lots weighing from 950 to 1500 pounds. The top price was $6 10, paid for a carload of choice Illinois 1500-pound steers, and another carload of fat Illinois cattle that averaged 1471 pounds brought $6 05. A large part of the sales were at $4 90@5 50. Cows sold at $1 75@4 75, the greater part going at $3 25, and bulls sold freely at $2 25@4 75. Texas cattle arrived freely, the receipts being estimated at about 1500 head, steers going chiefly at $3 40@4 75.

The supply of hogs is running ahead of last week, the arrivals so far showing an increase of about 8500 head. Heavy hogs sold at $4 75@5 10, lightweights and mixed hogs at $4 70@4 95 and pigs at $4 25@4 50. The receipts of sheep are much larger than those of last week, and the lack of a vigorous export demand is giving local slaughterers an opportunity to depress the market. The offerings included a good many choice Montana sheep, such as are selling around at $4 25, as well as prime Mexican lambs worth $5 40@5 60. Sheep sold from $2 25@2 50 for very common up to $4 50 for choice, and lambs were saleable at $3 80@5 60.

Receipts—Cattle, 3500; calves, 2500; hogs, 17,000; sheep, 12,000.

STOCKS OF GRAIN.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 23.—Special cable and telegraphic advices to Bradstreet's covering principal points of accumulation in the United States, Canada and Europe, together with supply afloat from all sources, indicate the following changes in available stocks last Saturday as compared with the preceding Saturday. Available supply in United States and Canada, east of the Rocky Mountains—Wheat, decrease, 2,451,000 bushels. United States, Pacific Coast—Wheat, decrease, 129,000. Leading decreases of wheat last week not reported by the official visible supply statement include 310,000 bushels in Northwestern interior elevators, 164,000 at Louisville, 48,000 at Newport News and 33,000 at Leavenworth. The only corresponding increase was 102,000 bushels in Minnesota private elevators.

THE WOOL MARKET.

BOSTON, MASS., April 23.—Although the inactivity which has been pervading the wool market here for some time past still prevails, prices are steady, and the firm tone of markets abroad is having a beneficial effect in strengthening the market here. The near approach of the new clip is the principal factor in keeping buyers from making large purchases, as they are naturally inclined to await the arrival of new stock before making any large purchases. There is a fair supply of old wool, however, in the market, but lots are more or less broken, and before closing up the old stock manufacturers desire to know more about the quality and condition of the new crop. The Australian wool market is steady. Although the offerings are liberal values head firm.

Montana fine, 9@11c; scoured, 30@32c; Northern California spring, defective, 6@6½c; scoured, 22@25c; Australian combing, superfine, 41@42c; Australian combings, 38@40c; cross breeds, quarter blood, 26@28c.

LATEST OAKLAND NEWS.

Municipal Officials Are Worried by Tax Collector Dalton.

MAY APPEAL TO THE COURTS.

Concert of the Treble Clef Quartet—Hurt by a Freight Train.

Tax Collector Dalton has tightened his grip on the salaries of those city employes who have so far failed to put up $2 for their poll tax for the current year by filing a garnishment on the money that is to be paid them by Treasurer Gilpin on May 1.

His action in the matter has raised a warcloud on the horizon, for the public servants do not propose to pay without a struggle, and there are intimations that Auditor Snow and Treasurer Gilpin are in sympathy with their fellow-employes, and that they will begin legal proceedings to raise the embargo placed on their offices by the vigilant collector.

The latter thinks that he has the matter well in hand, for should a city official by any means secure his warrant in spite of the garnishment which has been served on the Auditor, he will run against the same barrier in the Treasurer's domain. He says that he is sorry to employ such methods to do his duty to the county, but that he believes every citizen should pay his tax, whether he is an employe of the municipality or not.

There are others, too, who are making vigorous protests and they are the brokers who for a consideration discount the warrants of policemen, firemen, city clerks, or in fact any official who desires to get his money before it is due.

Many of those on the city payroll have already hypothecated their warrants for April's salary for their full face value less the broker's discount and are in a position to laugh at the Tax Collector. The present owners of the warrants will have to stand the tax or wait for a future chance to get it from their customers.

In any event Collector Dalton seems to be on the right end and will try to keep there as long as there are any delinquents to be prodded into yielding $2 to the tax collectors.

There are now about 300 on his list, including many policemen and firemen. About 100 have taken the cue and paid up.

Treble Clef Quartet.

Social and musical enthusiasts are waiting with much pleasant expectation for the Treble Clef Quartet concert which takes place at the First Congregational Church on Friday evening, May 3.

Miss Ina Griffin, who recently returned from a five years' course of study of music under the best German masters, will be heard in concert for the first time since her return. Miss Griffin is said to be a pianist of rare ability and will add much to the interest in the performance. Miss Jean Hush, the well-known violinist, will also play.

This will be the last concert of the quartet composed of Miss Beatrice Priest, Mrs. A. M. Noble, Miss Jeanette Wilcox and Mrs. J. E. Bermingham, as a combination, as Mrs. Bermingham leaves shortly for New York to pursue her musical studies.

Not an Anarchist.

Professor George D. Herron delivered the first of a series of five lectures on "Christian Socialism" at the First Congregational Church on Monday evening.

He denied emphatically the accusation that he is an anarchist, but describes himself as a plain follower of Christ in the simplest and fullest sense of the term.

His discourse was aimed to convince his hearers that the church has drifted away from the mission it was founded to fill and that there is too little real life in religion and too little of true Christianity in its practice.

He believes that the true path to social reformation is through Christianity, simplified and purified of worldly affairs, which lead the thoughts of men away from Christ.

Injured by a Train.

John P. Jones Jr., one of the Southern Pacific switchmen who went on strike during the A. R. U. troubles last year, met with an accident yesterday while attempting to board a freight train at First street and Broadway which will render his right hand useless for life.

He was running to catch the "cannon ball" on its way to the mole, and had just reached it when he stumbled against a piece of wood in the roadway and fell. His right hand went under the wheels and was terribly mangled. At the Receiving Hospital Dr. Hamlin amputated the first and second fingers, besides sewing up a lacerated cut which laid open the palm.

Complain of the Sweepers.

Merchants on Broadway, Washington and other streets are considering a protest to the Board of Public Works regarding the present manner in which street-sweeping is done. They claim that the horse-power sweepers do not follow the sprinkling carts closely enough, and that by the time the sweepers come along the streets the dust, which is raised in clouds, damages their goods.

ALAMEDA.

The wedding of Miss Louise Teller to Erastus Holden of Sacramento was solemnized in Christ Episcopal Church Monday evening. The church never looked prettier in its wealth of floral decorations, which were of the colonial style. At 9 o'clock the bridal party entered the church. The bride was given away by her father and the nuptial ceremony was performed by Rev. E. B. Spaulding, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church of San Francisco, assisted by Rev. A. T. Perkins. After the ceremony the wedding party and invited guests were conveyed in carriages to the home of the bride on Santa Clara avenue. A string band had been provided and dancing occupied the evening, followed by a sumptuous wedding feast.

City Hall Cornerstone.

The cornerstone of the new City Hall will be laid on Saturday, April 11, by the Grand Lodge of Masons, and efforts are being made to have the event celebrated with much pomp and eclat. Alameda Parlor No. 47, N. S. G. W., recently petitioned the City Trustees to be awarded that honor. Then Pawnee Tribe of Red Men made a request to be granted the privilege. The Trustees decided in favor of the Masons. The Committee on Public Buildings have the affair in charge and will endeavor to have the day observed as a holiday.

A New Cycling Club.

A meeting of the Alameda Cycling Club was held in Linderman Opera-house last evening. Organization was effected by electing the following officers: Dr. E. H. Lake, president; J. E. Ewald, secretary and treasurer; F. E. Graham, captain; T. E. Graham, first lieutenant; W. F. Pratt, second lieutenant. The initiation fee was placed at $2 50. Another meeting will be held Monday evening, when the organization will be completed.

Contest for Chief Engineer.

A stipulation has been filed by the attorneys in the Chief Engineer contest postponing the hearing this evening another week. Colonel Babcock, attorney for the defendant, Krauth, is attending the G. A. R. convention at Sacramento. It is claimed that some startling disclosures will be made before the case is finally decided.

Again Postponed.

The matter of the appointment of the Board of Free Library Trustees has been postponed for the second time. City Attorney Taylor informed the City Trustees that a number of legal complications are involved, and he has doubts whether the offices are appointive. Another question is whether the Legislature has any right to fix the term of an appointive office. The act of 1880 creating library boards makes them elective. Two of the City Trustees were in favor of appointing new members Monday night, but the matter was referred to the City Attorney for his opinion.

BERKELEY.

The regular weekly meeting of the Board of Town Trustees was held on Monday evening.

The People's party executive committee presented the names of persons eligible for the election boards in each ward. No action was taken on the matter.

The election proclamation was read for the first time and laid over until the next meeting. All names and dates were left blank and will be filled out at the next regular meeting of the board.

A bill of $61 was presented for constables' fees, but it was rejected and referred back to the Town Attorney.

Several of the board rejoiced heartily over the fact that the new charter, which will go into effect on May 13, will do away with constables altogether, for they have experienced more or less difficulty recently in the matter of reaching a satisfactory decision as to the amounts the different constables were entitled to for work done.

Military Ball.

The military ball to be given in Harmon Gymnasium by the university students this evening promises in every way to be a great success. The officers of the battalion have the arrangements in charge, and the order of costumes for the evening will be military suits for the commissioned officers and evening dress for others. A number of guests from Mare Island and the Presidio are expected to be present and by their presence add to the martial dignity of the occasion.

North Goes East.

Arthur North, manager of the U. C. track team which expects to leave for the East next week, will go to his home in Yolo County this afternoon, where he will remain for a day or two with his parents, and then leave for Philadelphia to complete arrangements for the oncoming athletic team.

General Notes.

A small fire, caused from a leaking gasoline stove, broke out at the residence of S. C. Partridge on Milvia street yesterday morning, but it was extinguished before much damage was done.

The entertainment to be given by the King's Daughters of the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb and Blind has been postponed from Friday evening, April 26, to May 3.

The funeral of Mrs. J. H. Congdon, the wife of a well-known Berkeley business man, will take place to-day at 2 o'clock from 706 Gough street, San Francisco.

Dr. George D. Herron addressed a large audience of professors and students at Stiles Hall yesterday afternoon on the topic of "Christianity as Applied to Modern Times."

ISAACS IS SUSPENDED.

The Harbor Commissioners Lay the Collector Off for Nine Days.

Bonds for State Employes—Advertising Signs at the Ferry Must Go.

The proceedings of the Board of State Harbor Commissioners were somewhat enlivened yesterday by the investigation of the charges of insubordination made against Alfred Isaacs, collector at Main-street wharf, wherein he had been accused of making remarks reflecting upon the board in relation to a so-called "job" in the purchase of the new uniforms for wharfingers and collectors along the water front in the employ of the State. Isaacs, it will be remembered, said that men had been hanged on less evidence than that which showed that there was a job in the uniform business.

Isaacs was on hand and was examined by Tirey L. Ford.

The attorney asked him if he had used the words which had been attributed to him in the CALL.

He admitted that he had, and was then asked what he meant by them.

"Oh, I meant them in a general way," replied Isaacs; "that is what I heard. I have heard several people express dissatisfaction at the manner of purchasing the new suits from Pascal, the tailor. Mr. Boobar ordered me to go to Pascal. I did not want to go, because I thought I could get them cheaper elsewhere."

"Did Mr. Boobar direct you to go to Pascal," asked Mr. Ford.

"Well, everybody understood that they were to go there. I thought some one was making money out of it. I know others who have made more specific charges than I have. Jack Hayes and a man named Levi can tell you more about it than I can. Levi told me that Wharfinger Buckley informed him Boobar was making a piece out of the thing. I can also name many others who would testify to the same condition of things."

"Oh, we are not trying the whole water front," interrupted Commissioner Cole.

"Well," said Isaacs, "Mr. Buckley said hat Boobar had told him that he was under obligations to Pascal and he wanted the men to go to the tailor for their suits. I went there with Wharfinger Lysett and asked to see the goods. Pascal refused to show me a sample of the goods, so I left and bought a ready-made suit."

"Were you directed to any place?" asked Chairman Colnon.

"No, sir. I bought my ready-made suit for $18."

"Well," asked the chairman, "was there any foundation for the charges which you made against this board?"

"No, not directly," replied Isaacs, "but if you give me a chance I will bring others here who will testify to the same thing."

After a few more questions the examination was concluded, and on motion of Commissioner Chadbourne Isaacs was suspended for nine days without pay, which will mean a pecuniary loss of $29.

It was intimated by the chairman that if any other State employe on the water front makes similar remarks about the board his dismissal would follow.

It was decided after some discussion that in future all employes of the board should give bonds indorsed by some reliable surety company.

It was also resolved that all advertising signs around the ferry depot should be removed. The board then adjourned until to-morrow at 1 P. M.

MURDER OF DR. PLOUF.

J. D. L. McGaughey Held to Answer Before the Superior Court.

The preliminary examination of J. D. L. McGaughey, charged with the murder of Dr. J. E. Plouf, was concluded yesterday morning before Judge Conlan.

The prosecution rested its case last Friday, and Attorney Eddy, for the defendant, intimated yesterday that he would not submit any testimony for the defense.

The Judge summed up the evidence briefly. The two had met on Market street. Dr. Plouf struck the defendant with his cane, knocking him down, and the defendant drew a revolver and fired four shots into the doctor's body. He would not accept the responsibility of determining the case, and thought it was better for a jury to decide upon the facts. He would therefore hold the defendant to answer before the Superior Court, without bonds.

The Only Remedy.

Those who suffer from foul breath are open to the charge of carelessness. It is an offense that can be speedily abated, as a single bottle of the fragrant SOZODONT will unmistakably accomplish the work. It will preserve and keep the teeth white and the breath pure and sweet.

AN EASTERN CONNECTION.

The Central Arizona Railway Company Wants to Join the New Road.

FIVE OUTLETS IN THE EAST.

Offers to Be Made to San Francisco, San Diego and Salt Lake.

The Central Arizona Railroad Company will probably in a few days make a bid for connection with the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railroad, basing the advocacy of their proposition on the fact that theirs, being a north and south line, crossing five railroads east of the Sierras, can give as many connections with the East, and so solve the question of getting competition in Eastern communities.

Wells Hendershott, who is the attorney for the Central Arizona Railway Company and for the Hudson Reservoir and Canal Company of Arizona, allied corporations, is in town, and will be followed on Saturday by ex-United States Senator John Martin of Kansas, who is the president of the canal company. Their mission here is to see what can be done in the way of getting this city, either through the people or the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railroad and the city of San Diego, to join with their people and the people of Salt Lake in putting the road through.

The road, as proposed, is to run from Salt Lake down through the center of Arizona to Nogales on the Mexican border, forming there a connection with the road from that point down to Guaymas and from the Superstition Mountains to Yuma.

The offers that will be made are indefinite as yet, but it is proposed that the cities of Salt Lake, San Diego and San Francisco be interested, and that in the road San Diego represent one-fifth, San Francisco one-fifth, Hudson Reservoir and Canal Company one-fifth, the lumber interest one-fifth and Salt Lake one-fifth, each having a representative in the board of directors or possibly trustees to see that each of the different localities would be represented in case it was for their interest in the construction of the road.

Mr. Hendershott said yesterday that the question is being agitated in Salt Lake, where they are anxious to get a connection with San Diego, and that the matter would soon be brought to the attention of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and the San Diego Board of Trade, San Diego of all cities in the State being most interested in getting competition in Eastern connections.

Speaking yesterday of the proposed road, Mr. Hendershott said:

That the railway company is a matter of the most importance to the Pacific Coast will be readily seen by reference to the maps, the reference to which, and the present condition of affairs, show that the coast has always been subservient to the Southern Pacific Railway Company. It will be seen that by the building of a road from Salt Lake to Nogales and from the Superstition Mountains to Yuma that an outlet of the coast may be had with five different railroads now in active operation connecting with the East. If the San Joaquin Valley Railroad could connect with this north and south road it would seem that it was a matter of more than ordinary importance to not only the city of San Francisco, but San Diego and Los Angeles as well. This road would give direct connection with the Union Pacific, Denver and Rio Grande, Chicago and Rock Island, Atlantic and Pacific and the St. Louis and San Francisco, which will probably be built from the Indian Territory into Albuquerque (which is in fact the Atlantic and Pacific), thus giving the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railroad the advantage of situation could they intersect this road from Salt Lake to Nogales.

It is a well-known fact that the people of San Diego and the people of San Francisco have heretofore been handicapped with reference to Eastern roads having a terminus on the coast. The question would therefore be as to whether the building of this road from Salt Lake to Nogales and from the Superstition Mountains to Yuma would be of benefit to the coast.

As to the question whether the Central Arizona Railway Company would construct its road over and upon a route that would be a paying one, we have only to call your attention to certain facts that now exist. Commencing from Mildred, in the Territory of Utah, and running from there to Lees ferry, the road would necessarily traverse a country containing large iron deposits, and these iron deposits are said to be not excelled anywhere in the United States. A little south, and prior to crossing Lees ferry, there is in addition to the iron deposits extensive coal deposit second to none in the United States. Starting south from Lees ferry and from Flagstaff, it would traverse about eighty miles of virgin forests, the finest pine timber forest in its entirety between the two oceans.

This forest is an island of timber with a timberless country for from three to five hundred miles in all directions from Flagstaff, and it must be the source of large supplies of that variety to the country and region which is geographically tributary to it.

The line of road already graded extends through this timber country. A branch line is contemplated to afford an outlet for the products of the upper Verde Valley of 200,000 acres of arable land. Also for the mineral output of the mountain range of undeveloped bodies, one of which bodies is now said by those having made personal investigation to have $20,000,000 worth of copper ore in sight. The agricultural valley above mentioned and the ore deposits would be a source of immense traffic.

Commencing from Flagstaff and running south leaving the timber forest the line would enter a fertile region encircled by mountains, traversed by running streams and capable of raising every product of the temperate zone. Gold and silver abound in the mountains. This road, running down to the Diversion dam, as contemplated by the Hudson Reservoir and Canal Company, 1200 feet above the mouth of the Verde, a water power is created, the largest in the West, and arrangements are already made for the railroad to have facilities with reference to this water power.

The 1,100,000 acres of land lying in the Salt River Valley which is subject to entry under the desert land act is being rapidly taken up by persons desiring to locate upon the public domain, and it is the opinion of those conversant with the matter that there will not be one single acre of it left unoccupied and coming in under the irrigation enterprise of the Hudson Reservoir and Canal Company within two years; this, taken together with the immense coal, iron and lumber interests will afford prospects unequaled by any other contemplated railroad.

MANIE PAYNE FERGUSON.

The Missionary From Southern California at the St. Paul Mission.

A Solemn Warning to Those Who Have Not the Spirit of Holiness.

Mrs. Manie Payne Ferguson, a missionary from Los Angeles and Southern California, conducted the service last evening in St. Paul Mission, on Mission street, between Fifth and Sixth, where for some time past revival services have been held.

There was a large congregation, and it was an earnest one, which took a lively interest in the sermon preached by the visiting missionary.

Mrs. Ferguson, a woman a little above the medium height, somewhat stout and attired in a very plain suit of black, is a fluent speaker, never at a loss for words to express her ideas. "I know but very few faces here," she said, "but I wish to say that I will conduct this service after my own fashion. As I cannot call any one by name I will ask some brother who is in touch with the Lord and with the throne to lead in prayer."

Mrs. Ferguson took for her text the story of the ten virgins who went to watch for the coming of the bridegroom.

This the preacher said applied to people of the present time, to those who are waiting for the second coming of Christ. The lamp, she said, was the heart, and the oil was the spirit of holiness that burned within it. She wanted to know how many there were who had the lamp but not the oil, and in a most fervent manner urged her hearers to fill those lamps with oil, so as to be ready to meet the bridegroom, who is coming in a little while. By the bridegroom she said she meant Christ. "Why," said the preacher, "I was in my little room in Los Angeles a few days since washing my hands, when I looked out of an east window and saw a bright light. In a moment I thought that Christ was coming. I was ready to meet him, and was so glad that I could have jumped out of that window. I only cite this to show that we should be ready at all times to receive the bridegroom, who is surely coming." The force of her sermon was to show that those who are not prepared will like the foolish virgins be shut out not from the feast, but from eternal salvation and joy everlasting in the new Jerusalem.

In giving her testimony after the sermon, Mrs. Ferguson said that she would not give a nickel for a deed to the city of San Francisco if she did not feel that she was certain of going into the presence of Jesus. "I would not mind having the Palace Hotel as a place to hold revival services in, but I care not for the pomp and vanities of the world. All I want is something to eat and something to wear, but I am not very particular as to either. I have been asked to accept presents, but have always refused them, as I have no use for them. I want Jesus, and say to all, 'Take the world, but give me Jesus.' Do as I have done. Get full of the spirit of Jesus and you'll have a camp meeting in your hearts for all time."

During the evening many arose and gave testimony of their belief in the coming of the Lord in a little while.

This evening Evangelist H. Lawson of Santa Clara will preach, and to-morrow night Dr. P. Brett Morgan will address the congregation.

TO-MORROW'S AUCTION.

Adolph Sutro's Lots on Ashbury Heights Will Be Sold by Von Rhein & Co.

The peremptory auction of seventy-five lots on Ashbury Heights, the property of Mayor Sutro, will take place at the salesrooms of Von Rhein & Co., 513 California street, at 12 o'clock to-morrow. By the terms of the sale only one fifth cash is required. The lots range in size from 25x100 to 40x100 and afford an unsurpassed view of the ocean and bay in the distance, and the city and Golden Gate Park at the foot of the heights. It is thought that in time the Eighteenth-street branch of the Joost electric line, which passes along the entire Ashbury-street front of this property, will be a favorite route to Golden Gate Park on account of the splendid view.

DICK HEATH'S REPUTATION

A Large Number of Fresno Residents Testify That It Is Bad.

His Suit Against the "Examiner" Draws a Throng of Spectators.

The suit of Richard Heath against the Examiner for libel in having published an account of a fracas at the Grand Hotel bar in which it was alleged that Heath was concerned continued to attract a large attendance at Judge Hunt's courtroom yesterday. One of the attractions was the presence of well-known counsel, Garret McEnerney and Grove Johnson appearing for the defendant, while the plaintiff was represented by W. H. L. Barnes.

Almost the whole of yesterday was consumed in the taking of testimony for the defense showing the general bad reputation of Plaintiff Heath. A large number of witnesses from Fresno, some of whom figured in the famous Heath trials at that place, were subpenaed, and their evidence was practically unanimous that in a general way Heath's name did not command respect in their midst.

After C. M. Coe, an Examiner reporter, had told his story of the recital of the account complained of the following witnesses were examined: W. W. Machean, Mrs. L. J. Craycroft, C. J. Craycroft, J. W. Douglass, L. Burkes, Albert Dilley, C. W. Garrett, W. Shaw, M. S. Rose, L. Haas, J. W. Shanklin, F. S. Cowan, Taylor Albin, F. J. Burleigh, S. S. Croucher, S. C. St. John, F. T. Hilton, B. W. Doyle.

All these witnesses hailed from Fresno and all, with the exception of F. S. Cowen, a hotel-keeper, who did not know much about Heath, testified that the latter's reputation for peace and sobriety was bad. The monotony of the evidence was only varied by tilts between the opposing counsel. Attorneys Johnson and McEnerney retained Detective C. J. Stillwell in close attendance throughout the day.

Most of the witnesses knew that Heath bore a bad reputation and cited their knowledge of his associates and habits. Under cross-examination by General Barnes they were often hard pressed to specify the exact persons who told them these things and the exact dates and places of the information communicated. Among his associates were mentioned John Daly, Senator Goucher, Reel Terry, Billy Levison and others. It was endeavored to show that he had been concerned in disreputable fights and had been seen in questionable places, but not all the facts sought to be introduced before the jury were held relevant by the court.

A. B. Henderson, managing editor of the Examiner, was called to testify to the high reputation of C. M. Coe as a newspaper man. General Barnes waived cross-examination and the case went over to this morning.

HIS DEFENSE THE TRUTH.

Charles M. Shortridge Answers the Libel Suit of J. G. Chase.

In the case of John G. Chase, a contractor, against Charles M. Shortridge, proprietor of the San Francisco CALL, for libel the defendant yesterday filed answer.

He admitted the publication of the article complained of in the CALL of February 8 last, and denied that it was false or unprivileged, or that to his knowledge and belief it wrought the plaintiff any damage. The defendant specifically denied that the article "belonged to a series of articles attacking the order of Foresters," as complained.

Furthermore the defendant declared that every portion of the alleged libel was true. The attorneys for the defendant are John E. Richards and Delmas & Shortridge.

FINE ROSES AND MUSIC.

The State Floral Society's Semi-Annual Exhibit of Flowers.

LONG LIST OF CASH PRIZES.

The Rose Show Will Be Held in the Palace Hotel Early in May.

The eleventh semi-annual exhibition and rose show of the California State Floral Society will be held in the maple and marble rooms of the Palace Hotel on May 2, 3 and 4. Great preparations are being made for the exhibition, both by the members of the society and those who are enthusiasts on the subject of rare and beautiful garden and hothouse plants.

While the roses will be the leading feature of the show hundreds of other flowers will be exhibited. The committee of arrangements—composed of Professor Emory E. Smith of Palo Alto, Mrs. Austin Sperry of 2100 Pacific avenue, Mrs. Helen A. A. Cross of 718 Waller street, Mrs. Amos Mecartney of Alameda and Mrs. Orville D. Baldwin of 3700 Washington street—held a meeting yesterday and perfected many of the preliminary arrangements.

The committee is highly gratified by receiving twenty-five applications for space at this early day, as it is not usual for applications to come in until just before the exhibition opens.

It is believed that altogether there will be between seventy-five and eighty exhibitors, each of whom will present many varieties of flowers and plants. Professor Smith stated that the society expects to present a vast number of new varieties of roses and other flowers this year. The table and window decorations already promised will indeed be beautiful features of the show. The secretary reported that at present there are over 200 active members of the society, and the monthly meetings are largely attended. A few years ago the society was considerably in debt but now nearly all the debts have been liquidated.

The ladies of the committee state that they have about 3000 square feet of room for exhibition purposes, and even with this space they do not expect to have any room to spare.

After some discussion it was decided to adopt rules and regulations to govern the competitions and show as were enforced at previous shows.

Premiums amounting to several hundred dollars will be given and the following premium list was adopted:

Class A—Cut flowers (open to amateurs): Roses, largest and best variety, $10; roses, second largest and best variety, $5; roses, twenty-five best variety, $7 50; roses, twelve best variety, $5; roses, hybrid perpetual, including tea, largest and best collection, $7 50; roses, largest and best collection introduced since January, 1892, the society's ribbon; carnations, largest and best collection, $7 50; carnations, second largest and best collection, $5; carnations, twelve best and distinct varieties, $3; pelargoniums, best and largest collection cut blooms, $7 50; pelargoniums, second best and largest collection cut blooms, $5; geraniums, largest and best collection, $5; geraniums, second largest and best collection, $3; pansies, best collection, $3; best collection cut flowers, varieties exhibited singly, $10; second best collection cut flowers, $7 50; sweet peas, best collection, not less than ten varieties, $5; sweet peas, second best collection, not less than six varieties, $3; clematis, largest and best collection, $5; largest and best collection of tuberous rooted and bulbous flowers, $7 50; best collection of hardy herbaceous flowers, $7 50.

A. PAGE BROWN IS BLUE.

The Ferry Depot Architect Hates to Talk About His Work.

HE WANTS TIME FOR THOUGHT.

Will Need About a Year in Which to Prepare His Explanation.

A. Page Brown, architect of the State's depot foundations at the foot of Market street, is preparing thunder in the controversy now pending between Engineer Howard C. Holmes and Detective C. J. Stilwell. Mr. Brown announced yesterday afternoon that he would take ample time in preparing for his part of the explosion, and that before he took part in the pyrotechnics he would consult the Harbor Commissioners and such other persons as he thought would be proper under the circumstances.

"I prepared the plans and specifications for the depot and ferry piers here in my office," Mr. Brown said yesterday. "And I was paid for my services by order of the Harbor Commissioners."

"Who wants to see Mr. Brown?" he asked, when first accosted in his office. He was in the act of folding and unfolding large sheets of drawing paper bearing the perspectives of ferry piers that are to be—or have been, or ought to be.

When told that the caller was a reporter, Mr. Brown said:

"Well, sir; Mr. Brown is not in to-day—probably he will not be in to reporters and other inquisitive persons for two or three days to come. Mr. Brown isn't ready. Besides there was enough in the papers this morning to do for some time. No, Mr. Brown is out."

"When will you be in, Mr. Brown?" asked the reporter, readily identifying the gentleman to whom he was speaking.

This abrupt and unexpected question seemed to amuse the architect, who had thus far played the incognito act. He dropped the plans which he held in his hands and gave his black mustache a vigorous twist on each side. After a moment's pause he said:

"I will not be interviewed to-day—positively not."

"When will you be interviewed on the subject of water-front work in general and ferry piers in particular?"

"Not for a day or two. I shall first have a consultation with the Harbor Commissioners; then I will prepare a statement for publication," he replied, as he made another lunge with both hands after more pictures of prospective ferry piers and foundations.

"Did you prepare the plans and specifications for the ferry piers?" was asked.

"Yes, I did. It was all done here in my office."

"And you were paid for that work?"

"Yes; certainly," replied Mr. Brown, with a series of beaming smiles. "The Harbor Commissioners ordered my bills paid."

"Did you superintend the work in general?"

"Excuse me. I have no more to say on the subject at present. Come in some other day and I may talk more freely to you on this subject."

After this remark Mr. Brown disappeared within his private office, and all efforts to make him reappear were futile.

DIDN'T STOP THE FLUE.

Judge Belcher Issues an Order on the Sheriff Without Effect.

Sheriff Whelan presented himself before the City Hall Commission at its meeting yesterday morning with a document signed by Judge Belcher ordering him to stop up the flues which are supposed to ventilate his courtroom, but which instead, he says, carry up impure air from the basement and form a menace to his health and that of the officials of his court.

Mayor Sutro was inclined to think the complaint of the Judge was good and that it was of the first importance to do away with health-destroying nuisances. He said that he had discovered only a few days ago a deposit of some eighty cubic yards of filth near his office that percolated through the walls. He thought the sanitary system of the hall should be looked into, and that the man who planted the heating apparatus in the sub-basement should be sent to jail.

City Attorney Creswell remarked that the flues from the basement opened into his office and he had never seen any ill effects result. He had noticed, he said, that persons newly elected to office were prone to develop fad notions on the health question. Judge Belcher, he said, had no right to order the Sheriff to make changes in the architectural arrangements of the building. The commission would attend to that.

Superintendent Mellus volunteered to conduct the Mayor on a tour of inspection through the sub-basement, which he consented to, and in the meantime the flues into Judge Belcher's court remain as they were.

SPRINGER IN POVERTY.

Worth Millions Once, but Now a Lumber-Yard Laborer.

Jason Springer, an old-time resident of this city and at one time the wealthiest lumber-dealer in the State, was brought from Dunsmuir as a witness by the United States Marshal yesterday. He was summoned to appear in one of the counterfeiting cases now before the United States courts, but sent back word that he had no money with which to pay transportation. A process had therefore to be issued and placed in the hands of Marshal Baldwin to secure his attendance.

Springer's lumber-yards used to be on Front street, and on three different occasions they were burned down. As there was no insurance, the disasters ruined him. Finally he moved to Dunsmuir, and was working in a lumber-yard for a living when the Marshal summoned him to appear in San Francisco.

MRS. JOHNSON'S WILL.

The Bulk of the Estate Goes to Her Relatives.

The will of Margaret Johnson, who died on the 18th inst., was filed for probate yesterday. The value of the estate is about $25,410. The will nominates Garrett Burke executor and leaves him $1000; gives to decedent's sister, Julia Robinson, $500; to a brother, John Kiernan, $5000; Rev. Father Casey, pastor of St. Peter's Church of this city, $200; Rev. Father Lyons of the same church, $200; to the executor, $200 to preserve and beautify testatrix's plot at Holy Cross Cemetery; to St. Peter's Church, $100; to J. C. O'Connor, undertaker, for funeral expenses, $150.

The residue is given in equal shares to John Kiernan, Julia Robinson, Thomas Peter Robinson, Hannah Mariah Leonard, Mary Christina Robinson, Margaret Bowen and Miss Julia Robinson or their survivors.

FAIR AND THE LICK TRUST.

Special Authority Asked for the Payment of $100,000.

Charles M. Plum, Edwin B. Mastick and George Schonewald, as surviving trustees of the James Lick trust, have petitioned the Probate Court in the matter of the estate of James Graham Fair for an order authorizing the special administrators to pay out of the estate $100,000 on account of a promissory note and mortgage executed September 12, 1894. The mortgage is on property on Montgomery and Sutter streets, including the Lick Hotel valued at $100,000.

The petitioners state that the money is all ready for payment, and that the late Senator intended to pay it before his death. They declare that in view of the fact that already two wills have been filed there is likely to be considerable delay before the estate can be distributed, and that, therefore, they are obliged by the exigencies of winding up their trust to ask for the authorization in question.

The matter of the contest of the Fair will, as regards the course of procedure as to the precedence of wills to be considered, was to have been taken up yesterday, but on the motion of Attorney Pierson, who alleged the enforced absence of Attorney Garret McErnerny, engaged in the Heath case, it was continued to Friday afternoon next.

DR. H. M. BIEN'S SUICIDE.

The Eminent Hebrew Divine Was Well Known in This City.

He Was Rabbi of the Temple Emanu-El and Wrote Several Books.

A telegram printed in yesterday's morning papers was read with considerable interest by the Jewish residents of this city and formed an absorbing topic of discussion and conversation among the older of them. The telegram was as follows:

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., April 22.—Dr. H. M. Bien, a well-known Jewish rabbi, committed suicide here by taking morphine. He came to Birmingham from Vicksburg, Miss., last week to secure the pastorate of Temple Emanuel. He preached for that congregation Friday night, but was not engaged, objection being made to his age.

The Rev. H. M. Bien was an old-time resident of San Francisco. He was the predecessor of Rabbi Elkan Cohn in the pastorate of the Congregation Emanu-El, of which Dr. Jacob Voorsanger is the incumbent.

Dr. Bien came to this city in 1859. He was immediately placed at the head of affairs at the Temple Emanu-El, and for seven years worthily held that post. He was the author of many books on religion and kindred subjects, among others "Ben Beor" and "Samson and Delilah."

He also wrote one or two dramatized versions of scriptural scenes, suitable for performance by Sabbath-school children. Dr. Bien left San Francisco in 1865 to go to New York, when the position was given to Rabbi Elkan Cohn. On the death of Dr. Cohn the pastorate of the Congregation Emanu-El was offered to and accepted by Rabbi Voorsanger, the well-known Hebrew divine and Talmudist.

On leaving this city Dr. Bien went to New York, and shortly after his arrival there he was offered a position in Dallas, Tex. He left there to take charge of a congregation in Vicksburg, Miss., where he remained fifteen years. About a fortnight ago he applied for a position in Birmingham, Ala., and, as stated in the dispatch, he preached before the Hebrew congregation in that city last Friday night. He was not elected, however, solely on account of being considered too old to fill the position.

Dr. Bien had a brother residing on Pierce and O'Farrell streets, this city. He also had a son, who was employed in the office of a prominent firm of Jewish attorneys. This son left for home immediately upon receiving the news of his father's death.

No reason can be assigned for Rabbi Bien's suicide except his very natural disappointment and despondency at not being elected to the position he sought in Birmingham.

YOSEMITE OPEN.

Governor Budd Will Spend His Summer Vacation in the Valley.

Galen Clark, the guardian of the Yosemite Valley, has sent an interesting report to Commissioner John F. Sheehan, in which he states that the carriage roads in the valley have been put in order and cleared of the obstructions left by the winter storms. Cascade avenue is also safe for travel. The new Pohono bridge that crosses the Merced River at the lower end of the valley is finished. The old structure was swept away by torrents a year ago. The trails to Yosemite and Nevada falls are now open, as well as the trail to Glacier Point. The Stoneman and Sentinel hotels are open for the summer. On the 1st of June the Commissioners will visit the valley, accompanied by Governor Budd.

The Governor will spend his vacation in the valley, and has promised himself the pleasure of hunting and fishing there during the entire month of June. His presence will, no doubt, attract many of his friends to the same resort, and the hotelkeepers are preparing for several grand balls and parties at the hotels.

LOVE AND POISON.

The Strange Case of Two Bay View Fishermen.

Vincenz Castaguta, accompaied by his wife, called upon Warrant Clerk Graham of Judge Joachimsen's court yesterday and swore out a warrant for the arrest of G. Bichiani on the charge of attempting to kill.

Castaguta and Bichiani are fishermen at Bay View, South San Francisco. Bichiani fell in love with Castaguta'a wife and induced her to poison her husband so that he could marry her. She was afraid to do so, and Bichiani, on Monday, put some arsenic in Castaguta's coffee.

Castaguta swallowed a portion of the coffee, when his wife, in a repentant mood, told him what Bichiani had done, and that he had advised her to poison him. The husband forgave her, and after recovering from his scare went in search of Bichiani, but did not find him. The police are now hunting for him.

STREET RAILWAY GUARDS.

A New One Was Tried Yesterday on West Mission Street.

IT SEEMED TO WORK WELL.

Several of the Supervisors Were on Hand to See the Test.

There was great excitement along West Mission street yesterday afternoon when the Supervisors were witnessing a test of a new fender for electric cars. There was a crowd, a car stopped for a suspiciously long time, and a "dummy man" lying on the track, all of which was sufficient to induce people to run from all directions to see what had happened. As a consequence the test was witnessed by some hundreds of people.

The fender being tested yesterday is the result of experience and the hundreds of suggestions regarding the matter which have come to the railroad people from every source. E. P. Vining, superintendent of the street railroad system, was there to explain and describe the fender, and the number of suggestions which he received from the crowd may prove of value to him, for every inventor in the Mission was there to see and to criticize.

The fender tested is a concave steel screen placed just in front of the wheels of the car. It curves down from just below the bottom of the car until it runs nearly parallel with the ground and not more than two inches above it. On its forward edge is a strip of rubber about six inches wide, which, upon the least pressure, is borne down until it sweeps the ground. Under this are a number of little rollers upon which the screen itself will run, should it be weighted down until it touches the pavement. The screen projects about eight inches beyond the wheels and the rails and is bolted rigidly to the frame of the truck. In itself, however, there is sufficient elasticity for all practical purposes.

In the car which was being tested were two fearfully and wonderfully made dummies, a "man" and a "boy." The "boy" was tried first. He was laid upon the track entirely between the rails and the car was run toward him at full speed. Just as it reached him the current was thrown off and the brakes put on tight. The dummy was picked up on the rubber edge of the screen and was carried along for two or three feet until the car was stopped. Had the car been going at full speed when the fender struck the dummy it would have undoubtedly thrown the obstruction up on to the flat fender, and would have carried it along clear of the ground.

The "boy" was tried once more, and then the "man" was laid out with his legs across the rail. In each case the car was so nearly at a standstill when the fender struck that the dummies were carried along the ground by the edge of the fender, but in no case were they allowed to roll under the screen or near the wheels.

The knowing ones in the crowd found fault with the fact that the guard was so far under the body of the car, but the reason for this is apparent. The essential feature of any guard must be an ability to run close to the ground, otherwise it will prove more dangerous than helpful, by rolling the unfortunate victim underneath what is expected to be a protection, and placing him just in front of the wheels. If the guard was placed at the end of the carbody the oscillation of the car when running rapidly would make it necessary to have the lower edges six or eight inches above the ground, a height which makes it useless. Then, too, with the fender placed far under the car the motorman has six or eight feet more in which to bring his car to a standstill before the fender strikes the body. This is a factor which needs to be practically illustrated, as it was yesterday, before it is fully appreciated.

In no trial was the dummy scraped along the ground for more than two feet, while, if the guard had been at the extreme end of the car, even had it been possible to build it close enough to the ground to catch the dummy, it would have bounded it along for ten feet or more.

There were present at the trial yesterday Supervisors Hirsch, Dunker, Morgenstern, Hughes, Benjamin and Wagner, and all expressed themselves as satisfied with the test. It was easily seen that if any one's arm got under the guard, unless the car was quickly stopped, he would inevitably be drawn under, but the same thing applies to all the other guards which have been tried. It was also seen that the steps of the cars are a dangerous element, but then they are a necessary evil. Mr. Vining thinks the new fender, with some alterations which are seen to be advisable, is as good, if not better, than any yet produced. It has been run several times along the Mission line, and each time it has been loaded with small stones, so close does the forward edge skim along the pavement. There is some thought of having the guard now carried on the end of the car body—a sort of gate consisting of three horizontal wooden bars—to assist the new fender, but that is not held to be of much use any way, and may be discarded.

The question of guarding the wheels of moving cars is a vexing one, and of the hundreds of designs submitted, and the scores of them tried, not one has been found without serious faults. Every one high enough to sweep the cobbles is too high to be of service, and every one low enough to insure protection is too low to do anything but tear itself to pieces on the pavements. The Sutter-street road has long used a contrivance resembling somewhat the pilot of a locomotive; the Powell and Jackson street cars have tried vertical rollers, triangular guards and wire screens; the Market-street roads have tried horizontal and vertical guards; the Howard-street lines have also tried numerous wire-screen guards, but in spite of all people have been killed, and will continue to be killed by the streetcars. There is still room for invention in the case.

SPARF'S SECOND TRIAL.

A Tilt Between a Witness and the Attorney for the Defense.

The Government's Mainstay Contradicts His Previous Testimony.

There was quite a little scene in the case of Herman Sparf, charged with murder, in the United States Circuit Court yesterday. Henry Green was on the stand and as he contradicted himself in one or two important particulars Attorney Smith for the defense got very angry with him and for a time there was a lively interchange of words.

Sparf, Hanson, St. Clair and Green were all arrested in Tahiti for the murder of Mate M. Fitzgerald of the American bark Hesper while on a voyage from Newcastle, N. S. W., to Honolulu. They were transferred to San Francisco and on their arrival here Green turned State's evidence.

During the cross-examination Smith attempted to show that Green was a London waif who had been picked up and sent to a reform school. From the latter place he graduated into a training-ship and there learned navigation. All these points Green admitted on the previous trial, but yesterday he denied positively that he knew anything about navigation. He insisted that Attorney Smith had insulted him on the previous trial and said he was now going to stand up for his rights.

In answer to various questions, he described the murder of Mate Fitzgerald and gave all the particulars of the oft-told story. The attempt to kill Captain Sodergren and secure his wife was a failure. Green told how the order to send a hand forward to bring "the old man up from the cabin" was given, and how no one responded.

"What were you going to do with the old man when you got him on deck?" was asked.

"Well, I don't know. We might have asked him to have a waltz," was the flippant reply.

A few minutes later Green got angry because he said Smith was "pushing him" because he had turned State's evidence, and almost in the same breath he swore that he did not know what State's evidence meant. The theory of the defense is that Green was the only man in the forecastle who understood navigation, and that he was the leader of the mutiny which resulted in the death of Mate Fitzgerald.

AFRAID OF HIS LIFE.

Willard Newell Wants David Rivers of the Emmet Company Arrested.

Willard Newell, the well-known actor, is afraid of his life. He appeared in Judge Campbell's court yesterday afternoon and swore out a warrant for the arrest of David Rivers, another Thespian, on the charge of threats to kill.

Rivers is a member of the J. K. Emmet Company now playing at Stockwell's. On Monday night Newell was in Emmet's dressing-room at the theater, when Rivers entered and threatened that he would be the means of making Newell "shuffle off this mortal coil." He tried hard to carry his threat into effect, but was prevented by Emmet. For a few minutes there was a scene of great excitement among the players and attaches of the theater.

"I have befriended this man Rivers," said Newell, when applying for the warrant, "for the past six or seven years and got his present employment for him. I have known his wife's family for several years. She is a beautiful woman, highly accomplished and much superior to Rivers in every way. Her parents strongly opposed the marriage, but she was young and foolish. She is playing with a company in Chicago and has obtained a separation from him. This has made him despondent and when in his cups he loses his head. He blames me for his wife obtaining a separation from him, but I had nothing to do with it. He is a dangerous man and I am afraid of my life."

HE IS JACK THE RIPPER.

The Author of the Whitechapel Murders a London Physician.

CONFINED IN A MADHOUSE.

The Story Told by an Englishman to William Greer Harrison.

Dr. Howard, a London physician of considerable prominence, was the guest of William Greer Harrison at the Bohemian Club recently. He is one who has also made a reputation in literature. The Englishman told a singular story to his host and vouched for its correctness in every particular. It related to the mystery of "Jack the Ripper," which the physician declared was no longer a mystery among the scientific men of London, or the detectives at Scotland Yard. He said that this atrocious assassin was a medical man of high standing and extensive practice. He was married to a beautiful and amiable wife, and had a family. Shortly before the beginning of the Whitechapel murders he developed a peculiar and, to his wife, an inexplicable mania—an unnatural pleasure in causing pain.

This malady at last attained such growth that his wife became afraid of him, and used to lock herself and the children up when she observed those paroxysms coming on. Yet when the fits were over and she spoke to him about them, he professed perfect ignorance of their occurrence, and actually laughed at her, and accused her of being the victim of some strange hallucination. Yet he acknowledged that he had encountered in his practice cases similar to those she attributed to him, and defined them as a most dangerous form of insanity.

Then the Whitechapel murders filled London with horror, and the physician, in discussing them, freely expressed his opinion that they were the work of a maniac. The suspicions of the wife were aroused, and as one assassination succeeded the other she noted with heartbreaking dread that at the periods when these murders were supposed to have been committed her husband was invariably absent from home. There was blood on his clothes, which seemed to puzzle him, and he accounted to her for its presence by stating that he must have got it while assisting at some operation, but was annoyed that he could not fix the time or place.

At last the suspense and fear of the wretched wife became unbearable, and she went to a few of her husband's medical friends, stated the case, and asked their advice and assistance. They were astounded at her suspicions, but she cited so many peculiar circumstances that they resolved to make a quiet investigation into the conduct and movements of their brother physician. They called the Scotland Yard force to assist them, and by adding one fact to another the chain of evidence pointing to the doctor as the author of the murders became complete.

The sequel is the strangest part of Dr. Howard's story, and conflicts with the established ideas of English methods. The physicians visited the murderer, and told him they wished to consult him about a remarkable case. Then they stated his own in detail, and asked him what should be done under the circumstances. He replied promptly that, while the unmistakable insanity of the person who could commit these crimes would save him from the halter, he should certainly be confined to a lunatic asylum. Then they told him that he himself was the maniac who had done these fearful acts. He declared the impossibility of the accusation, but confessed that of late years he feared he had been yielding to unusual promptings and that there were gaps in the twenty-four hours of which he positively had no recollection. He said that he had awakened in his own rooms as if from a stupor and found mud upon his boots, indicating that he had been in the streets, and stains of blood upon his hands. This had distressed him very much, and he had communicated these incidents to his wife, in whom he had the utmost confidence, but she could not account for them. He had also scratches upon his face, and his amputating knives had shown signs of use, though he could not recall having assisted at any operation. He begged them in all sincerity to unravel this mystery for him.

Kindly and sympathetically the doctors assured him that most deplorably there could be no doubt of his identity with the Whitechapel assassin. They made an exhaustive search of the house, led by the accused, who assisted them in every way with a calm stolidity, as if he were helping to pile up the evidence against some other individual. They found ample proofs of murder, and so numerous and unmistakable were the results of their investigation that the unhappy man, whose mind at that moment was in its normally clear condition, pronounced his own sentence, and begged to be removed from the world as a guilty and dangerous monster. He reproached himself with not having communicated his suspicions of the extent of this mania before to his medical associates, but he was restrained by pride and his dread of being removed from practice.

The necessary papers were made out and the irresponsible murderer was committed to an insane asylum. In a month or so he lost all semblance of sanity and is now the most intractable and dangerous madman confined in that institution. His mania has got to that extent that, incapable of inflicting torture on others, he would tear his own flesh but for the bonds that confine him.

When asked why this discovery was not made generally public, Dr. Howard said that it would have a panicky effect, and that if it became generally known that a physician in good standing could be the victim of a mania so murderous in its character the entire profession would suffer. Again, the result in the law courts would lead to the only punishment possible under such conditions, namely, the lifelong confinement of the lunatic. This was not done on the responsibility of the doctors who examined him, or the detectives who assisted them in completing their investigations. Men high in authority were consulted, and agreed that the methods they adopted were the best for the public weal, and with this discovery of the assassin all murders in London of the Whitechapel character ceased.

SPECIAL EXAMINER LAIDLAW.

He Will Classify the Men in the Internal Revenue Department.

Special Examiner Laidlaw of the treasury is in San Francisco. While he is here he will make an informal investigation of the internal revenue office and will classify the employes. Since Collector Welburn and Deputy Collector Loup have had charge of affairs everything has run like clockwork in the internal revenue department. Still, many of the clerks have not been classified according to the ideas of the Secretary of the Treasury, and this work Special Examiner Laidlaw will undertake. The system in the internal revenue office is almost perfect. During the rush and worry of filing the internal revenue tax returns there was not a single complaint, as the Collector and his chief deputy were on hand at all hours.

A DESERTED FAMILY.

Sufferings of Mrs. L. Wilson, Who Is Threatened With Eviction.

"If I do not receive help I and my six children will be thrust out into the street to-morrow."

This was the statement made amid tears by Mrs. L. Wilson of 508½ Ninth street to Secretary McComb of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children yesterday.

Mrs. Wilson's story is a pitiful one. She stated that her husband was for years a shirt-cutter in the employ of Neustadter Brothers. While he was working everything went well, but some months ago he lost his place and since then affairs have gone from bad to worse. To cap the climax Wilson became dissipated and neglected his family of six children.

"I have been forced to wash to support my children," said Mrs. Wilson, "but I became ill and can do so no longer. I was unable to pay the rent, and I received word that I would be evicted on Wednesday, unless I received help."

Secretary McComb gave Mrs. Wilson a letter to the Associated Charities and stated that he would look after her children in any case. An investigation of the case showed that the family had long lived in actual want.

Old Fashioned—compound cathartic pills, "blue pills," calomel or other mercurial preparations, should not be used in these days of enlightened medical science, when it is so easy to get a purely vegetable pill in concentrated form, sugar-coated, in glass vials, at any store where medicines are kept.

Dr. Pierce was first to introduce a Little Pill to the American people. Many have imitated them, but none have approached his "Pleasant Pellets" in true worth, or value, for all laxative and cathartic purposes.

Once Used, they are Always in Favor.

Assist Nature a little now and then, with a gentle, cleansing laxative, thereby removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels, toning up and invigorating the liver and quickening its tardy action, and you thereby remove the cause of a multitude of distressing diseases, such as headaches, indigestion, or dyspepsia, biliousness, pimples, blotches, eruptions, boils, constipation, piles, fistula and maladies too numerous to mention.

If people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctor's services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases.

The secondary effect of the "Pellets" is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to further constipate, as is the case with other pills. Hence, their great popularity, with sufferers from habitual constipation, piles and indigestion.

They absolutely cure sick headache, biliousness, constipation, coated tongue, poor appetite, dyspepsia and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

A free sample of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, (4 to 7 doses) on trial, is mailed to any address, post-paid, on receipt of name and address on postal card.
